ALDERMEN MEET TOMORROW FOR ACTION ON NEW CHARTER BILL

Indications Are Measure Will Pass by Overwhelming Vote in Special Session of Board.

The Board of Aldermen voted today to hold a special meeting tomorrow at 10 a.m. to take final action on a bill calling for an election of a board of freeholders to consider drafting a new city charter. It was indicated the bill would be passed overwhelmingly.

Immediately following the board meeting, the legislation committee, to which the measure was referred, approved the freeholder bill. With five of the seven members of the committee present, the vote was 5 to 0.

Alderman James W. Noonan, (Dem.), Third Ward, who made the motion for the special meeting tomorrow, said:

"Some months ago a bill for an election of a board of freeholders was introduced into this board and in its consideration of it, the legislation committee studied the possibility of amending the present charter.

"Changes in the charter could have been accomplished in this manner with dispatch, but the Mayor and the press would not have it that way.

"They told the public that the present charter was antiquated and that only a complete revision would do a satisfactory job.

"A campaign of exaggeration and denunciation brought this board to the position last Friday where it wanted to demonstrate its resentment of this conduct."

Tucker's Bill Defeated.
He was referring to the board's action in defeating by a vote of 20 to 7 a similar freeholder bill offered by Mayor Raymond R. Tucker.

"We now have introduced a bill of our own," he continued. "In it the powers of the Board of Aldermen are retained and it does not prejudice legal issues or infringe just what the board of freeholders is expected to do."

Little Discussion on Bill.
Alderman Anton Niemeyer, chairman of the legislation committee, who introduced the present charter measure last Friday after the board defeated the Mayor's bill, said there was very little discussion in the committee meeting.

There was no discussion of amending it, he said, and the committee voted to report it out tomorrow.

The measure sets May 8 as the date for an election of a board of 13 freeholders. It also provides that the Board of Aldermen will set the date of a subsequent election when the people of St. Louis will vote to approve or reject the newly drafted or revised charter.

After the committee meeting, Alderman Edgar J. Feely (Dem.), Twentieth Ward, said he was opposed to aldermanic consideration of the bill tomorrow, because he saw no reason for "so much haste." He added, however, that he would vote in favor of it tomorrow.

Committee members present, who voted to report the bill out favorably, were Aldermen John T. Curry (Dem.), Fifth Ward; Raymond Leisner (Dem.), Seventh; Niemeyer (Dem.), Eighth; Fred W. Haag (Rep.), Twelfth; and Feely. Those absent were Aldermen DeWitte T. Lawson (Dem.), Nineteenth; and Everett J. Taylor (Dem.), Twentieth-seventh. The latter is ill in a hospital.

At today's session of the board, Alderman Clinton T. Watson (Dem.), Sixteenth Ward, asked for the floor as a matter

DOUGLAS ASSAILS
NATURAL GAS BILL
AS HUGE 'GOUGE'

Tells Senate Lifting
Price Regulation
Would Cost Public
600 Million a Year.

By EDWARD F. WOODS
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20 (AP)—Senator Paul Douglas, big gun in the drive to kill off a bill exempting natural gas producers from direct federal price regulation, boomed out against the measure today as an instrument for "gouging" consumers out of an additional $600,000,000 to $900,000,000 a year.

In what promised to be the longest and strongest attack on the Senate bill in the debate, now in its fifth day, the Illinois Democrat said that arguments favoring the legislation are "hollow" and that the benefits would go to major oil companies while only a "trickle" would reach farmers, stockmen and landowners, generally, in the form of royalties.

Douglas arrived on the Senate floor carrying a bulging briefcase and followed by three aides staggering under the weight of huge volumes of law, regulations and data on which Douglas would depend in his plea for continued regulation of natural gas prices at the well-head.

"For 21,000,000 Families,"
Asserting that he spoke for the 21,000,000 American families who cook or heat with gas, Douglas said that it is because the gas industry is non-competitive that federal regulation is necessary.

Householders who use oil or coal for heating and cooking can turn to another distributor if one seller gouges them, Douglas said, adding that gas consumers do not enjoy this freedom of choice.

As against an average rate in the field of 10.7 cents a thousand cubic feet of natural gas in 1955, a 25-cent rate is "quite possible" if the gas bill passes, Douglas warned.

Douglas sharply disputed claims by proponents of the bill, which bears the name of Senator J. William Fulbright (Dem.), Arkansas, that exemption from price regulation in the field is necessary as an inducement to producers to explore for additional supply. Douglas is offering an amendment to the Fulbright bill.

In response to assertions that wellhead regulation would bury the Federal Power Commission would bury the Federal Power Commission

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20 (AP)—Rowland R. Hughes today resigned as Director of the Budget, effective April 1. President Eisenhower announced he would appoint deputy director Percival F. Brundage to succeed him.

Hughes, who has held the post since April 1953, gave "compelling personal and family reasons" as the explanation for stepping out. He noted in his letter of resignation that he agreed in the first place to serve for only one year but has stayed on for a second year.

Eisenhower, accepting the resignation "with deepest regret," praised Hughes's services in drafting a balanced budget and told him in a letter: "It is a tribute to your wise judgment and devoted service that we have reached our present reassuring position."

The President said that thanks in part to Hughes's efforts the nation now is on a strong financial foundation—one "on which it is possible, for an indefinite time and without resort to borrowing against future generations, to make proper provision for both the nation's security and the advancement of human values so fundamental to our democracy."

AIRLINERS WAITING TO LAND REPORTED IN NEAR COLLISION

CLEVELAND, Jan. 20 (AP)—Reports of a near collision between two airliners over Cleveland Hopkins Airport late last night were under investigation today by airline and Civil Aeronautics Administration officials.

The planes carried a total of 72 passengers.
A United Air Lines DC-6 coming in from New York and bound for Los Angeles and a Capital Airlines Viscount bound here from Washington were involved.

A CAA spokesman said both planes were waiting to land when the pilot of one of the planes apparently thought he was too close to the other and made a sudden drop to avoid a collision. In so doing his plane came close to the other plane, it was reported. Both planes later landed safe.

Instruments on the Viscount failed after the aerial scare and the plane had to land blind after 35 minutes in the air, the CAA spokesman said. Visibility was three miles and the ceiling 600 feet.

John E. Ryan of Denver, who got off the United Air Lines plane here, said another airliner was close enough to the plane "to be hit with a thrown baseball."

G. D. Logan, United Air Lines official, said his pilot had not reported any danger of an air collision to him.

Volume Two of

THE TRUMAN MEMOIRS

Begins Sunday

Sunday the St. Louis Post-Dispatch will begin publication of the second volume of THE TRUMAN MEMOIRS, Harry S. Truman's own account of his momentous years in the White House following World War II.

The former President tells about important decisions he made and why he made them, decisions concerning foreign aid, the cold war in Europe and the live war in Korea, the control of atomic energy, his whistle-stop campaign for the Presidency in 1948 and many other problems.

Volume two of THE TRUMAN MEMOIRS will continue in daily and Sunday installments.

My Daughter, Grace Kelly

Also beginning Sunday, a series of articles by Mrs. John B. Kelly tells the revealing life story of her daughter, movie actress Grace Kelly. The series includes a full account of behind-the-scenes developments in Grace's whirlwind engagement to Prince Rainier. It is illustrated with photos from the Kelly's personal album.

RED LEADERS TRY
BOMBAY RIOTING

Police Commissioner Says 47 Have Been Killed in 5 Days of Violence.

BOMBAY, India, Jan. 20 (AP)—Looting and shooting continued unabated in riot-torn Bombay today for the fifth day. Left-wing leaders of the demonstrators appealed in vain for an end to the violence.

The rioters, mostly of the Maratha race, increasingly vented their ire on Gujarati families. Many of the Gujaratis were frantically trying to flee the city.

Bombay State Governor Harekrishna Mahabadi told a meeting of leading citizens the wave of violence is "unparalleled in the history" of Bombay, India's second largest city.

Fighting Nehru's Plan.
The Marathas, about half of Bombay's nearly 3,000,000 population, are fighting Prime Minister Nehru's plan to take Bombay city away from Bombay state and put it under the federal government. The rest of the state would be split in two, forming one state where the Marathi language is predominant and the other where Gujarati is generally spoken.

Official figures, obviously lagging behind the actual casualties, put the death toll at more than 40 since the riots erupted Monday.

The United Press said Police Commissioner K. D. Billimoria announced that 47 persons had been killed and more than 500 injured in the rioting. He said 2166 persons were under arrest.

Property damage from wrecking, burning and looting was widespread.
(A report reaching New Delhi said two more persons were killed today when police fired on rioters in the Bombay industrial area. The report said, however, that violence appeared to be subsiding in the city. Fresh outbreaks occurred in Kolhapur, another Marathi storm center south of Bombay, and a curfew has been imposed there, it added.)

Violence in Other Cities.
Authorities were besieged in numerous towns by demonstrators who demanded the officials resign. At Poona all 50 city councilmen quit after a stone-throwing mob stormed the municipal corporation building.

Other violence centers included Ghatkopur, Kolhapur, Nipani and Ghodapoor.
(The United Press reported rioting in eastern India in protest against a government decision not to detach Orissa-speaking areas from the Hindu-speaking state of Bihar and return them to the state of Orissa. Some of the areas were attached to Bihar when India gained its independence.)

The chief ministers of Orissa left for New Delhi with a threat to resign en bloc against the Nehru cabinet's "injustices."

(In Calcutta the Hindustan Standard attacked Nehru editorially and said he had become increasingly "susceptible to flattery." It charged he was anxious only to placate Behar, birthplace of President Rajendra Prasad, and accused his Congress party of launching a crusade against the non-Hindu speaking groups.)

Police Army Attacked.
In Bombay one of the most severe threats came last night when the main police army at Nigam was attacked by a mob seeking arms and ammunition. Police gunfire turned back the attackers.

A government announcement said nine persons were killed in Bombay city in yesterday's fighting. It said 65 persons were injured, including 30 policemen, and 85 more rioters were arrested.

AIR FORCE FUNDS BILLION DOLLARS
OFFICERS SOUGHT

Service Will Get 400 Fewer Planes Than Chiefs Considered Necessary, Officials Disclose.

By CHARLES CORDRY
WASHINGTON, Jan. 20 (UP)

About a billion dollars was knocked out of Air Force appropriations requests before the Administration sent its new budget to Congress, official sources disclosed today.

As a result, they said, the service will order about 400 fewer planes than it considers necessary and will have 10 per cent less money than it urged for day-to-day operations and maintenance in the year starting July 1.

Despite the shaving of money requests, however, Gen. Nathan F. Twining, Air Force Chief of Staff, asserted last night that he "shall support the budget that is before the Congress."

Step-Up Next Year.
The General will tell Congress that the budget is "tight," however, and that a considerable step-up in aircraft funds will be needed in 1958 if the 137-wing Air Force is to be modernly equipped, officials said.

The fiscal 1957 budget proposes $15,400,000,000 in Air Force appropriations. An additional $1,100,000,000 will be asked for that service soon in the fiscal 1957 military construction appropriations bill.

But officials said the budget falls about 400 short of providing the number of planes the Air Force believes must be ordered annually to keep latest types flowing into its combat units. Mr. Eisenhower asked for $5,800,000,000 for aircraft procurement, a drop of half a billion dollars under the current year's appropriation.

Pinch in Maintenance.
Greatest Air Force concern has been over funds allotted for routine operations and maintenance. The budget asked for $3,786,000,000, which is an increase of $188,500,000 over the current year but more than $400,000,000 under what the service asked for.

A high official said the money pinch is especially felt in the Far East where the air arm has had to take over many Army ground forces as the Communists have withdrawn. Some money has had to be diverted from fuel accounts for other activities, inevitably reducing flying hours for jet planes. The result could be to lower combat readiness.

Officials said a shortage of funds and technicians has hampered operations throughout the Air Force. But they disputed a claim recently made by Air Force Magazine, the Air Force Association publication, that almost a third of the tactical air command's fighter plane force was grounded for lack of maintenance.

The actual figure for grounded T.A.C. fighters of all types is 8.9 per cent, officials said. They thought that not pessimistic in view of the transition T.A.C. is making to supersonic planes and the problem it has of getting technicians.

R.A.F. PLANE EXPLODES, FALLS IN HEART OF TOWN

WADSWORTH, England, Jan. 20 (UP)—A Royal Air Force plane exploded and crashed in flames into a busy downtown shopping center here today.

First reports said one person was killed and 10 injured. The blazing wreckage set several buildings on fire on the main street of this town in southeast England. Part of the flaming wreckage plummeted into a block of shops. The rest fell in a field.

The Queen's Hotel nearby was demolished and several cottages were destroyed.
"NOT LIKELY" HE WILL BE PRESIDENT, HARRIMAN SAYS

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 20 (AP)—Gov. Averell Harriman of New York said yesterday "It does not look very likely that I would be President."

This was his off-the-cuff preface to his answer to a question asking what he would do about world peace if he were President.

Harriman, nevertheless, gave a full answer, saying he would build the military strength of this nation and its allies and seek to cement the relations of free world countries.

REDS LET OFF STEAM CLAIM

LONDON, Jan. 20 (AP)—The Moscow radio conceded today that James Watt never beat the Russians to the invention of the steam engine.

In a broadcast marking the 220th anniversary of Watt's birth, it said the Scotsman's "invention of the steam engine coincided with a similar achievement by the Russian Polzunov, arrived at independently."

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20 (UP)—Senate Democrats accused the Administration today of failing to tell the American people the truth about the seriousness of the world situation.

They also asserted that the Eisenhower Administration has not produced a single major new approach to foreign policy in the three years it has been in power.

Chief target of their attack was Secretary of State John Foster Dulles.

Senator Mansfield (Dem.) of Montana, most dangerous thing in the foreign policy created by the Democrats, that it has played "a political game" with foreign affairs, that it has misrepresented the facts about the world situation.

Senator Fulbright (Dem.) of Arkansas said Dulles has done a disservice to "bipartisan policy" by giving the impression things are going well in the world and by making the "brink of war" statements carried in a Life magazine interview.

"The most dangerous thing it (the Administration) could do," he said, "is to create an impression that the dangers are past."

Senator Aiken (Rep.), Vermont, arose to protest that when Dulles told the Foreign Relations Committee the non-Communist world was stronger, "it is not fair to pick out one spot and seek to make him a liar."

Years of Tension Ahead
Mansfield retorted that he could not see how the world situation which make the world situation the most dangerous since World War II.

"The American people should be told that they face years of tension and there is no easy way out," he said.

Senator Long (Dem.) of Louisiana asked Mansfield whether the Foreign Relations committee had ever been told by Dulles that just "one additional step" by the Communists would mean World War III. Mansfield said the committee was never so informed. Mansfield said he thinks such advice to Congress would be "mandatory" in such a situation.

Long said the information might have been withheld from the nation to conceal from the Communists the inner workings of the United States policy thinking. But he said he could not see "what conceivable purpose" was served by revealing the information now.

Senator Humphrey (Dem.) of Minnesota, asked whether Mansfield did not agree that there was more "security information" in the Dulles article than had ever been presented to the committee. Humphrey cited especially Dulles' statement that the use of tactical nuclear weapons was considered in the Far East crises.

Mansfield agreed that the information in the article went beyond what was told to the committee.

Senator Neely (Dem.) of West Virginia, said the "stupendous folly" of Dulles' "brink of war" statement has put "the kiss of death" on the next Republican presidential nominee no matter who he is.

TOP INTERIOR AID CALLED IN MINE CLAIMS INQUIRY

Under Secretary Will

Week to Answer
'Giveaway' Charges.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20 (AP)—A top official of the Department of the Interior gets his chance next week to answer on the record Democratic charges that the department "gave away" valuable Oregon timber lands under the guise of mining patents.

The House-Senate inquiry into department handling of the patents obtained by Al Sarena Mines, Inc., in the Rogue river national forest was in recess today. But Senator Richard Neuberger (Dem.), Oregon, acting chairman, announced that Clarence A. Davis, Under Secretary of the Interior, would be a witness when the hearing resumes next Thursday.

It was Davis, then department solicitor, who issued instructions in 1953 for the taking of new assay samples from the 15 disputed Sarena claims in order to settle the company's appeal from the Bureau of Land Management's denial of the patents. Davis approved the patents after the new assay was made.

Democrats have criticized the decision and the instructions, which called for the samples to be taken by the Bureau of Mines and sent to an assay firm "mutually acceptable" to the bureau and the Sarena firm.

When a mining claim is patented the holder gets title to the land. Senator W. Kerr Scott (Dem.), North Carolina, maintains the timber was the real objective of the Sarena company all along. He says the firm has cut a lot of timber but has done little mining.

Republicans deny the "giveaway" charge, which they say is Democratic fishing for an issue to use in the coming campaign. They say the department had no alternative under mining law but to grant the patents after a satisfactory showing by the company.

William Shafer, assistant to the minerals staff officer of the Bureau of Land Management, said the law provides that to

Resentment Flares Against Justice Department — Jury Names Committee to Look Into Matter.

Long-smoldering resentment by members of the federal grand jury against what they consider dilatory tactics by Justice Department representatives in the inquiry into tax scandals in the Truman Administration has burst forth into a heated controversy, the Post-Dispatch was told today.

Members of the jury believe the investigation is being used as a "political football" by the Republican-controlled Justice Department, to help the G.O.P. win the November presidential election, it was learned.

The jury has appointed a committee of its members to look into the matter, and has held conferences with a number of federal officials, including United States Attorney Harry Richards. Jury members told Richards they wanted to "get ahead" with the inquiry.

Writing a special report to be presented in open court, outlining the jury's objections to the method in which the inquiry is being handled, is under consideration.

Political Impact.
Both Republicans and Democrats among the 23 members of the grand jury feel that the Justice Department is stringing out the inquiry in order to get the best possible political impact, instead of bringing it to a speedy conclusion, the Post-Dispatch was told.

The jury, sworn in last Jan. 24, would normally complete its term in March, although it could continue until July 6 on order of the court. Unless indictments are returned or no true bills voted upon, much of the jury's work in hearing testimony and assessing evidence will be practically wasted.

The spark that touched off the open flare-up came recently when the jury was informed it would have little to do regarding the tax-scandal inquiry while Government attorneys were preparing for the trials of Matthew J. Connelly, Theron Lamar Caudle and Harry J. Schwimmer, all charged with conspiracy to defraud the Government.

Word that the grand jury was "up in arms" reached Warren Olney III, head of the Justice Department's criminal division, and Wyllys Newcomb, leader of the investigation team, and they rushed back to St. Louis from the east coast this week in an attempt to pacify the jurors.

Olney and Newcomb declined to comment today.

Confers With Moore.
Olney had a long, private conference with United States District Judge George H. Moore, who set the tax-scandal inquiry in motion more than four years ago. Moore, angry at that time at the Democrats' reluctance to make the investigation, has not been entirely satisfied with the progress made under the Republicans.

The Democratic Administration was accused of stalling the investigation to protect some of its leaders and to avoid bad political repercussions.

Jurors, it is known, feel there may be sufficient evidence to indict other officials of the Truman Administration. They think the investigation is being handled so that any further indictments will be spaced at long intervals until November to serve the Republican party rather than the interests of justice.

Instead of cutting sharply into the issues involved in whether officials in the Truman administration engaged in tax fixing, Government attorneys have been taking the jury's time with "tangential" matters, some jurors have complained.

Explanation to Jury.
The jury was told that cases against Connelly, Caudle and Schwimmer might be jeopardized if their trials were held while its investigation continued. However, several jurors made an independent check with attorneys and were told that the investigation could continue until the trials actually began without jeopardizing the cases.

A statement reportedly made recently by a Government attorney served to increase the grand jury's resentment. The lawyer indicated there were plans to shift the jury inquiry soon to Omaha, Neb.

When the St. Louis jurors demanded to know why, pointing out they had given much time and attention to the investigation, the attorney told them, in effect, that such matters were in the province of the

MEANY ATTACKS BUSINESS HEADS FOR ADVOCATING TRADE WITH REDS

Singles Out Curtice and Weir, Says Commerce Would Help Communists Build Up War Machine.

The New York Herald Tribune Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—George Meany, president of the AFL-CIO, charged yesterday that many American business men are still unaware of the full danger of world Communism and by encouraging trade with the Soviet bloc help indirectly to build the Communist war machine.

Meany, in a Rotary Club address, named Harlow Curtice, president of General Motors, and Ernest T. Weir, chairman of the National Steel Corp., as "two leaders of the business community who have been disappointed" freedom-loving Americans by advocating trade with Russia.

"I want to warn you that 'business as usual' and appeasement policies toward (Soviet Communist party leader) Nikita Khrushchev and Mao Tse-tung (Red China leader) can only help these dictators build the Moscow-Peking war machine and greatly encourage them to further aggression and even another world war," he said.

Curtice Quotation.

Meany's reference to Curtice concerned an interview published in Look magazine, in which Curtice had been asked about his view about trade with the Communist bloc. He had answered that "I no longer see any reason why sales of cars and other peacetime products to the Soviet bloc cannot be increased as long as such sales fit in with United States State Department policies."

Meany countered this reasoning by saying that American cars are certain to be used by Russia "if a war should come." Moreover, he asserted, the United States must buy products from Russia if Russia is to buy from this country. Such an exchange, he said, could only help the Soviet bloc to overcome the failure of its economic system.

The reference to Weir in Meany's speech concerned an alleged statement by Weir to the effect that the countries of the free world should "renounce their attitude of suspicion and distrust" in dealing with Russia.

Gibe at Weir.

"In my opinion," Meany said, "Mr. Weir would be serving America better if he renounced his attitude of suspicion and distrust of collective bargaining here at home in our own country before he showed his trust in Khrushchev and his comrades behind the Iron Curtain." This remark appeared to refer to Weir's long and successful fight to keep the CIO United Steel Workers of America out of his Weirton, W. Va., mills. His 12,000 workers are represented by the Weirton Independent Union which the CIO has characterized as a "company union."

Later, Meany charged in another speech that the National Association of Manufacturers is waging an unrelenting campaign to destroy labor unions, and has been for 60 years.

Meany told the National Industrial Conference Board that Charles R. Sligh Jr., retiring N.A.M. president, said last month that labor-management co-operation could be achieved only if labor recognized the right of every worker to join a union or not, as he chooses.

"Right Not to Work."

"The right not to work," Meany said, "receives no recognition whatsoever in the prerequisite conditions for labor-management co-operation laid down by the spokesman for the N.A.M."

The "right not to work," Meany said, is a rejection of work he can't agree to, and to "refuse to work alongside the man who will not join the union."

"Right-to-work" laws have been enacted in number of states. Usually the outlaw "union shop" contracts which require new employees to join a union within a certain time. Labor has attacked the laws as an attempt to destroy unions. The N.A.M. has backed the laws.

Weir's Remarks Taken From Article in Post-Dispatch.

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 20 (UP).—Ernest T. Weir said last night that AFL-CIO President George Meany quoted him out of context in his New York speech.

A spokesman for Weir said Meany took quotations from an article written by Weir for the St. Louis Post-Dispatch last May, one of a series by distinguished leaders in various fields of endeavor and thought under the general title, "The Struggle for Peace," which "do not accurately nor fairly reflect the substance of this length article."

The spokesman quoted Weir as saying in the article: "This is a moment of opportunity which should be exploited to the fullest. Things have been happening which would have been considered highly improbable a short time ago."

"I believe that now the Western nations and particularly the United States, should lay aside attitudes of suspicion and distrust. They should not prejudge Russia's new positions as a false front assumed for tactical or propaganda advantage, and on that basis enter discussions half-heartedly."

Wilson Says He, Radford Thought Ridgway Agreed to Army Cuts

Associated Press Wirephoto. DEFENSE SECRETARY CHARLES WILSON commenting in Los Angeles yesterday on differences of recollection which have developed between him and Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway on the matter of cuts in Army manpower. SENATOR THOMAS KUCHEL is in background.

Secretary Asserts Former Staff Chief Evidently Changed Mind—Two Different Periods Involved, He Claims.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 20 (AP).—Defense Secretary Charles Wilson said today that he and Adm. Arthur W. Radford thought Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway agreed to cuts in Army manpower as shown in the 1954 State of the Union message, but evidently Ridgway's opinions changed later.

Wilson conferred with a local group until a few minutes before midnight in a hotel conference room. When he emerged he declined to state the nature of the meeting except that it was not political.

As he walked across the lobby an Associated Press correspondent questioned him about apparent variance between his comments on the Ridgway controversy Tuesday and his remarks on arrival here last night.

"Both Adm. Radford and I thought Gen. Ridgway concurred in the military appropriations outlined in President Eisenhower's State of the Union message," he said. "Ridgway later disagreed on the level of Army forces for the fiscal year of 1955."

Reply by Secretary.

Asked when Ridgway had stated that he was no longer in agreement on the cuts, Wilson replied:

"I don't have that information at hand. It is contained in my papers. They are in Washington."

Wilson said also that in his Washington press conference Tuesday he was talking about the level of Army forces for fiscal 1955, and that last night in Los Angeles he was referring to the 1954 State of the Union message. These, he said, are two different things.

The Defense Secretary then ended the conversation by stepping into an elevator without explaining what he meant.

President Eisenhower stated in his 1954 State of the Union message that the joint chiefs of staff unanimously approved proposed reductions in Army strength in 1954-55. Ridgway then was Army chief of staff. He retired last June.

Writing in the current Saturday Evening Post, Ridgway said he had "most emphatically not concurred" in the program to cut Army manpower. He said also he had been pressured to fit his views into what he called "a preconceived politico-military party line."

Wilson got into the controversy Tuesday when he told

COST OF LIVING DROPS 0.3 PCT., WAGE LEVEL UP

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20 (AP).—The Government reported today that living costs declined three-tenths of one per cent from November to December, the first decrease since August. Prices for food, transportation and housing dropped, while medical and personal care costs edged upward.

The December index of the Bureau of Labor Statistics was 114.7 per cent of the figure for the 1947-49 base period. This is a fraction higher than in December 1954.

The bureau reported that average gross weekly earnings, spendable pay and wage purchasing value of factory workers all rose to a new record level in December.

Spendable earnings, or gross pay less tax deductions, rose to an average $65.79 for the single worker and to $73.15 for the worker with three dependents. This was about $4.50 a week higher for each type worker than at the end of 1954, and up 30 cents a week from November. In terms of purchasing power, the worker was able to buy 6 per cent more with his pay in 1955 than in 1954.

the expectation that nothing worthwhile will come of them. This attitude should include readiness on our part to do everything responsible, honorable and compatible with our basic principles to come to an agreement with no outstanding differences."

PRIMARIES MAY FORCE PRESIDENT TO GIVE DECISION

Some States Require Affirmative Consent of Presidential Candidates.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20 (AP).—Efforts by his backers to obtain President Eisenhower's affirmative consent to entry of his name in several state presidential primaries may force a decision on whether he will seek re-election.

The President's statement yesterday that he did not object to the filing of his name in primaries added little if anything to previous White House pronouncements on the question.

In New Hampshire, as in Illinois previously, Mr. Eisenhower's consent was not required to put his name on the ballot. Notified formally of the New Hampshire action, Mr. Eisenhower said he would not ask that his name be removed, as he could have done under the state law.

He emphasized that by allowing his name to remain, he was not making a final second term decision. He invited other potential candidates to enter the preference primaries, but none seemed likely to contest with him at this stage.

Test Being Forced.

His statement left unsettled the question of whether he would consent affirmatively to entry of his name in state primaries where the law requires it. Senator Barry Goldwater (Rep., Arizona), predicted he would. Senator John W. Bricker (Rep., Ohio), said he was confident Mr. Eisenhower would not.

Moves were afoot today to bring the question to a test. In South Dakota, Republican state chairman Francis X. Cosgrove said he would ask the President for permission to enter his name in the Wisconsin primary, and he added: "However, our delegates are pledged to him anyway."

Wisconsin Gov. Walter J. Kohler said he would suggest to Mr. Eisenhower that he permit entry of his name in the April 3 primary "if it can be done under Wisconsin law without the President committing himself as a candidate."

Favorite Son Device.

Kohler heads a slate of delegate candidates pledged to back Mr. Eisenhower. If the President does not give written consent before March 2 that he will run, the slate probably will name Kohler as a favorite son with the understanding the members will back Mr. Eisenhower if he runs.

Chairman Alvin C. Cast said a "responsible member" of Mr.

PRESIDENT LIKES ROCKER; NO HINT OF CAMPAIGNING IN IT

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20 (UP).—President Eisenhower likes his Ozark rocking chair so well he may keep it at the White House while instead of sending it to Gettysburg.

However, the President, in a thank-you letter to Representative Dewey Short (Rep., Missouri), did not say anything about using the chair to campaign in the House member suggested.

Short told the President in a letter that accompanied the gift last week he could sit on his porch at Gettysburg and win re-election without making a speech and without even rocking.

Mr. Eisenhower said he appreciated Short's "expression of confidence." Otherwise he did not commit himself.

KEFAUVER DECIDES AGAINST ENTERING PRIMARY IN OHIO

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20 (UP).—Senator Estes Kefauver of Tennessee announced today that he has decided against entering the Ohio primary in his bid for the Democratic presidential nomination. Kefauver said he reached the decision after consulting with his campaign advisers.

So far, the only Democrat entered in the Ohio primary is Frank J. Lausche, Ohio's five-term governor and "favorite son." He has denied he announced his candidacy to keep Kefauver or Adlai E. Stevenson, also a Democratic presidential hopeful, out of the primary race in Ohio. The state will send a 58-vote delegation to the national convention.

Eisenhower's staff would be asked to submit written consent to the entry of the President's name in that state's May 8 primary. Indiana law says a candidate or his representative must file such consent between Feb. 28 and March 29.

Party leaders in Massachusetts, Nebraska, Maryland and West Virginia—while pledging support—said they have no plans to seek the affirmative consent required for entry of the President's name in those states.

California Primary.

California's Gov. Goodwin J. Knight announced he intends immediately to form a delegation pledged to Mr. Eisenhower's renomination.

"At the proper time," Knight said, "I will again contact the President to ask that he give his formal approval to a slate of 70 delegates pledged to his renomination."

California law requires the written consent of a candidate to enter the presidential primary. The 30-day filing period opens March 7.

Minnesota's state GOP chairman, Mrs. Reuel Harmon, said Mr. Eisenhower's name will be entered in the state primary Feb. 1, the first day for filing. That is one of the states where consent of the candidate is not required.

Presumably similar action will be taken in other states with comparable laws, including Florida, Montana, New Jersey, Oregon, Pennsylvania and Alaska.

Eisenhower to Address 'Salute' Dinners Tonight on TV and Radio

Talk to Be Carried to G.O.P. Rallies on Closed Circuit Hookup—One Network to Broadcast to Public.

By JAMES DEAKIN A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—President Eisenhower will address Republican "Salute to Eisenhower" dinners throughout the nation on television and radio tonight.

He will speak in person at a $100-a-plate dinner in Washington at about 10:20 p.m. (9:20 o'clock St. Louis time). A closed circuit television-radio hookup will carry his remarks to similar affairs in other cities. One radio network, ABC, will broadcast the event "live," to the public.

The talk will be Mr. Eisenhower's first political speech since his Sept. 24 heart attack. He is expected to speak for eight to 10 minutes.

(KSD, the Post-Dispatch radio station, will broadcast the President's address between 9:30 and 9:45 p.m.)

White House press secretary James C. Hagerty has said twice he does not expect the President to use the "Salute to Eisenhower" dinners as a forum to disclose his second term intentions.

The nation-wide observance, however, will launch the Republican fund-raising drive for the 1956 election campaign, as well as mark the third anniversary of Mr. Eisenhower's inauguration.

Senator Barry Goldwater of Arizona, who heads the Republican senatorial campaign committee, said he thinks national G.O.P. organizations will net about $2,500,000 from the $100-a-plate dinners. State and local organizations would get the same amount.

The closed circuit hookup will link 53 dinners in 51 cities for the half-hour broadcast. Four cities will receive only the radio portion, due to television transmission difficulties.

Hagerty said Mr. Eisenhower would not attend the dinner itself but would go to the rally, at a Washington hotel, shortly before the broadcast starts.

He will use a prepared text but may add some off-the-cuff remarks, the press secretary added. Hagerty has said he believes it would be incorrect to consider the speech a major address.

Republican leaders, viewing the rallies as psychological incentives to step up campaign donations, have lined up most major Administration officials as speakers at the various dinners.

Earlier reports of the visit to Liberia said Russia offered economic and technical aid to the West African Negro republic. These accounts said Liberia, which was organized a century ago with American help, probably would approach the Soviet offers with caution, despite a need for foreign aid.

Liberia is strongly opposed to Communism and permits no Communist organizations within her borders.

ABOUT 150 RED EXPERTS SAID TO BE IN EGYPT

Original Estimate of Technicians to Work on Czech Weapons Was 30.

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER WASHINGTON, Jan. 20 (AP).

Premier Gamal Abdel Nasser is said to have admitted into Egypt possibly 150 Soviet bloc technicians to help assemble arms from Czechoslovakia.

Diplomatic sources who reported this today said the number is five times the 30 experts Nasser originally estimated would be necessary to help get into operating condition the guns, tanks, jet planes and other arms.

The increase is a source of concern to United States officials anxious to hold the growth of Soviet influence in the Middle East to a minimum.

Egypt made a deal with Red Czechoslovakia last fall for $80,000,000 worth of military equipment, much of it now delivered. This increased tension in the Middle East because of its impact on the military balance between Israel and the Arab states.

American officials told Nasser that the time the Soviets could be expected to try to infiltrate Egypt with spies and political agitators in the guise of technicians.

Nasser initially took the position that the job could be done by specialists already in Egypt and by those he would send to Czechoslovakia for training. A large number of Egyptians have gone there.

The understanding here is that Nasser thus far has managed to avoid any political activity by the Red technicians allowed into Egypt. He has insisted they confine themselves to the work they went there to do.

STATE BOND ISSUE BACKERS CERTAIN OF VICTORY AT POLLS TUESDAY

No Organized Opposition but Some Criticism Is Heard of 'Package' Plan on $75,000,000.

By EDWARD H. THORNTON
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 20.—Backers of the proposed $75,000,000 bond issue to be submitted to voters in a statewide election Tuesday are confident the proposal will be approved, since there has been no organized opposition.

However, some criticism has been expressed because the bond issue has been presented as a "package" proposition, with no determination having been made as to how the $75,000,000 will be apportioned among the various institutions eligible to benefit from it.

The proposal is simply that the bond issue funds are to be used for expansion and rehabilitation of Missouri's penal system, eleemosynary and higher educational institutions. The Legislature will determine how funds are to be distributed if the bond issue is approved.

Criticizing an assertion by proponents that the bond issue will require no increase in taxes, the Missouri Public Expenditure Survey has determined that the bonds will be retired and interest paid from state income taxes.

If at any time it becomes apparent to the state comptroller that proceeds of the income tax will be insufficient to meet bond payments, a direct tax levied on all taxable tangible property in the state to obtain the necessary money.

The public expenditure survey, a fact-finding agency privately-financed, emphasized that it is not in favor of the purpose of the bond issue, but the fact that the way it is drawn up violates "accepted principles of sound public finance."

Ellis Statement.

If the proposal is approved, it will provide enough funds to bring the state institutions "reasonably up to date," even though it will not satisfy all the "real needs," President Elmer Ellis of the University of Missouri said today.

Ellis, chairman of a committee named by Gov. Phil M. Donnelly to conduct the campaign for approval of the bond issue, said:

"The building needs in Missouri's institutions have been accumulating for many years. A move in the late 1920s to make up this backlog never was carried out because of the depression. A great many of the buildings recommended then still are unbuild."

"More space is needed in the mental hospitals and, training schools and, in some instances, replacement is required for inadequate buildings which frequently are firetraps."

"One of the greatest needs is improvement of the state penitentiary. That need, which existed before the disastrous riot of 1954, is for new modern buildings adapted to modern ideas of penology."

"In the educational institutions the emphasis is on present not future needs, although the great demand for college education makes it doubly important that we be fully equipped to take care of our current needs."

"The $75,000,000 bond issue will not satisfy all the real needs of all the institutions, but when their needs are sifted out and those most pressing approved, it will bring all the institutions reasonably up to date."

Addressing Citizens on Freeholder Petitions

of personal privilege to explain that his absence from the meeting last Friday was due to illness and his physician's instructions.

He said he had notified the assistant clerk of the board that he would be unable to attend and because of that fact offered no apology for his absence.

"I have yet to fail to stand up on my feet and be counted on any measure," he said.

Meanwhile, Mayor Raymond R. Tucker, recalling how action on measures to elect freeholders had been stalled by the Aldermen for more than two years, proceeded with plans to force an election by initiative petitions.

Those Who Can Sign.

City Counselor Samuel H. Liberman explained that the petitions would have to be signed only by registered voters and that each signature on each sheet would have to be certified by a citizen of the city.

Each sheet would contain a printed copy of the proposed ordinance calling for the election of freeholders.

The Mayor said the petitions would require between 26,000 and 27,000 signatures, but that he hoped at least 50,000 signatures could be obtained in a short time.

William A. Webb, executive secretary of the AFL Central Trades & Labor Union, said he could not pledge even personal assistance until his organization authorized it, but suggested setting up a block by block campaign to obtain signatures.

"With one worker in each block circulating petitions," he said, "I believe you could get 35,000 signatures on the first day."

He also suggested the circulators be given precinct registration lists to help them in their work of circulating petitions among registered voters.

Mayor Tucker said that he also hoped to establish booths or stations in various parts of the city where signatures could be obtained.

Mrs. Gilbert Harris said that the League of Women Voters had received hundreds of calls in the last few days from women who wanted to volunteer to circulate the petitions.

Since the Mayor announced last weekend that he would take the initiative route to get an election of freeholders, many aldermen who voted against the earlier measure have announced they will vote for the measure now before them.

Many of them, including Niemeyer, who was responsible for the delay on earlier bills, have expressed the belief the new bill will pass quickly.

DOWD OPPOSES CONTINUANCE IN BRIBERY CASE HEARINGS

A motion asking Circuit Judge J. Casey Walsh not to grant a continuance in pre-trial hearings for three police officers charged with bribery was filed today by Circuit Attorney Edward L. Dowd.

A hearing on the defense motions, which seek dismissal of the indictments and other relief, had been scheduled for today. Morris A. Shenker, defense attorney, yesterday requested a continuance to Feb. 3, saying he was too busy to appear in the case at this time.

In his motion, Dowd alleged Shenker's request for a continuance was "purely dilatory, and was made only for the purpose of avoiding trial."

The indicted officers, charged with accepting bribes from brothel operators, are Detective Capt. William Greenspan, Lt. F. Lyman Davis and Cpl. George R. Wood.

STASSEN WOULD GIVE EISENHOWER TO JULY TO DECIDE

President Should Not Be Hurried Into Re-election Stand, Aid Says Here.

Harold E. Stassen, special presidential assistant, said here today the Republican party and the public should be "cheerfully willing" to wait until next July, if necessary, for President Eisenhower to decide whether to seek re-election.

Stassen, who is in St. Louis to address a $100-a-plate Republican "Salute to Eisenhower" dinner at Hotel Sheraton-Jefferson tonight, told reporters at a press conference he does not think the President should be hurried, or that anyone should try to make the second-term decision for him.

"I am confident," the former Minnesota Governor said, "that when Mr. Eisenhower makes his decision, it will be based on what he concludes in his own mind is best for America."

July Soon Enough.

Stassen said he did not know when the President will make up his mind about seeking re-election, but asserted Mr. Eisenhower should have until next July, a month before the Republican national convention is held at San Francisco, to reach his decision if he wants to take that much time.

The presidential assistant added that if Mr. Eisenhower decides not to run, a month's time would be sufficient for the Republicans to pick another candidate to head the ticket in the November election.

Stassen, a candidate for the G.O.P. presidential nomination in 1948, and for a period in 1952 before joining the Eisenhower band wagon, conceded that if the President waits until next July to announce his plans, it would lessen the significance of various state G.O.P. preferential primaries.

He indicated he did not think Mr. Eisenhower would attempt to dictate whom the Republicans should nominate for President if he does not run. It was recalled that former President Truman said recently in St. Louis that he knew from experience that an incumbent President could control his party's presidential nomination, for himself or his successor.

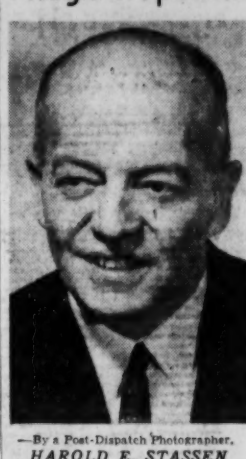

"Not True With Republicans."

"That may be true in the Democratic party because of its emphasis on machine politics," Stassen remarked. "But it is not true with the Republicans. Besides, I don't believe President Eisenhower thinks as Truman does."

Asked if he would run for President if Mr. Eisenhower does not, the Minnesotan said he would not care to speculate on anything of that nature. "We must act on the basis that the President will run," he added.

He minimized the President's health as a controlling factor in the second-term decision. Mr. Eisenhower has effectively and efficiently organized the duties of the presidency so that it no longer requires the "physical strain of handshaking and public appearances," he said. What the country needs is a President to "make the great decisions," he added.

Tonight's Speaker

By a Post-Dispatch Photographer, HAROLD E. STASSEN

Stassen, who is a special assistant on disarmament matters, declared he thought it was "foolish" of Truman, Adlai E. Stevenson and Gov. Averell Harriman to attempt "to raise a furor" over Secretary of State Dulles' "brink of war" statement as quoted in Life magazine.

"The important thing," he said, "is that the United States is now at peace. We were at war when the Eisenhower Administration took over, but we are at peace and our boys are home, in production or in school."

The criticism of Dulles, Stassen added, is "like criticizing the baseball player who won the game for the way he tied his shoelaces."

Address by Eisenhower.

A feature of the Republican fund-raising dinner here tonight will be a closed circuit television talk by President Eisenhower. The address is being carried to other "Salute to Eisenhower" dinners in major cities throughout the country.

Stassen's talk will be broadcast by Post-Dispatch radio station KSD, from 8:15 to 8:45 p.m.

Arthur K. Atkinson, general chairman of the dinner here, said about three-fourths of the tickets have been purchased at the full price of $100 each, and the other tickets will go to guests.

The guests will include faculty members of the political science departments and law schools of Washington and St. Louis universities. Atkinson, president of the Wabash Railroad, said the university faculty leaders were invited so they could observe first-hand the activities of one of the major political parties.

More than 50 other "Salute to Eisenhower" dinners will be held tonight in Missouri. Gov. Christian A. Hexter of Massachusetts will speak at a $100-a-plate dinner at Kansas City. Diners will pay $10 a plate at the other gatherings in Missouri, except at Joplin where the price is $20.

A drug store at 1800 Sidney street was robbed of $156 last night by an armed man who forced Carl Seidlitz, a pharmacist, to lie on the floor, Seidlitz reported. Seidlitz, who was alone, said the man, flourishing a revolver, took the money from a cash register.

An unestimated amount of currency was taken by an armed man from a cash register at the Chesterfield Liquor Store, 520 North Taylor avenue, Gabriel Jacquet, a clerk, reported. Jacquet said he had locked the store but opened up when the robber, a Negro, appeared at the door and said he wished to make a purchase. The robber then drew a revolver.

Store on South Grand Also Held Up — Armed Man Flees With $106.

A total of $1088 was stolen in a robbery at a tavern at 3733 North Broadway early today by two men who held up the bartender, James Brislane, after drinking and chatting at the bar for more than three hours, Brislane reported to police.

Brislane said the robbers came to the tavern about 10 p.m. and began drinking. They engaged him and his wife, Irene, in conversation and referred to each other as "Paul" and "Hank."

About 1:10 a.m. one of the men, saying "It is time, I warmed up the car," went outside and started the motor of an automobile parked in front. He remained outside several minutes.

When he returned, he drew a revolver and ordered Mr. and Mrs. Brislane to lie on the floor. His companion took $88 from a cash register and $1000 from a cigar box, Brislane said. Then, ran outside, got into the automobile and drove away.

Robert M. Walton, manager of the St. Louis Jewelry & Furniture Mart, 3863 South Grand boulevard, reported to police he was held up last night by an armed man who forced him to hand over $106 from a cash register.

The man, who was described as about 55 years old and with a heavy beard, forced Walton into the cashier's office where he pointed a revolver at Walton and Ardel Yergel, the cashier. He ran south on Grand to Keokuk street after obtaining the money.

Max Blum, 5820 Page boulevard, a salesman, reported he was held up last night in an elevator of a Pruitt housing project apartment building at 2433 O'Fallon street and robbed of his billfold containing $250. Blum, who had entered the building to make a collection, said two men jostled him as he entered the elevator and one drew a pistol.

TALKS DUE TO GO ON DESPITE BLAST BY CHINESE REDS

GENEVA, Jan. 20 (AP)—American diplomats here believe the five-month-old United States-Chinese negotiations will continue despite Peiping's sudden blast against the Western position.

These diplomats, it is understood, do not consider the bitter exchange this week between the United States and Chinese envoys will retard the talks or bring them out of their usual atmosphere of secrecy.

However, Chinese Ambassador Wang Ping-nan warned that unless speedy agreement is reached, he will continue to make public his version of developments in the talks.

Earlier this week Wang issued a 2500-word statement accusing the United States of blocking a Chinese-American agreement to settle their differences by peaceful means by insisting on American rights to defend Formosa for Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalists.

Johnson replied that Wang had distorted the facts. He expressed disappointment that the Communists had "again chosen to resort to propaganda."

MRS. SENTNER'S PETITION STUDIED BY 3 U.S. JUDGES

Communist's Wife Seeks to Lift Immigration Service Curbs on Her Travels.

A petition to restrain the United States Immigration Service from enforcing rules it has prescribed limiting movements of Mrs. Antonia Sentner, who has been declared an undesirable alien because of former membership in the Communist party, was taken under submission yesterday by three federal judges sitting en banc. Her petition also seeks to have the McCarran immigration act declared unconstitutional.

Mrs. Sentner's husband is William Sentner, labor leader and an avowed Communist, who has appealed a conviction for conspiring to advocate the overthrow of the government by force. She cannot be physically deported from the United States, the court was told, because immigration officials have been unable to find another country that will take her.

Deportation proceedings were started against her in 1949 and a formal order was issued by the service in 1953. Assistant United States Attorney W. Francis Murrell said. When no country could be found to take her, he added, she was placed under supervisory parole by the service Oct. 9, 1953.

Must Stay in Missouri.
Mrs. Sentner filed the injunction petition the day after she was placed on supervisory parole, contending that the conditions of the parole prohibited her from associating with members of her family by prohibiting her from associating with known Communists.

Murrell said this was not the Government's intention, so a new set of supervisory rules was issued last Monday omitting that section, but prohibiting travel outside the state of Missouri without prior permission from the service, and demanding that she report to the service periodically and under oath report her activities and conduct.

At this point, United States District Judge Roy W. Harper, one of the judges hearing the case and the judge who sentenced her husband and others, interrupted to say that from evidence taken at the Sentner trial it was evident that Sentner's work is primarily centered around Evansville, Ind.

Murrell replied that the rule limiting her travels was not unreasonable, because she seldom accompanied her husband on his business trips.

Sydney Berger of Evansville, attorney for Mrs. Sentner, told the court the only reason she was declared deportable by the Immigration Service was because she was a member of the Communist party from 1935 to 1938, more than 15 years ago. She was never charged with being a danger to the community or the country, Berger contended.

"Records show she is not a Communist at this time," he added.

Works in Hospital.
Mrs. Sentner, who is employed here as a nurse in a hospital, has three children, one married and the others in school, and three grandchildren. Berger said the restrictions placed on her work a hardship on her and her family.

He contended the McCarran act is unconstitutional because it delegates legislative authority to the Attorney General of the United States to set up rules and regulations governing the activities and conduct of persons declared to be undesirable aliens, such as Mrs. Sentner. Further, he said, it is not due process of law to threaten her with imprisonment if she associates with her husband.

This section of the McCarran Act is vague, Berger said. It stipulated that failure to obey reasonable restrictions set up by the Attorney General may be grounds for a felony conviction. There is no definition as to what is reasonable and what is not, he added.

"At her lawyer," he said, "I cannot advise her as to her conduct under the act or the supervisory order."

The other two judges who heard the case were United States District Judge George H. Moore and Judge Joseph W. Woodruff of the United States Court of Appeals. It was necessary for three judges to hear the proceedings because the question of the constitutionality of a federal law was raised in the petition.

MAN, 70, 'A LITTLE STIFF' AFTER HE RESISTS ROBBERS

Sidney Smith, 70 years old, said today he was "a little stiff and sore" after fighting off two men who attempted to rob him in front of his coal company office at 2903 Lambdin avenue last night.

Smith reported the robbers, both Negroes, accosted him as he walked toward his truck parked near the office. Both grabbed him and one drew a revolver. They attempted to drag him to a nearby alley.

"They probably could have overpowered me," Smith told a reporter, "but I took advantage of them when they seemed to be disconcerted by a faxial that slowed up in front. They relaxed their holds for a second and I broke loose and ran into the office."

MANAGEMENT TOLD TO ACT ON RETIREMENT PROBLEMS

Business management must assume some responsibilities in dealing with the growing problems of retirement or face the consequences, Anthony Salmons, director of St. Louis University's Adult Education Department, said last night at a meeting of the St. Louis branch of the National Office Management Association.

"By 1980," he told a dinner audience at the Coronado Hotel, "one half of our population will be 50 years old or older and will be able to form a solid bloc, powerful enough to pass legislation harmful to employers if these employers do not take on some responsibilities of retirement now."

"The problem for management," he continued, "is to make the opportunity of retirement real; to make it purposeful and rewarding to conserve and increase the intangible value of the millions invested in industrial retirement programs."

WOMAN SAYS SHE SAW FUGITIVE KILLER AT HOTEL

Claims Man Who Fleed Indiana Jail Was in Place on Washington Avenue.

A St. Louis waitress who said she was well acquainted with Leslie Irvin, escaped Indiana murderer, told police today she saw him about 5:30 p.m. yesterday at the Milner Hotel, 1734 Washington avenue, where she is employed.

He was standing just inside the door with his hands in his pockets, but did not see her, she said. Just as she recognized him, another man rushed out of the cafeteria, grabbed him by the arm and they left.

The waitress, Mrs. Ruth Patton, said she knew Irvin as a regular customer of a Louisville (Ky.) restaurant where she worked until the spring of 1954, and knew also that he had been sentenced to death in Indiana.

Irvin did not know she was working at the Milner, she said, but she was so frightened at seeing him that she remained locked in her room all evening. It was there that she read of his escape.

A waitress in a restaurant at Lindbergh boulevard and Clayton road said a man of his description, with a "wild look," stopped there about 7 o'clock, told her, "You look at me as if you think I'm a convict," then hurried away.

A man of the same description and driving the same kind of automobile was reported seen by a waitress at Rola, Mo., about midnight.

The waitress notified police only after seeing a newspaper photograph of the man. He is 31 years old, 5 feet 11 inches tall, weighs 200 pounds and has dark brown wavy hair and brown eyes.

Persons at Watseka, Ill., and Vandalia, O., also reported they thought they had seen the man last night or early today.

Irvin has been sentenced to death for one murder and indicted in five others, all involving robbery. He escaped from jail at Princeton, Ind., Wednesday night, after either unlocking or picking the locks of four doors.

The prosecutor who obtained the death sentence for Irvin armed himself with a pistol, and witnesses in the case were given guards.

QUIET ON QUEMOY AFTER HEAVIEST SHELLING BY REDS

TAIPEI, Formosa, Jan. 20 (AP)—All was reported quiet across the Formosa strait today after Thursday's bombardment by the Chinese Reds—2943 shells at Quemoy and adjacent Nationalist islands.

The bombardment was the biggest since Sept. 3, 1954, when the Reds pounded the area with 6000 shells.

Nationalist officials said a few soldiers were wounded in the latest attack. The general impression here is that the firing was inspired more by political than military reasons.

(The United Press said the Nationalists announced that 35 civilians were killed and 324 homes wrecked by the Red shelling. The Nationalists said they blew up a Communist arsenal near Amoy in the exchange of fire.)

have put it that way for publication.

Jenner Critical.

While most Senate Republicans rallied to the support of the Life article, one Senator, Jenner of Indiana, criticized him in the Senate yesterday for what Jenner called a "soft policy" toward Russian expansion.

Senator Sparkman (Dem.), Alabama, suggested to reporters that President Eisenhower—who at a news conference expressed complete faith in Dulles—should read the Life article. Mr. Eisenhower said he hadn't read it.

Mansfield, in his Senate speech, said this country must revise its foreign policy to meet a Soviet diplomatic offensive already in "high gear" or face the loss of "countless millions of our citizens and hundreds of billions of dollars."

Mansfield said "the wheels of review" of American foreign policy "have begun to turn both here and abroad" as a result of the magazine article.

"It is long past due," he declared. "For three years we have lived on borrowed time in foreign relations."

"I have failed to find one major new approach to the situation abroad in the last few years," Mansfield said.

Advertising Gimmicks.

There are, he said, "advertising gimmicks; there are new words; there are louder words; which fewer and fewer people heed."

But these gimmicks and words, he said, add up to the continuance of policies devised long before the Eisenhower Administration took office, and they are now "dressed up in the diplomacy of the brink."

Mansfield said he did not doubt Dulles' "honorable intentions," but that he should have used means other than a magazine article to "lay before the country and the world an accurate picture of the inner workings of our foreign policy."

He said past policies, inaugurated under Democratic administrations were "bold, intelligent and effective," in stemming the tide of Soviet advance toward the Middle East and in western Europe. "But in many parts of the world the situation has changed."

"A Soviet diplomatic offensive, spearheaded by Messrs. Khrushchev and Bulganin is in high gear in Asia and has jumped the wall of containment in the Middle East," Mansfield declared.

'Africa in Turmoil.'

"The German and Japanese situations are in a perceptible transition, North Africa is in turmoil and the repercussions push France closer to political disaster. Western Europe, groping toward unity, is in a decisive struggle at this moment with its inner forces of disunity.

Nothing, he said, is settled in Korea and "the off-shore islands may yet lead us into a military involvement with Communist China if not to World War III itself." And "the danger of a catastrophe in Indochina" has not yet passed.

He added that Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway's Saturday Evening Post article "has raised questions involving the capacity of our armed forces to meet the commitments already undertaken, and 'these questions, too, will need to be examined.'"

It doesn't help matters, he said, for President Eisenhower to "issue disclaimers after the words of his subordinates, civilian and military alike have done the damage."

Senator George (Dem.), Georgia, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, endorsed Mansfield's proposal for a review of international policies.

George said in an interview he regards Mansfield's summary of world conditions as "sober and dispassionate."

Langer vs. Jenner.

Meanwhile, Dulles has a new champion in Senator Langer (Rep.), North Dakota, who frequently votes against Administration foreign policy proposals.

Langer arose in the Senate yesterday to champion Dulles after Jenner said in a lengthy speech that although this is an election year, "I recognize no slightest obligation to support a catastrophic foreign policy because my party is in power."

Jenner contended this country has let the anti-Communist nations down, and agreed at Geneva to an atomic cease-fire which he said "told Soviet leaders that they could subvert or attack small nations with impunity."

'Twin' to Acheson.

Three years ago, Jenner said, the voters repudiated Dean Acheson, Secretary of State under President Truman, and now they have an "identical twin" in Secretary Dulles.

Jenner said "our foreign policy has collapsed" and "failure in foreign policy is as disastrous to our country as defeat in war."

Langer said that if Jenner had been a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, and had heard Dulles testify, "I don't think he would have made that speech."

Mr. Eisenhower and Dulles, Langer told the Senate, "have kept this country out of war" and "all over this country there is a feeling we will not be brought into war."

He said Dulles "has not let England, France, or any other country dictate to the United States of America."

Senator Wiley (Rep.), Wisconsin, told a reporter that "when all the tumult and the shouting dies, one fact stands out: Because of President Eisenhower and Secretary Dulles, the country is at peace."

On the other hand, Senator

Morse (Dem.), Oregon, said developments in the controversy "demonstrate the need for a new Secretary of State."

POLITICS PLAYED
JURORS BELIEVE

Justice Department, not members of the jury.

Some of the witnesses before the grand jury have been prominent individuals who held high posts in the previous administration.

A man with a high post in the Eisenhower Administration recently told the Post-Dispatch in Washington: "It is not fair to keep a man or his past actions as a Government official constantly before a grand jury, as has been done by the St. Louis and other grand juries looking into the tax scandals."

The official, taking the same position as members of the incensed grand jury here, said the Government had all the necessary investigative and prosecutive machinery to determine quickly whether to indict any person involved.

Judge's Statement.

In a statement made in court last November, Judge Moore indicated he was not entirely pleased with the handling of the inquiry at the present time.

He said: "The grand jury has been working hard. I have hopes they are getting to the bottom of the situation, and something may come out."

"This court has been trying for five or six years—I can say very ineffectively—to have this situation in the Internal Revenue Bureau cleared up."

Hearings are scheduled for Jan. 27 in federal court on any defense motions filed in behalf of Connelly, former appointments secretary to President Truman; Caudle, former head of the Justice Department's tax division, and Schwimmer, an attorney from Kansas City and now a Puerto Rico business man.

A motion asking that Caudle's case be transferred to another federal judicial district on the ground he could not get a fair and impartial trial here was filed today by his attorney.

Caudle, who has four other defense motions on file, alleged the publicity given by newspapers, radio and television stations to the tax scandal inquiry would influence prospective jurors.

patent a claim an applicant must show he has made a valid discovery and has done $500 worth of development work on the claim. Once this is shown, he said, the department has no alternative under the law but to grant the patent.

A "valid discovery," Shafer said, has been defined by the courts as a finding of minerals "under such circumstances and of such character that a reasonably prudent man, not necessarily a skilled miner, would be justified in expending time and money developing a claim, with the reasonable expectation of finding ore in paying quantities."

Staff Engineer Heard.

The committee recessed yesterday after hearing George B. Holderer, a staff engineer, testify that in his opinion the Sarena properties "could not be operated profitably with values less than $20 per ton."

Assay results from 142 samples taken from the claims at varying times, he said, ranged from $7.70 a ton to zero.

"The property certainly could not be operated now at a profit, nor do I believe that it could ever have been operated at a profit, even in the days when labor was said to be $4.70 per shift, which it has not been for many years," he said.

Holderer, who formerly worked for the War Production Board and the Defense Minerals Production Administration, said he has been "connected with almost every phase of mining over a period of 50 years."

Basis of Estimates.

He based his estimates as to worth of the Sarena properties, he said, on a study of a 1940 application to the Reconstruction Finance Corp. by Al Sarena Corp. for a $51,000 loan which was subsequently denied.

Under questioning by Republicans, he said the company which sought that loan and later applied for a $20,000 loan, also denied, was not the Al Sarena Mines, Inc., an Oregon corporation, which subsequently obtained patent to the lands. He said the former was a Delaware corporation which had leased the properties from the Oregon firm.

He said he felt justified in using its application as a basis of judgment because the properties were identical.

DOUGLAS ASSAILS
NATURAL GAS BILL

under a mass of paperwork, Douglas suggested exempting from regulation and "red tape" the 5360 small producers who sell less than two billion cubic feet of gas a year to pipelines.

This would lighten the FPC's administrative work but at the same time keep the 190 producers who sell 90 per cent of the gas to the pipelines under regulation. Consumers would be adequately protected under such a system, Douglas said.

'Ridiculous Argument.'

"The argument that the FPC could protect the consumer by granting the producer the 'reasonable market price,' is ridiculous," Douglas went on. "The market price would be fixed under quasi-monopolistic conditions. The actual field prices under this rule would be taken to determine what the reasonable field prices should be."

Douglas has stated this thesis more succinctly as meaning all the traffic will bear.

The FPC, Douglas said, should guarantee producers a fair rate of return on their actual investment and this should be higher than that permitted for the electrical industry because of the risk involved in operations such as exploration.

Senator Charles Potter (Rep.), Michigan, yesterday charged the Democratic leadership in the Senate of sponsoring a "give-away" which would add $40 to $50 a year to the bills of natural gas consumers.

The measure has strong Republican backing but the driving force behind it in the Senate is Majority Leader Lyndon B. Johnson (Dem.), Texas.

In hurling the "give-away" charge, Potter appropriated a term which the Democrats have consistently reserved to themselves to describe what they regard as the open-handed policy of the Eisenhower Administration toward "special interests."

Potter noted this by chiding the Democrats for calling the Republican party the party of "big business" and then bringing to the floor a bill which, he said, "does nothing but give special treatment to a special segment of big business."

Potter told his colleagues in his long speech that the Fulbright measure would effectively destroy any control over the price of natural gas. The captive consumers who are tied to the pipelines which bring gas into their homes would be at the mercy of the producers, he added.

He described his estimate of a $40 to $50 increase in consumers' gas bills as a result of the legislation as conservative. He said the price of gas in the field would certainly rise at least 5 cents a thousand cubic feet.

"It is ironic," Potter said, "that the United States Senate is occupied with this giveaway program for the benefit of a small special-interest group when the President's legislative program on education, highways, agriculture and the aging deserves immediate attention."

IN WELLSTON IS FINED

Quentin Stewart, of the 6300 block of Julian avenue, Wellston, was fined $200 and sentenced to a year in jail today after he pleaded guilty of contributing to the delinquency of a minor. The jail sentence was suspended by Magistrate Raymond I. Harris in Clayton on payment of the fine and court costs.

Stewart was charged with inducing a 15-year-old nephew to steal an automobile license plate. Subsequent investigations of Stewart, his activities and his associations led to the investigation of the Wellston police department. Stewart is also under indictment on a charge of receiving stolen property.

ELECTRIC SIGNALS
FOR 5 INTERSECTIONS

Authorized in Series of Traffic Measures Acted on by Aldermen.

Electric signals were authorized at five more intersections in a series of traffic regulation measures acted on by the Board of Aldermen today.

They will be at Cates avenue and Union boulevard, Easton and Euclid avenues, Easton and Taylor avenues, Eighth street and Franklin avenue and Franklin and Jefferson avenues.

Four thoroughfares were designated as major streets in other ordinances which made permanent these designations established by Traffic Commissioner Charles G. Gontier earlier under his temporary powers.

They are Virginia avenue from Wilmington avenue south to the city limits, Michigan avenue south from Bates street to the city limits, Pennsylvania avenue south from Maeder street to the city limits, and Lillian avenue from Union west to the city limits.

The board enacted a bill permitting 45-degree angle parking on Lindell boulevard and Maryland and Newstead avenues in the vicinity of St. Louis Cathedral on Sundays from 6 a.m. to 1 p.m. Similar parking is authorized in another bill on the west side of Skinker boulevard between Alexander and Paquiere drives Saturdays and Sundays from 6 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Parking will be prohibited at all times on the south side of Lindell between Union and Kingshighway and on the north side of Lindell between West Pine drive and Union from 4 to 6 p.m. under another ordinance.

A half-block section of Maffitt avenue from Clara avenue west to the western boundary of St. Edward's School will be closed to traffic from 7:30 to 9 a.m. and from noon to 1:30 p.m. weekdays under a bill passed at the request of Alderman Alfred I. Harris. Harris said several children had been killed by automobiles in this recent months.

WOMAN BURNED TO DEATH STARTING COAL STOVE FIRE

Mrs. Will Nunley, 4362 Easton avenue, was burned to death in her home today when she attempted to start a fire in a coal stove.

Police said Mrs. Nunley, a Negro, apparently suffered a dizzy spell and fell against the stove, causing her clothes to become ignited. She had been subject to such spells, her husband told police. She was 62 years old.

TWAIN HIGHWAY TO BE 8 LANES IN PART OF CITY

Plan Changed Because 6 Lanes in Other Cities Have Proved Inadequate.

The State Highway Department has revised the design of the Mark Twain Expressway, which is to be eight lanes wide instead of six in north St. Louis.

This was disclosed last night when the City Plan Commission announced its approval of the change.

The expressway, on which construction is to begin in a few months, will be a 20-mile highway extending from downtown St. Louis past the municipal airport to the Missouri river at St. Charles. Original plans called for six lanes all the way, with the expressway to be divided into three lanes for eastbound and three for westbound traffic by a curb barrier in the city and by a strip of grass in the country.

6 Lanes Inadequate. Because other cities have found that six-lane highways soon become inadequate, the Highway Department has decided it will be advisable to provide two additional lanes for that part of the expressway where the heaviest volume of traffic is expected.

The eight-lane section will extend from O'Fallon street to Union boulevard, a distance of slightly more than four miles.

The two center lanes of the widened expressway will be reversible so that the highway can be divided into a five-lane and a three-lane section. During the morning rush, the five southernmost lanes will carry inbound automobiles, and during the evening rush outbound traffic will use the five northernmost lanes. The two center lanes will be flanked by 20-foot divider strips.

The change in width will add 15 or 20 per cent to construction cost of this section, but will mean only a small increase in cost of right-of-way. The state and federal governments finance construction, while the city pays one-half of the right-of-way cost.

The eight-mile stretch of the expressway in the city was to cost $37,400,000 as an artery of six lanes, and the city's right-of-way share was estimated at $6,000,000. It is believed that the $6,000,000 sum, to be provided through the 1955 city bond issue, will be sufficient to take care of the additional right-of-way expense.

The Highway Department now is buying up property for two other expressways—Daniel Boone and Ozark. The Boone artery will be only four lanes wide in the initial stage, but will be designed for ultimate widening to six lanes. Ozark will be a six-lane highway.

The Plan Commission will ask the Missouri Highway Commission to approve three more expressways to complete a circle around the downtown business district. These would be supplemental routes for inclusion in the state highway system.

Routes of Highways.

One would be a north-south expressway extending from the Ozark artery along Eighteenth street. It would cross the Mill Creek valley railroad tracks near Mississippi avenue, and proceed northward between Twenty-first and Twenty-second streets to Washington avenue, thence northeastward to Twentieth street at Franklins avenue. Then it would parallel Twentieth to North Florissant avenue, where it would turn eastward, paralleling Buchanan to an intersection with the Twain Expressway.

The second supplemental route would extend the Boone highway from its initial terminus at Eleventh street eastward along Clark avenue to join the Third Street Highway on the riverfront.

The third route would provide an elevated expressway down the south side of Cole street from Twentieth to a junction with the Twain Expressway at Third street.

Off-Street Parking.

A proposal to provide off-street parking in the Cherokee street business district was approved by the commission.

William Colbion, director of planning, reported the plan, which was developed by the commission staff at the request of the Cherokee Business Men's Association, would provide 2215 parking spaces in the rear of stores on both the north and south sides of Cherokee, from Nebraska avenue to South Jefferson avenue.

To implement the proposal it would be necessary to close Texas, Iowa and Oregon avenues where they intersect with Cherokee, Colbion said. The plan provides for planting shrubbery between the parking lots and adjacent residential property.

Financing Not Considered.

The question of how the parking facilities would be paid for was not considered in drafting the plan, Colbion said, because it was not within the purview of the commission to recommend a method in this instance.

The plan has been presented to the Mayor's off-street parking committee for study and will be presented to the Cherokee Association next week.

The commission also voted approval of a site at the northeast corner of North Jefferson and Cass avenues for a city health center. The center, which would have a floor space of 20,000 square feet, was approved by voters in the 1955 bond issue.

Saul A. DuRoi, city real estate dealer, was re-elected chairman of the commission. Also re-elected were Arthur Schwarz, an architect, vice chairman, and Miss Nell Geders, secretary.

BIG-STORE SALES IN DOLLARS RISE 11 PCT. FOR WEEK

St. Louis area department store sales rose 11 per cent in dollar volume last week compared with the corresponding week a year ago, the Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis reported today.

For the four-week period ended last Saturday, St. Louis store sales increased 14 per cent over those of the corresponding period in 1955.

Dollar volume of sales increased 11 per cent in the Eighth Federal Reserve District as a whole last week over the similar period a year ago and were 13 per cent higher in the four weeks ended Saturday over a year ago.

Nationally, department stores reported a 5 per cent increase last week compared with sales in the corresponding week of 1955.

REDS MIGHT WIN WEAPONS RACE, RADFORD WARNS

He Questions Americans' Belief That We Can Do Everything Better Than Others.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20 (AP)—Adm. Arthur Radford said today that Russian concentration on technological skills raises "the grave possibility that the Soviets could develop in some particular field a weapon more radically advanced than we have."

The chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff said this possibility makes the continuous flow of superior weapons to American military forces "a tremendous challenge."

Radford, who returned yesterday from a round-the-world trip of inspections and conferences, gave his views in an address to the Women's Forum on National Security.

He said there seems to be a belief that we can do everything better than everyone else, adding that "we propagandize ourselves in this belief in all sorts of media—advertising month after month that our products are the best and the finest."

For those who subscribe to such beliefs Radford cited "the recent Soviet advances in the development of modern long-range bombers, submarines, jet engines and nuclear weapons."

On that basis he said he sees "no rational grounds to presuppose that American defense technology is invincible." The capabilities of all elements of a rounded defense force must be increased as a deterrent to various forms of aggression, Radford said. In the air he particularized:

"Keeping ourselves the foremost air power in the world does not envisage, nor require, the greatest number of airplanes. But it does envisage and require the greatest airplanes in quality, the best aircraft carriers, the most efficient guided missiles, the finest crews, and a comprehensive system of bases."

By the United Press
Radford said that wherever he went on his 34,000-mile world tour he found allies concerned that this nation might waver and not carry out our long term commitments. The Communists bank on this loss of determination, he said.

He said there was no reason for alarm but ample reason to be concerned over the next 10 years as Communist tactics shift over the whole range of military, cultural, economic, diplomatic and technical offensives.

WORKER KILLED IN 10-FOOT FALL ON CONSTRUCTION JOB

Lawrence E. O'Hara, 1524 Arlington avenue, a laborer employed by a plumbing firm on a job at Glendale Lutheran Church, 1300 North Sappington road, was killed today when he fell 10 feet from the foundation wall of a church addition under construction.

Police were told O'Hara was trying to bend a reinforcing rod projecting from the top of the wall and that the rod snapped, causing him to lose his balance.

O'Hara, 48 years old, was pronounced dead of head injuries at St. Louis County Hospital.

CITIZENS TRAFFIC ADVISORY COUNCIL GRANTED CHARTER

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 20—The Citizens Traffic Advisory Council of Greater St. Louis, formed at the direction of Mayor Raymond R. Tucker of St. Louis to reduce truck noises in the city was granted a charter yesterday by the Secretary of State's office.

Articles of incorporation state that the purpose of the organization is to improve traffic conditions in the St. Louis area, assemble data and keep the public advised as to the need of traffic control and to co-operate with traffic officials in safety programs. President of the group is Austin C. Kneisger, an attorney.

CASHIER, ROBBED BEFORE, SEIZES 2 TRYING HOLDUP

Locks One Man in Bank Vault, Disarms Other as Police Arrive — Loot Was $7850.

SWANSEA, S.C., Jan. 20 (UP)—A bank cashier, victim of a $12,147 robbery last April 27, was credited today with capturing almost single-handed two young men who tried to rob him of $7850.

The two robbers forced the cashier, Francis Knotts, to drive them to the bank where he worked. But when police arrived shortly thereafter to answer an alarm, Knotts had left little for the officers to do.

The cashier locked one robber in the vault and wrestled the other one to the bank floor without a shot.

Citizens Worked Together. Citizens co-operated with fast foot and head work to avert the robbery before the robbers could get out of the building with the $7850 they collected.

Both robbers were jailed on charges of kidnaping, bank robbery and armed robbery. They were identified as J. R. Freeman, 23 years old, a recently discharged soldier, and J. W. Jackson, 26, who still is in the Army at Fort Jackson, S.C. Both live in Columbia, 20 miles to the north.

Knotts was "suspicious from the start" when the two young men came to his home yesterday at 8:30 a.m. and asked for him.

"They walked up the steps with guns in hand and told me to 'step back' in the house and I did," Knotts said.

The robbers made him drive to the bank where another employee, Miss Verna Brooker, was on duty.

"Plenty Scared." "I told them I had been robbed once before and did not think I could go through it again. I was plenty scared," the cashier said.

Scared or not he didn't lose his head. The two men forced Knotts and Miss Brooker to wait on customers while they kept their pistols hidden until the vault opened automatically at 9:05.

One robber went into the cage with Knotts after the vault opened, and after surrendering the money, the cashier casually strolled out of the vault and shut the cage door behind him. It locked.

Two customers, meanwhile, had become suspicious and placed a call to Sheriff H. M. Caughman at Lexington. Other citizens surrounded the bank pending the arrival of officers.

As the sheriff arrived with his deputies, Knotts saw a chance to grab the other robber from behind before he could pull a pistol from his coat pocket. The one in the vault surrendered without a struggle.

EISENHOWER'S ECONOMIC MESSAGE TO BE DELAYED

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20 (AP)—The White House announced yesterday that President Eisenhower's economic report will go to Congress at least a day later than had been planned.

The original date picked for delivery of the report was next Monday, James C. Hagerty, presidential press secretary, said the document will not be ready then and that the new target date is Tuesday. He added it was still uncertain the report will be ready even then.

MRS. VIRGINIA GARDNER IS GRANTED A DIVORCE

Mrs. Virginia Scripps Gardner, 20 Brae Burn drive, Ladue, obtained a divorce today from John Ridgley Gardner in the court of Circuit Judge Douglas L. C. Jones at Clayton. Gardner is a partner in the investment brokerage firm of Reinholdt & Gardner.

Mrs. Gardner testified she and Gardner were married in St. Louis county in September 1949 and separated last Dec. 10. She alleged general indignities. Gardner filed a general denial of the allegations but did not contest the divorce.

Under a stipulation Mrs. Gardner received custody of their two children and $200 monthly for their support. Gardner also agreed to pay the children's medical and hospital expenses and for their education.

ALABAMA MOVE ADOPTED TO KEEP SEGREGATION

LEGISLATOR SAYS G.O.P. NEEDS NEW STATE LEADERS

Senate Approves House-Passed Resolution
'Nullifying' U.S.
Court Rulings.

Feuding Seriously
Weakening Party in Missouri, Samuel
Murphy Declares.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Jan. 20 (AP)—The Alabama Senate yesterday shouted its approval of a House-passed "nullification" resolution declaring the United States Supreme Court anti-segregation rulings "of no effect" in Alabama.

The resolution was passed by voice vote shortly after Gov. James E. Folsom used Robert E. Lee's birthday as an occasion to denounce legislative foes who he said raised the race issue to block reapportionment.

He likened the position of Democrats in Alabama to that of Jackson and Jefferson when they had to face "name-calling" by the Whigs of their day.

Folsom made reference to "Old Calhoun of South Carolina (John C. Calhoun, champion of nullification in pre-Civil war days) who he said once tried "to hog-tie democracy" but was licked by "that Old Hickory Andy Jackson of Tennessee."

The nullification resolution which swept through the House of Representatives Tuesday with but four dissenting votes is similar to resolutions proposed in Georgia, Mississippi and Virginia.

It is part of a process known as interposition whereby the states demand that Congress submit a proposed amendment to the United States Constitution clarifying the rights of states in certain matters.

The resolution says that the United States Constitution was formed by the "sanction of several states" and contends that "there can be no tribunal above their authority to decide whether the compact made by them be violated."

While the Supreme Court has decreed that the states ceded their powers to maintain racial segregation to public institutions when the Fourteenth Amendment was adopted in 1868, the resolution says Alabama, for its part, never surrendered this right.

Since it was offered as a joint resolution requiring action by both House and Senate, the resolution must go to Folsom for his action.

Compromise Interposition Plan in Virginia Senate.

RICHMOND, Va., Jan. 20 (AP)—A compromise plan of interposition was introduced in the Virginia Senate yesterday. It offered a critical challenge to the United States Supreme Court's authority on school segregation but was shorn of earlier defiant threats of state stand-pattism.

The carefully rewritten Senate resolution was offered shortly before Gov. Thomas B. Stanley signed into law a bill calling a state constitutional convention for March 5 and proclaiming Feb. 21 as the date for electing 40 delegates.

Voters earlier this month approved by more than two to one the call of the convention to permit the use of state funds for private school tuition grants as an escape hatch from any enforced integration.

U.N. DISARMAMENT GROUP TO PLAN BIG POWER TALKS

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Jan. 20 (AP)—The United Nations Disarmament Commission will meet Monday to set up new big-power talks on arms reduction, nuclear weapons control and proposals such as President Eisenhower's idea to exchange air and ground inspection with Soviet Russia as a disarmament starter.

The closed-door talks by the disarmament subcommittee probably will be scheduled for late February in London. The last General Assembly urged the talks in a new effort to cut armaments, defense costs and nuclear weapons dangers. The United States, Britain, France, Russia and Canada make up the subcommittee.

MOSLEY SEEKING REHEARING FROM SUPREME COURT

County Sheriff Asks State Tribunal to Reconsider Decision Ousting Him.

By BOYD F. CARROLL
Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 20.—A motion for a rehearing of the decision of the Missouri Supreme Court finding Sheriff Arthur C. Mosley of St. Louis county guilty of two charges and ordering his ouster from office was filed today with the court by his counsel.

In the normal course, the rehearing motion would be disposed of at the next conference on opinions, which is scheduled for Feb. 13. If the motion were overruled, it is considered likely, on the basis of past practice, that the court would wait for a week or two before issuing the writ of ouster. However, there is no statute or rule requiring such a wait.

Mosley was found guilty of permitting carnival gambling in the county and of demanding a share in a reward given two of his deputies for the recovery of some hijacked whisky. In finding him guilty, the court said Mosley had been a usurper in office since the acts complained of and his ouster "must go as a matter of course."

Beyond Recommendation.

Mosley's lawyers asserted this language shows the court has disavowed its discretion in fixing the penalty for the offense. The court's penalty went beyond that recommended by Special Commissioner William H. Becker of Columbia. Becker had recommended a fine of $500, a reprimand on two of the 10 counts and an obligation on Mosley to bear half the court costs.

"Never before in its history," the motion stated, "has this court abdicated, surrendered or denied its discretionary power with respect to the remedy or punishment it may order in a quo warrant proceeding." Continuing, it said that if the court intended to overrule previous decisions establishing this discretionary power, it should do so "advisedly and expressly."

After asserting the decision infringed certain rights of Mosley under the Fifth and Fourteenth Amendments, the motion argued that Missouri law does not require forfeiture of office for "mere failure to enforce the criminal law of the state." The motion declared the law requires that the officer shall have "knowingly and willfully" so failed.

Cites Carnival Code.

In this respect, the petition said that a carnival code for games of chance had been formulated by a circuit court grand jury and had received the approval of the prosecuting attorney, churches, persons and organizations of unquestioned good intent "as a code of games legally and morally permissible."

Those games, which Mosley was found guilty of permitting, could easily have appeared lawful to a peace officer in view of the code, the motion said.

Objection also was made in the motion to the fact that when the case was argued before the court a year ago, the bench was occupied by the full complement of seven judges and Judge Nick T. Cave of the Kansas City Court of Appeals.

When the opinion was handed down last Jan. 9, it was concurred in by five of the regular judges and by Cave. One regular judge who heard the arguments had died and another had retired. The motion argued for a rehearing on the ground the question should be decided by the full membership of the court.

ILLINOIS TERMINAL BRIDGE EARNINGS CITED AT HEARING

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Jan. 20.—Automobile tolls on McKinley Bridge kept the Illinois Terminal Railroad Co. from going in the red on its operations for the first 11 months of 1955, a witness testified yesterday before the Illinois Commerce Commission.

Edgar L. Peck, a commission accountant, said even with the $470,000 net income from the company-owned bridge, the railroad's total net income was only $36,100 after payment of $532,000 interest on railroad bonds and equipment notes.

The company's request for abandonment of all passenger service was again taken under advisement by the commission. The regulatory body had reopened the case last December on the request of the city of Edwardsville, which had asked for evidence on the company's total financial condition. All but four passenger trains daily between St. Louis and Springfield have been abandoned.

SOUTHEAST ASIA DEFENSE ADVISERS REPORT PROGRESS

MELBOURNE, Australia, Jan. 20 (AP)—Adm. Felix B. Stump said today the first meeting of the Southeast Asia Collective Defense Treaty military advisers had made "important progress" in development of the organization as a weapon for peace. The advisers wound up their first talks today.

Stump, United States commander in chief in the Pacific, and the military experts from Britain, New Zealand, Pakistan, Thailand, France and the Philippines will sign their report tomorrow.

United States, Australian and New Zealand experts will discuss here, beginning Monday, problems arising in their separate alliance, known as ANZUS.

REALTY BOARD OFFICERS CALLED BY GRAND JURY

Member Says Panel Wants to Know What Is Being Done to Protect Public.

Ray Dolan, chairman of the Missouri Real Estate Commission, and Clarence C. Lang, executive secretary of the St. Louis Real Estate Board, were subpoenaed today to appear before the circuit court grand jury next week.

Also subpoenaed was William C. Rosenbaum of the Better Business Bureau. Jury members said they wanted to know "what is being done to protect the public from future Viola cases."

Joseph Viola, former real estate dealer to whom the jury referred, was at liberty on bond following his arrest last night on a "stealing" charge growing out of a complaint by a University City pair that he failed to return $6200 they gave him in a mortgage.

Viola was arrested at his home, 5962 Hilgard place, on order of Assistant Circuit Attorney Eugene P. Freeman. Viola's bail was furnished by a professional bondsman. The bond was made returnable Jan. 31 in Court of Criminal Correction.

The mixed-up affairs of Viola, who is reported to owe 20 creditors about $100,000, have been under investigation recently by the circuit court grand jury.

The University City complainants are Mr. and Mrs. Frank S. Boveri, 7330 Dartmouth avenue, who said Viola "refunded" their money with a check which was returned by his bank marked "insufficient funds."

Freeman said the charge on which Viola was arrested was under the new statute passed by the 1955 Missouri Legislature, repealing a large number of larceny, embezzlement and related statutes and substituting one on "stealing."

Another real estate dealer whose affairs are under investigation, Thomas G. Gilpin, failed to appear yesterday at a receivership hearing in Circuit Judge Waldo C. Mayfield's court.

The hearing was continued until next week after Gilpin's attorney, on demand of the court, produced a physician's certificate that Gilpin was confined to bed with a respiratory infection.

Split by Chain Reaction.
LOS ANGELES, Jan. 20 (AP)—A woman obtained a divorce yesterday after testifying her husband's hunt for uranium caused a chain reaction that split them apart. Mrs. Catherine Kerasiotis said her husband Peter went uranium hunting last spring and she did not see him again until August when he returned — empty handed.

NEW CONSTITUTION IN EGYPT DRAWS FEMINIST'S FIRE

CAIRO, Jan. 20 (AP)—Egypt's leading feminist, Dr. Dorla Shafik, complained today that Egypt's new constitution "grants women no rights whatsoever, even though I was given a written promise these rights would be included."

Dr. Shafik, who leads the Daughters of the Nile organization, told a reporter the promise was made in March 1954, after she and other women engaged in a protracted hunger strike.

Women paraded before the presidency yesterday with banners to thank Premier Gamal Abdel Nasser for "granting women's rights in the constitution," published Monday. Dr. Shafik disavowed this group.

Two articles in the constitution provide for "protection of motherhood" and means for reconciling women's "family duties with public responsibilities."

The newspaper Akhbar El Yom said these articles give women the right to vote but not to hold office. Others say the vote will be voluntary for women and compulsory for men.

The electoral law has still to be published, however.

POLICEMEN FOIL TWO BURGLARIES, ARREST FOUR MEN

Last night was a bad one for St. Louis burglars. Four were arrested by alert police officers in two attempted burglaries.

Two men touched off an alarm when they entered a window of a grocery at 2138 Carr street at 2:50 a.m. today. Two detectives saw them as they ran out with $40 taken from a cash register and caught them after a short chase.

They identified themselves as Melvin Tapp, living in the 2900 block of Sheridan avenue, and John Ross, 2800 block of Cass avenue. The men are Negroes. Police said Tapp admitted they broke in two business places earlier and stole a total of $6.

About one hour later a passerby saw two men break into the Advance Vending Co., 4665 Page boulevard, and called police. The men, who were inside when police arrived, identified themselves as Carvin D. Sharp and Ronald R. McHale, both living in the 1900 block of Dodder street. Police said they had a number of burglary tools with them.

NEWSPRINT CONSUMPTION IN U.S. UP 7.7 PCT. IN 1955

NEW YORK, Jan. 20 (UPI)—The American Newspaper Publishers Association said yesterday that the total estimated domestic newsprint consumption in 1955 was 6,638,149 tons, the largest in history.

The total compared with 6,162,761 tons in 1954 and 6,142,897 tons in 1953. Newsprint consumption in 1955 thus increased 7.7 per cent over 1954 and 8.1 over 1953.

The association also reported that stocks of newsprint on hand and in transit at the end of December were 34 days' supply for the average of all daily newspapers reporting to the association. There were 39 days' supply on hand and in transit a year earlier.

HARRIMAN SAYS EISENHOWER IS BIGGEST DODGER

Asserts President Has Attitude of Buck-Passing That Is 'Very Alarming One.'

By EDWARD A. HARRIS
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch
LOS ANGELES, Jan. 20 —
Gov. Averell Harriman of New York today called President Eisenhower "the biggest dodger of any President we've ever had."

He made the sharp statement at a press conference, but a few moments later amended it to say "in recent times." He made it: "within my memory."
He explained he was using "dodger" in the sense of a buck-passer.

The attack on Mr. Eisenhower was touched off by a discussion of the strength of the armed forces and the capacity of this nation to deal with any eventuality. Harriman said that Mr. Eisenhower had given the people of this country and many parts of the world a feeling of false security when he indicated the first Geneva Conference had ended the cold war.

The world accepted Mr. Eisenhower's analysis of the situation, and as a result of his "tragic mistake" the Communists were able to make perilous gains, he said.

"Alarming" Attitude.
It was here that Harriman was asked to comment on Mr.
Eisenhower's action recently in referring to the Pentagon queries about charges that the Army was being curtailed and scuttled by cutbacks. The specific reference was to such allegations made by Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, former Army Chief of Staff. Harriman who repeated today that he is not an active candidate for President, but who gave every appearance of being one, said he thought Mr. Eisenhower's attitude of buck-passing the question was "a very alarming one for a President to take."

He asserted that Eisenhower has a habit of dodging things and passing the buck to members of his Cabinet whenever a hot issue comes up. When Harry Truman was President he never ducked responsibility, said Harriman with obvious feeling.

While Harriman made clear again today that he will not permit his name to go into any of the presidential primaries, he made it also clear that his name will go into nomination at the party convention, as in 1952, as a candidate for President, not merely as a favorite son. He said emphatically that he would never accept nomination as vice president.

Says Democrats Will Win.
He said also he will vigorously support the party nominee for President, whoever it may be. He predicted the election of a Democrat to the White House because there is a definite trend toward the Democratic party, he said.

The reason he is visiting various states from time to time in this campaign year, he said, is because he wants to do his part in making the issue clear to the voters. Harriman spoke last night in San Francisco, today here and will speak again tonight off-the-cuff at the Los Angeles Press Club.

He charged at the press conference that the Republican administration is dominated by big business and special interests. He said that although big business has a rightful place in the economy, it should never dominate the economy.

On the farm issue, he declared it "fantastic" that the administration has permitted the farmers to fall so far economically without doing something about it. The recent proposal for a soil bank and other steps, he said, are merely campaign fodder to save the party rather than save the farmer.

Asked how any possible presidential candidate as outspoken-ly liberal as he could win the support of the once-solid South, Harriman quickly replied that the South was more progressive than many persons realized. He said the South was offended when Mr. Eisenhower called the Tennessee Valley Authority "creeping socialism" and that it wants to get back to Democratic control in Washington.

He was, however, sharply critical of the action of Virginia in seeking to set up separate and segregated schools. He said this was an obvious effort to circumvent the Supreme Court and would not work.

While here Harriman conferred with Paul Ziffren, national committeeman, Attorney General Edmund (Pat) Brown, who is the chairman of the Stevenson-for-President organization in California, and with other political leaders.

Speaking at a Town Hall luncheon at the Biltmore Hotel, Harriman blamed the Administration for what he called a drastic tumble in American prestige abroad, and hit also at Secretary of State John Foster Dulles for his "to the brink" interview in Life magazine.

High sounding claims, made for political purposes, have replaced effective foreign policy, he charged.

Militaristic and Reckless.
"We have appeared militaristic and reckless, and Mr. Dulles doesn't help any when he boasts in popular magazines about how he and the President led the world three times to the brink of war," Harriman said.

"And we are still feeling the disastrous consequences of the "summit" meeting in Geneva, when the Kremlin sought and obtained a relaxation of Western effort without themselves yielding on a single point of substance."

Under the Republicans, he asserted, 'there has been a weakening of the NATO alliance, the Middle East situation has dangerously deteriorated, Russian leaders have been enabled to make a triumphant tour of India, and the United States has lost the confidence of the newly-freed peoples of Southeast Asia.

Harriman, former Ambassador to Moscow and Secretary of Commerce under Democratic Administrations, expressed confidence that despite the "alarming drift" in foreign policy, war can be averted. It will take active and far-sighted leadership to win out in "the crucial period of competitive co-existence with Soviet Communism," he said, but it can be done.

Among some influential Democrats here Harriman appears to be emerging as second choice in the event Adlai E. Stevenson's drive falters at the convention. Most party leaders in California are committed to Stevenson, but are friendly to
Gov. Harriman.

SUPPLY SHIP HITS RADAR TOWER, DAMAGE HEAVY

BOSTON, Jan. 20 (AP)—A ship crashed into the Texas tower, radar "island" 100 miles off Cape Cod, today, suffering serious damage. There were no casualties. The tower was not damaged.

The ship was the Military Sea Transport Service's Sagitta, which had gone out to the tower with fresh water and other supplies. It is a 269-foot, 5202-ton vessel and carried 42 men.

While servicing the tower, its starboard side crashed into the structure, tearing a hole in tanks in the Sagitta's No. 2 hold, admitting an inrush of water which quickly caused such a severe list that members of the crew stood by lifeboats.

This precaution proved unnecessary as pumps took control of the water and the Sagitta proceeded for Boston under its own power.

Capt. John J. Albers, U.S.N., who supervised its construction, after talking by radio phone with the tower said at

OVERHAUL PAST DUE FOR PLANE IN CRASH

Inquiry Discloses Possible Cause of Seattle Accident Fatal to 28.

MIAMI, Jan. 20 (UP)—A Civil Aeronautics board of inquiry yesterday revealed that failure to make regular engine overhaul may have been responsible for the crash of a Peninsular Air Lines transport which killed 28 persons near Seattle last November.

Charles S. Collar, Miami Bureau of Safety investigation chief, said the No. 4 engine of the wrecked air liner had exceeded its regular overhaul time by nearly 1300 hours.

Collar said the feathering pump of the faulty engine, which reportedly caused the crash, had not been flushed or replaced after a previous engine failure.

Normal overhaul time for Peninsular's DC-4 engines is after 8000 hours of flying time.

The CAB investigators also disclosed the plane was carrying 600 pounds more than the maximum allowed load before the fatal flight Nov. 17.

The pilot and co-pilot of the crashed plane, Capt. William J. McDougall and First Officer Fred W. Hall, were expected to testify at the closing session of the inquiry today.

The board will continue the investigation in Seattle Jan. 26.

COUNTY PREPARING ROAD BRIDGE PLANS

Work May Begin on 3 Jobs Month After Money Becomes Available.

Detailed plans are being prepared for one road and two bridge proposals included in this year's schedule of St. Louis county bond issue projects, and construction can start within a month after bond issue funds become available, County Highway Engineer Fred H. Kiburz said today.

The three projects are the widening of Clayton road to 40 feet between Conway road and Lindbergh boulevard in Ladue, replacement of a bridge that carries Ashby road over the old Creve Coeur right-of-way, and construction of a new bridge to carry old Baumgartner road over Mattis creek in the southern part of the county.

Widening of Clayton road would bring it to the same width as the portion east of Conway road, at an estimated cost of $160,830.

The present Ashby road bridge is a one-way wooden structure which is to be replaced with a two-lane concrete bridge 42 feet long. It will eventually span the proposed extension of Midland boulevard which will occupy the old street-car right-of-way. The new bridge will cost an estimated $20,000.

The Baumgartner road bridge will replace a 75-year-old bridge that collapsed last Nov. 20, two days before the bond issue election. County police said it had been dynamited. Estimated cost of the new concrete span is $18,000.

Plans for the bridge are now complete and the only remaining step is to take test borings to locate bed rock on which the piling will rest, Kiburz said. Plans for the Ashby bridge and the widening of Clayton road are on the drawing boards and should be finished in two weeks, he said.

The plans were undertaken by Kiburz's own staff to insure an early start, he added. He estimated construction could begin within one month after the bonds are sold. Three weeks must be allowed for advertising the bids, he pointed out.

The County Highway Department is now gathering information on which to prepare recommendations for the employment of consulting engineers and surveyors for a number of other road construction jobs included in this year's schedule of $10,725,080 recommended by County Supervisor Luman F. Matthews, Kiburz said.

G.O.P. Strategy Is Reminiscent Of That Preceding Third Term
Of F.D.R., 'Will He or Won't He'Knowland in Role Similar to One Farley Played — Roosevelt's Call to Knox, Stimson Recalled — Possibility of Similar Republican Move.

By MARQUIS W. CHILDS

A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
(Copyright, 1956, The Pulitzer Publishing Co.)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.

ALTHOUGH Republicans do not like to be reminded of it, the strategy presently being employed by the political managers around President Eisenhower to hold the door open for a second term should he decide to run, or to insure the selection of a handpicked candidate if he doesn't, closely resembles the strategy that led up to Franklin D. Roosevelt's third term.

The atmosphere in Washington today is reminiscent of 16 years ago when the preoccupation was with will-he-or-won't-he. Then, as now, there were those in the party in power who felt a smoldering resentment that the great opportunity should be so long foreclosed waiting the decision of one man.

Despite the war in Europe that began in 1939, speculation in the press in the late winter of that year and in the early spring of 1940 was nearly as widespread as it is today. Democrats who simply could not wait, but who, nevertheless, wanted to remain loyal to Roosevelt, announced their candidacies conditional on the President's decision. This is the course being followed by Gov. Christian A. Herter of Massachusetts and the Herter-for-President-in-Case-Eisenhower-Doesn't-Run-Again Clubs.

Followers Helped F.D.R. While Roosevelt was himself a master politician, he had around him faithful followers helping to play the waiting game. At virtually every press conference the question of his intentions arose, and the President often seemed to enjoy parrying reporters' questions. On other occasions he showed his irritation at the circumlocutions used by questioners to try to get a clue as to how he would finally decide.

There are, of course, important differences. The fact of President Eisenhower's heart attack adds an element of uncertainty, with the role of the doctors being almost more important than that of the politicians. The third term was a violent break with tradition and much of the opposition both within and without the party centered on this break, with the accusation that Roosevelt meant to make himself a dictator.

But there are close parallels, too. Senator William F. Knowland of California, who has become the leader of the conservative wing of the G.O.P., is today playing a role something like that of James A. Farley in 1940. Farley, as Postmaster General and chairman of the Democratic National Committee, sought a declaration of intention from the President. He felt strongly that other Democrats, including himself, had a right to try for the grand prize of American political life. While he refrained from public criticism of the President, Farley did not conceal his deep resentment from his friends.

Knowland first wanted Mr. Eisenhower to make his decision by the end of this month. Then he compromised on Feb. 15. But it now appears that D-day—decision day—is not likely before the end of March.

Dr. Paul Dudley White, the Boston heart specialist attending the President, has indicated that a final report on the President's condition may be postponed until then. There is always the possibility that the

President Gives No Solace to Those Basing All Plans on His Running AgainRaises Serious Doubts About Health and Ability to Carry Burdens.By JAMES RESTON
The New York Times News Service.
(Copyright, 1956, by the New York Times Co.)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.

IT WAS a different President Eisenhower who came back to the Washington news arena yesterday, and the difference was a surprise.

He looked better than most reporters expected him to look. The thinness in the face which comes out in his photographs and on the TV screen was not apparent. There are new wrinkles at the temples, but he was ruddy, clear-eyed, rested and alert.

He was dressed in a coarse-weave brown suit, white shirt, solid brown tie. He stood before a walnut desk, topped with a yellow blotter and two microphones, and spoke in a way that was subtly different from the past.

His speech was a little slower and in a lower register. He was easier to follow than before. No matter what was asked, he kept himself in check, as if consciously saying to himself, "take it easy."

Limits Questioning. Restraining was order of the conference, all around. He put limits on the questioning about his political future and about the international furor over Secretary of State Dulles's remarks on carrying the nation three times to the brink of war.

The reporters, glad to see him back and conscious of the emotional issues now agitating the capital, were likewise restrained. Nobody pressed him hard, and when he neared the half-hour limit and glanced briefly at the clock, Merriam Smith of the United Press took the hint and gave the "Thank You, Mr. President" to end the session.

This was the last day of the third year of Mr. Eisenhower's presidency, and the main question was about his political future. He anticipated this. He arrived in the Indian treaty room on the fourth floor of the Old State Department Building with a carefully prepared message about the presidential preference primaries, and this message, whatever else it did, gave no consolation to those who have been basing all their hopes on his running again.

Revelations on Health. The message was written in large-size type on yellowish buff plain paper, and the surprising thing about it was that it contained personal things that did not have to be said at this time to anybody.

"It would be idle to pretend that my health can be wholly restored to the excellent state in which the doctors believed it to be in mid-September. . . .

"My future life must be carefully regulated to avoid excessive fatigue. . . .

"I hope that all who vote in the Republican primaries in 1956 will weigh carefully all the possibilities and personalities that may be involved. . . .

He could have said, in the message to the New Hampshire deputy secretary of state, that he had not made up his mind about running again and that voters should keep this in mind. He could have let it go at that.

He could have reassured the voters that his doctors reported a satisfactory medical recovery, and let it go at that, but he added that he was making a normal recovery "toward a reasonable level of strength," and when he was asked whether his health was up to carrying the burden of his office, he replied that it would be "premature" for him to say.

Amunition for Democrats. By saying specifically that he had not made even a tentative decision to run or not to run, the President clearly put a limit on speculation about his plans, and yet the message to the voters certainly raised serious doubts about his availability and placed powerful ammunition in the hands of the Democrats in the event that he should decide to run.

For by saying that it was "idle to pretend that my health can be restored" to the condition that existed before last September, and by adding flatly that "my future life must be carefully regulated to avoid excessive fatigue," he invited the question as to whether a man not in "excellent health" could expect to avoid "excessive fatigue" in a job so arduous as the presidency of the United States.

There was no emotion in any of his replies about his health or future. He was as calm and detached as if he had been discussing some great question that affected some other man. Even when he discussed the constitutional question of what would happen if a President could not determine his own disability, he addressed himself to the point like a lawyer explaining an impersonal point of law.

On the question of Dulles and Gen. Ridgway's remarks he was less at ease, but clearly determined not to be drawn. In discussing Mr. Dulles's interview in Life magazine, he used some of the same phrases Dulles had used in his own defense. He praised the Secretary of State as the best he had ever known, and yet he avoided supporting the views attributed to the Secretary of State by making clear that if the country were on the brink of war, he would go to the Congress, and by adding that it was not "proper" to discuss actions of the National Security Council. This, of course, is precisely what Dulles was reported in Life as having done.

Only twice, and then only for an instant, was there any flash of the old Eisenhower temper, and this was obvious only in his eyes. Once when he was asked about whether his doctor had delayed announcing the news of his heart attack, and the other time when he was discussing Gen. Ridgway's charge that the President had given the impression that Gen. Ridgway favored the 1954 defense budget.

For the rest, he answered without the animation of the past, but with a new quietness and even patience. His hand was steady as he read from the New Hampshire document. His movements were quick, and his sense of humor intact, but he did not impress his auditors as a man who was preparing or looking forward to five more years in the White House.

FLEESON

Eisenhower Admits Health Will Be IssueFrankly Acknowledges He Is Not as Strong as Before Attack.

By DORIS FLEESON

WASHINGTON.

PRESIDENT EISENHOWER has opened the door to a far more candid discussion of his health than either friend or foe has so far ventured. He put it on the record that:

"It is idle to pretend that my health can be wholly restored to the excellent state in which the doctors believed it to be in mid-September."

"My future life must be carefully regulated to avoid excessive fatigue. My reasons for obedience to the medical authorities are not solely personal. I must obey them out of respect for the responsibilities I carry."

With these words Mr. Eisenhower has acknowledged that his health is a legitimate political issue because it bears upon his ability to do his job. He has said that his own health is not what it was.

The President added that "my doctors report to me that the progress I am making toward a reasonable level of strength is normal and satisfactory." His appearance bore it out, for he looked hale and smiled easily.

At the same time he looks older, which is natural in a man of 65 who has had the shock of illness and then has been kept on a low calorie diet. It is a fact, too, that President Eisenhower is 65 years old.

The major reason why he appeared in the questions which the reporters addressed to President Eisenhower.

Every one dealt with an important problem about which there is worry and controversy. The issues involved are freighted with emotion as well as politics. They refer to people, their well-being, their happiness, even their life and death, never to inanimate objects.

They were, in short, about the kind of matters which conscientious people take lightly, and which every heart patient is urged to avoid.

What Mr. Eisenhower said about his health will enter the campaign, should he run, on the best authority—himself—and they would be hard statements for the G.O.P. campaign orators to get around.

ALSOP

Democrats Neatly Boxed In
By New Humphrey BudgetThey Can't Vote Tax Cut Now—Barred From Approving Substantial Spending Boost.

By JOSEPH and STEWART ALSOP

WASHINGTON.

BEFORE President Eisenhower submitted his budget to Congress, Secretary of the Treasury George M. Humphrey and Dr. Arthur Burns, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, had a long running argument about it. The nature of this argument tells a lot about the budget.

Burns took the position that some continuing growth in the economy ought to be assumed. He agreed, as all government economists do, that the boom will slow down. But the national economy has been expanding steadily since the war, and Burns argued that some continued expansion in the level of the national income and the level of corporate profits must be allowed for.

Humphrey, on the other hand, took the exceedingly conservative view that the budget should be based approximately on the current level of personal income and business profits. In the end, Humphrey had his way. The budget for fiscal 1957—which begins in July of this year—is based on the assumption that business profits in fiscal 1957 will remain at the 1955 level of $43,000,000,000. It is also assumed that the national income will be at the level of $121,000,000,000, which is about what it is today.

Debate's Importance. The importance of the Burns-Humphrey debate, which was quite amicable throughout, can be easily illustrated. Suppose that the national income grows by 4 per cent next year, which has been about the postwar average. Call the growth $12,000,000,000.

The Treasury's take on that $12,000,000,000, judging from past experience, will be in the neighborhood of $3,000,000,000 to $4,000,000,000, plenty to permit a balanced budget, some reduction of the national debt, and a nice, sweet tax reduction as well. All these pleasant things will be possible, moreover, without any increase in business profits, which ordinarily increase along with the national income.

The other side of the coin is less happy. Virtually all economists, including the President's advisers, have accepted the thesis that the national economy has to continue to grow to take care of increases in the labor force and labor productivity. Thus, if Humphrey is right, and the national income remains at today's level, there is certain to be a sharp increase in unemployment. In short, the Humphrey budget in effect assumes a mild slump.

Political Aspects. Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey is a conservative business man, and conservative business men tend to take a cautious view of the economic future. But the political aspects of the cautious assumptions of which the budget is based are also rather obvious.

In the first place, the budget neatly boxes in the Democrats. The Humphrey budget, because it is in very close balance, allows no room for a tax cut. If the Democrats vote a tax cut now—at least a tax cut big enough for the voters to feel in their pockets—they will be accused of fiscal irresponsibility. This is a charge to which the largely conservative Democratic leadership in both houses is peculiarly sensitive.

By the same token, the Democrats are effectively barred from voting any substantial increase in expenditures. The Administration has achieved the prospect of a balanced budget by cuts in defense and security expenditures. The Humphrey budget, for example, is actually more than four billion dollars higher in the non-defense category than the last Truman budget, while it is 17 billion dollars lower in the defense and national security category.

At Loss for Issue. Because the Administration has shrewdly swiped so much of their program, the Democrats are at a loss for a winning issue on the domestic front. They are obviously inclined to make the defense cuts a major issue. But it is hardly possible to make defense cuts a major

PEARSON

Ebasco, Dixon-Yates Planner,
May Soon Get Big U.S. Aid Job

By DREW PEARSON

(Copyright, 1956, The Pulitzer Publishing Co.)

WASHINGTON.

EBASCO, the firm that engineered the Dixon-Yates fiasco, is about to harvest a juicy plum from the Government's foreign aid program. Some Government officials regard it as an indirect pay-off for failure to go through with Dixon-Yates.

Wholly-owned subsidiary of the Electric Bond & Share Corporation that once owned Edgar Dixon's Middle South Utilities, Ebasco Services is also the engineering firm that drafted the original Dixon-Yates proposal.

Though the International Cooperation Administration headed by John B. Hollister is trying to maintain ironclad secrecy, I can reveal that his outfit plans to award to Ebasco a foreign aid contract so juicy that eight other companies wanted it.

Despite this, Ebasco was selected, without competitive bids, by Abbott K. Hamilton, director of ICA's Industrial Resources Office and a former vice president of Commercial Solvents Corporation.

The proposed contract calls for a massive review of Syngman Rhee's plans for the economic development of Korea. As part of the survey, Ebasco would review foreign aid projects requested by the Korean government, then would help Hamilton and his ICA solicit bids and award the construction contracts.

The clincher is Ebasco's demand for a 1 per cent commission on all construction contracts awarded under the survey. Since the Korean aid program is ICA's biggest, the commissions might run into millions. Backstage, the proposal has literally got ICA's experts boiling because it would tempt Ebasco to approve all sorts of aid projects designed by the Korean government, for the more projects approved, the higher Ebasco's commissions.

Despite the violent criticism of ICA's experts, Hamilton has already approved the 1 per cent commission demanded by Ebasco.

The contract now needs only the approval of Hollister himself. The Korean government, however, is not sold on letting Ebasco handle the survey. Therefore ICA is sending four Ebasco representatives to Seoul to win over Syngman Rhee. Each will collect a $25-a-day expense account from ICA while trying to convince Rhee to accept Ebasco.

Though such contracts are usually awarded by ICA's Office of Contract Relations, this project is being handled by Hamilton personally. Details are so secret that they have even been kept from Hamilton's boss, Dr. William F. Russell.

Explaining Virginia's Vote

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

This letter is in reply to your recent editorial in which you condemned Virginia for the affirmative vote in the Jan. 9 referendum.

I am a Virginian, both by birth and by heritage. I believe I can speak for the majority of my fellow citizens in saying that you have failed to understand the purpose of the referendum, and that you have misinterpreted the result of the vote.

For a variety of reasons, largely environmental, the average Southern Negro student has a lower level of intellectual achievement than that of the average Southern white student. This is not to say that the Negro is inherently inferior.

Now, coupled with the proposed influx of Negro students with a lower average degree of intellectual achievement, is the probability that many of the white students of higher caliber, and of families higher up in the economic and social strata, will be withdrawn from integrated schools by their parents, who will then enroll them in private schools in order that their education will not suffer impairment.

Thus, we have attrition of educational standards from both bottom and top, leaving those in the middle, white and Negro alike, to wallow in the slough of educational mediocrity.

Educational standards in the South are not extraordinarily high as the situation stands now. What would they be like if integration were effected?

This, then, is the basic reason Virginia voters acted as they did on Jan. 9. There is, to be sure, a degree of blind prejudice and mis-ecogenation hysteria present to cloud the waters; but these are only side issues. What the non-Southerner fails to realize is that segregation is not only the symptom of racial prejudice; it is also the armor of Southern literacy.

Question

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I'd like to ask a question of all the supposedly intelligent people who claim that movies and TV shows full of violence can't possibly have any effect upon children.

If the impressions children get through their eyes and ears have no effect upon them, why are we sending them to school?

An Eye-Opener

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

George Hall's recent report on the Arab-Israeli problem was certainly enlightening. One doesn't realize that there are Americans who think of people only in terms of oil and N. Y. votes until one reads an article like that.

Israel would never desert the United States in the event of a real war. Should we leave this small, new nation without any aid, even when she has not asked for arms as a loan or gift, but has offered to pay for them?

Most of the Arab nations, however, have shown that their hatred for Israel will come before any definite loyalty to us.

With Tablet After Tablet

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Of all the men who ever lived, Benjamin Franklin has the greatest variety and number of specific achievements. The 250th anniversary of his birth this month is being celebrated in many nations.

He was printer, author, publisher, mechanic, inventor of many practical things, renowned scientist, educator, successful business man, administrator, civic leader, statesman, philosopher and a diplomat who shaped history.

Dedicated to all human freedoms, he was the first to petition Congress to end slavery. He helped write our Declaration of Independence and our Constitution. The dazzling variety of his achievements led Carl Van Doren to describe him as "a harmonious human multitude."

In our national capital, we have three great memorials: the Washington Monument, which is high; the Lincoln Memorial, which is square, and the Jefferson Memorial, which is round.

There should be one more great memorial—that for Benjamin Franklin—long and narrow and with section after section and tablet after tablet, each dedicated to one or more of his many and specific achievements.

The Franklin Institutes and the Franklin banks and the Franklin insurance companies throughout the land should take the lead in raising $2,500,000, and the Government should match this with $2,500,000 more.

There is already the great Franklin Institute in Philadelphia with the superb and heroic statue of Franklin but it is in Washington where the greatest Franklin memorial should be.

An Opportunity Lost

President Eisenhower's long-awaited press conference was a decided disappointment.

Here was an opportunity for the President to reaffirm the peaceful policies of his Administration in words so strong and so reassuring as to overcome much of the damage done by John Foster Dulles in the latest of that confused diplomat's international indiscretions.

Here was an opportunity, not necessarily to do the politically difficult and embarrassing thing of spanking Secretary Dulles publicly, but to make it plain that the Eisenhower policy is not deliberately to skirt the edge of war in some reckless practice of "the art of diplomacy."

What the President needed most to do was to return positively and firmly to his Geneva theme. Perhaps he sought to do so at one or two places in the conference, as when he said that his peace program is based on "decency and justice and right." But the thought was not effectively put forward as the President has been able to do on other notable occasions, as for example, when he said "there is no alternative to peace."

The reason for this failure is obvious. Mr. Eisenhower was very much on the defensive. His Secretary of State was under fire at home and abroad. An assertion about the unanimity of the Joint Chiefs of Staff in his 1954 State of the Union message to Congress was under attack, in effect, by one of the nation's most respected soldiers, Gen. Ridgway, retired Chief of Staff and Mr. Eisenhower's successor at SHAPE.

The correspondents naturally asked the President to pick up these hot potatoes. In so far as he touched them, it was gingerly and he was quick to put them down. He had not read the Life article and he did not want to be drawn into the controversy. There might have been some unfortunate words. Mr. Dulles was the best Secretary of State he has ever known. And, moreover, matters concerning atomic bomb decisions are for the National Security Council and not to be discussed loosely.

The President is quite right in saying that vital defense issues are for serious discussion and determination in the National Security Council. There is no argument on that. Also we can agree with Mr. Eisenhower that it would be improper for him to say that a Communist attack on Quemoy and the Matsu islands would be taken in Washington as an attack on Formosa. But then it surely is equally improper for Secretary Dulles in an authorized interview in Life magazine to give the impression that the President would so regard an assault on the coastal islands.

As for the serious criticism raised by Gen. Ridgway, the President referred the correspondents to Defense Secretary Wilson and Adm. Radford, chairman of the Joint Chiefs. Actually they had already heard Secretary Wilson's words of confirmation of Gen. Ridgway. What they wanted was reconciliation—or at least explanation—from the Chief Executive who after all read the message to Congress.

If the Administration is not going to reassure the country that the Joint Chiefs of Staff work as the law intended, then there is all the more reason for Congress to go into the procedure thoroughly. Concerning the Ridgway accusation that pressure was brought in the Joint Chiefs of Staff to achieve conformity to a "preconceived political-military party line," Mr. Eisenhower said emphatically he has never made a military decision "out of deference to internal politics."

What is under question here, however, is how policies are worked out among the Joint Chiefs. The country needs to know that "internal politics" has nothing to do with their decisions and recommendations—and "unanimity."

We may credit the President with sincerity on the question of running again. He says he has not decided what to do and is still waiting on later health reports. Meantime he has no objection to having his name in presidential primaries. Indeed he hopes that every citizen will have the widest possible choice in expressing his own preference. Even if this last thought is an invitation to Senator Knowland and other G.O.P. hopefuls to file, the statement as a whole has the effect of continuing the White House in control of the succession situation.

One of the difficulties of conducting the presidency on its present basis was brought out when the President was asked about the recommendation of Premier Bulganin that another "summit" conference might be fruitful. Although the suggestion was made three weeks ago, Mr. Eisenhower replied frankly: "That is one I missed. I haven't heard that one yet." The inadequacy of the President's information is a serious problem. Whatever else this press conference should tell Mr. Eisenhower, it should tell him he must again find the way to speak effectively to the millions of people who were so moved by him at Geneva. The responsibility for that, as indeed, all final responsibility in the Administration, is his for as long as he is President.

With a Handle on It

We understand that some South American sports fans are making plans for international competition in the game of polo, which means a duck, and some critics would undoubtedly say ought to be a dead one.

The National Geographic Society reports that this reckless game is played on horseback. Originally the Argentine gauchos used a dead duck sewn in a leather bag with two handles, but now an official ball with six handles is used. A rider must hold the ball at arm's length, so opposition players may seize it. After sufficient tugging and spills, somebody throws the ball into a bag at the end of the 230-yard field.

In short, polo is a good deal like basketball on horseback. Every basketball fan has heard the expression, "Put a handle on it." That is what the Argentines did. The results seem somewhat frightening.

Equalization Goes On

The State Tax Commission is entitled to congratulations for moving right ahead with its job of requiring counties to equalize their real estate tax assessments. Notices have been mailed to 63 counties ordering them to bring their assessments this year up to 30 per cent of sale value.

Last year 23 counties voluntarily complied with this standard and 25 others including St. Louis county were compelled to do so. The St. Louis county experience should be enough to convince others that resistance and procrastination do not pay.

With 63 more counties brought into line this year, the equalization job should be substantially complete, so that a dollar in property tax levy will represent substantially the same amount of tax collected in every county. This means a more nearly equal local contribution to the support of schools, and a fairer apportionment of state aid as a result.

The 63 counties now to be equalized include Jackson county, whose government is solidly in Democratic hands. When St. Louis county was equalized, the Republicans in charge of the Clayton courthouse squeaked that this was all an anti-Republican plot directed from Jefferson City. Has equalization now become an anti-Democratic plot directed at Kansas City?

Rebuke But No Settlement

Israel has been unanimously condemned by the 11 members of the United Nations Security Council for the Dec. 11 raid on Syria in which 56 Syrians and six Israelis were killed.

The vote should be of some help in quieting the Middle East—especially since the Security Council rejected Russia's demand for compensation by Israel to Syria, a stipulation which would have made it much easier to attack the rebuke as pro-Arab politicking.

As a matter of fact, the resolution had some effect even before it was adopted. Undoubtedly Ben-Gurion had it in mind when he went before the Israeli parliament to acknowledge his responsibility for the incident and to reject preventive war. It is disturbing, however, that only his prestige as the strong leader in the conflict enabled him to make the latter point.

Even his own Mapai party was sharply divided on preventive war. Several speakers warned him that he would regret the decision within six months. Had Ben-Gurion advocated war, he would have had sweeping support, according to The New York Times Jerusalem correspondent, since most Israelis believe the Arabs will not refrain from attack once they consider themselves ready.

This threat of a new Middle Eastern outbreak is all the more serious since the Russians now are playing an active pro-Arab game. This is bringing Prime Minister Eden and Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd to Washington. The State Department, properly enough, has been trying to be objective, ready to support a rebuke to any violator of the truce. It is a question, however, whether such a judicial attitude is an adequate substitute for a more direct policy.

Not only oil but also the military arrangements of the Western alliance in the area give us so direct an interest in the developing situation that more active efforts to achieve a settlement seem to be indicated.

Driving on 66

Remarkable progress has been made in a year toward dual lining the major highway serving St. Louis—U.S. 66. It is now possible to drive from Chicago to within about 25 miles of St. Louis on four-lane pavement, most of it divided highway. That is, at least 270 miles have been brought to new standards of comfort and safety and the remainder soon will be.

Meanwhile, Missouri's share of 66 to the southwest is now dual lane almost to Lebanon, or some 140 miles. There is still some dangerous three-lane pavement just outside St. Louis but these gaps are also being turned into divided highway.

While Illinois has its troubles with toll road plans, and Missouri faces a debate on toll roads, motorists using Route 66 nowadays might consider that old song, "The Best Things in Life Are Free."

The Premise That Isn't There

TVA's recommended appropriation in the 1957 budget is pinched enough on any account, but, perhaps more serious still, it is predicated on a condition that does not exist. It is predicated on the agency's raising the money for new electric-power installations from the sale of revenue bonds, although TVA is still waiting for Congress to grant it authority to issue those bonds.

The question of giving TVA authority to finance its further power installations with revenue bonds has been up in Congress for some time. A presumption that the agency would be enabled by Congress to seek alternate means of financing underlay the 1956 budget cut of 77 per cent from 1955 as it now underlies the 1957 budget cut of 80 per cent from 1956. These are cuts deep enough to threaten the sound working of the agency unless the alternate means of financing are made available promptly.

Meanwhile enemies of public power in Congress have been busily attempting to surround any TVA bond authorization with so many restrictions that the efficiency of the agency will be undermined and the superiority of private power will thus be "proved." The hobbling of the TVA power operation with insufficient financing has now resulted in cutbacks of power to the Aluminum Co. of America plant at Maryville, Tenn., and the Atomic Energy Commission's plant at Oak Ridge. A Senate Public Works subcommittee is meeting to work out legislation permitting TVA to finance itself.

Unless financial starvation of the TVA power system is to do still further mischief in the Tennessee Valley, the grant of authority to issue revenue bonds should be prompt and it should be sufficient. Since the Eisenhower Administration is responsible for the budget cuts premised on the revenue-bond authority, it should in justice make itself responsible also for expediting the enactment of that authority in a business-like—not a punitive—form.

Cart Before the Road

A quaint attitude toward automobiles that are built unfit for the roads they are to travel on is expressed by the president of the American Road Builders' Association, John N. Robertson. He would rebuild the roads to make them fit for the cars. This would add up to a pretty penny indeed for the American Road Builders' Association, but is it the sensible procedure?

The principal incompatibility between automobile and highway noted by Mr. Robertson is the trend to cars that are lower and lower slung. From these cars drivers are often unable to see ahead for a safe distance on roads which traverse rolling grades instead of affording long straightaway views, he says.

Mr. Robertson is not the first to notice the danger in the chariot that swings too low. A leading consultant on city planning—and the automobile has become a major problem in city planning—warned sharply about it only a few weeks ago. The drop in car height of three to five inches has cut motorists' vision very decidedly, said Frederick P. Clark, making it difficult for drivers to see clearly across intersections.

Enormous sums of money are going to be required in the next 10 to 20 years to build and maintain highways across the United States. It is going to cost enough, and more than enough, without attempting to accommodate the whims of some car manufacturers who are more interested in having a model look stunning than in whether it can safely negotiate the highways and streets available to it.

Not only in slinging cars unrealistically low, but in excessive horsepower and speeds also, some automobile manufacturers are inviting state legislatures and Congress to apply the brake. It would be a great deal better for the manufacturers to perform that act of responsibility themselves.

The Road Problem in Congress's Lap Between Book Ends

The Mirror
Public Opinion

Solons flubbed the job last summer but can evade it no longer; will only be passing buck if they do not enact legislation better than that expiring; new highways should be paid for as they are built; motoring public willing to foot the bill.

Katherine Kinder, Managing Editor, in Missouri Good Roads Magazine

Congress is faced with deciding what to do on highway legislation. It failed to take care of this problem last summer before adjournment, and now it can no longer be ignored nor pushed into the background, as the 1954 Federal Aid to Highways Act we are now operating under is soon to expire.

Before the Bureau of Public Roads can make any future plans it must have new authorization from Congress. The most important thing the public has to worry about concerning this issue is whether Congress is going to improve on the present act in order to obtain an adequate system of roads and highways.

The real thing to fear now is that with a presidential election coming up, Congress may decide to take the line of least resistance and extend the existing aid and formulas for another two years. This would be merely passing the buck to a future Congress to dispose of. If this happens, we shall lag further behind in bringing our highways up to meet heavy traffic demands.

Last summer Congress considered three proposals for a stepped-up federal aid to highways program. Two were defeated outright and the third—the Gore bill—is still on the books. This bill did not include any financing measure owing to the fact that any tax measure must originate in the House.

The Gore bill passed the Senate but no action was taken by the House, as it spent all its time bickering over the merits of the Administration's bill versus the Fallon bill before discarding both on the rubbish heap.

Highway Users Would Pay

However, there is a possibility that all three of these bills could be resurrected but the same fate may still be in store for any, or all three. The Administration's bill proposed financing of highways by the issuance of revenue bonds outside the national debt limit to be paid off in 30 years.

If this method had been adopted, 57 cents out of every dollar spent on roads would have gone for interest on roads that would have been worn out 10 years before they were paid for. Besides installment financing, the Administration contained another bad feature. It placed all emphasis on the interstate system, of which Missouri has only approximately 1100 miles, and neglected all other types of highways, such as our major system, supplementary roads and urban streets.

The Fallon bill took into consideration all types of highways and also included financing provisions. Under this proposal additional levies would have been imposed on automotive items and the gasoline tax would have been raised one cent, thus putting the program on a pay-as-you-go basis.

If this plan had been adopted those who use the highways would pay for them, and they could be paid for currently instead of mortgaging ourselves and our children for the next 30 years.

The Missouri Good Roads Association membership approved this bill in principle because it was on a pay-as-you-go basis. We found that our citizens are for adequate roads and are willing to pay for them.

The motoring public no longer measures the cost of using highways in terms of dollars and cents, but in terms of time saved and driving comfort. Nationally, the public is willing to pay the equivalent of 15 cents tax a gallon on gas for the privilege of using toll roads.

Since they were money conscious, they would use the narrow, crooked, obsolete highways on parallel roads rather than to pay to ride on a toll road.

The business done by toll roads certainly indicates that people understand that good roads cost the vehicle owner less for operational expense than poor ones, so they gladly pay more when they get their money's worth.

California Doubles Its Tax

Another example is that of California. The gas tax rate has been doubled since 1946 because the people realize the extra amount they pay for better roads pays dividends in gasoline saved and in reduced wear and tear on automobiles and human nervous systems.

Another thing to be taken into consideration is that some 38,000 lives are lost annually in accidents on our clogged highways—not to mention four billion dollars lost in such related factors as reduced earning power of the injured and value of future earnings of those who perish.

The few extra dollars spent a year per person in increased taxes to pay for good roads is infinitesimal when compared with the billions of dollars lost forever in personal property damage, loss of life and higher operating cost of motor vehicles.

With this in mind, it is ridiculous to assume that an individual would refuse to consent to increase his road contribution by a few dollars when it will be paid back with a bonus in time, car operating costs and possibly life.

Roads that were suitable yesterday are obsolete today. Roads that are adequate today will not be so tomorrow.

Somewhat or other, we are going to get the roads that need to be built and Congress might as well face up to it.

This is a problem that will probably be with us indefinitely, as the American public is a motoring people; we need room to roll in and expand in.

We foot the bill in the long run anyway. So let's get started with a program that will give us what we need and anticipate the needs of the future.

A Verdict to Alter

THE GOLDEN JOURNEY, by Agnes Sligh Turnbull. (Houghton Mifflin, 352 pp., $3.75.)

James Kirkland, millionaire and behind-the-scenes political manipulator, had bright dreams of the future which he built his ornately beautiful home. Down the great curving staircase, his daughter, Anne, was to come as a bride. But the dreams faded when Anne was left unable to walk as the result of an automobile accident. However, accustomed as the financier was to having his own way, he set out to alter the gloomy verdict of the doctors, and believing that if Anne were to have a child she might walk again, he proceeded to find a husband for his daughter.

The young man selected was Paul Devereux, a hard-working young lawyer, with political ambitions. In return for the great man's patronage, Paul was to marry Anne.

"The Golden Journey" is the story, really, of three journeys: that of Anne toward health, of Paul toward his political future, and of James Kirkland toward the realization of his hopes for Anne. But the journeys lead, on a different plane, to an enlarged understanding by each person of his own character and potentialities and not always to the hoped-for goal.

Agnes Sligh Turnbull has a facile pen and a gift for story-telling. If there is an over-simplification of motives and a tendency to stereotype in characterization, it is possible to suspend these disabilities while one is immersed in the tale. It is when the reader draws away and examines the story from a distance that he begins to have doubts. The book is, however, an entertaining, light affair of the romantic happy-ending variety in a world where hard work inevitably leads to success and everyone gets what he deserves and a little more.

Additions to Skira Series

MANET, by George S. Ballis. GOYA, by Pierre Gassier. (Skira, 1955, $5.00.)

Two of the more influential masters of post-Renaissance art are the subjects of these new volumes in the Skira Series on The Taste of Our Time. Goya's genius, coupled with his social conscience, led him from elegant portraiture to the threshold of Impressionism, all of which justifies the author's description of him as a "great revolutionary." Manet was just as revolutionary, but in a strictly esthetic sense. Though his heart did not weep for man, as Goya's did, his new and startling techniques with the brush shocked his generation and ushered in the age we call "modern times." Both of these critical studies throw light on the artistic development of their respective subjects. The admirably reproduced color plates, scattered throughout both volumes, effectively demonstrate the points made in the texts.

A Collection of Anecdotes

PRIVATE LIVES OF THE GREAT COMPOSERS, by Bernard Green. (Library Publishers, 328 pp., $3.75.)

Dr. Grun has had a wide musical experience; from studying under Weingartner and Alban Berg, to writing music, very successfully, for the films and musical plays. But this little book should do nothing to increase his reputation in either field. It is a collection of anecdotes that he must have collected in such a varied life, and it is little more than that. For the raconteur of anecdotes it could serve as a useful reference book; for the casual or dilly-dilly reader a few passing moments; but for the rest...

FRANK T. MENENDEZ

WALTER LIPPMANN

Soviet Success With 'Trade, Not Aid'

WASHINGTON: M. R. BULGANIN HAS NOW addressed himself to the Latin American countries, using the same formula with which the Soviet Union is operating in the Middle East and South Asia.

It is fair to say that our own corresponding policy is unsettled, what with the strong opposition represented by Senator George and Senator Knowland, what with the weakness of our general position in the so-called uncommitted regions of Africa and Asia. We are at the beginning of a long debate in which we shall in fact be attempting to form a policy that works abroad and is approved here at home.

In the Bulganin interview for the Latin Americans we can see more clearly than anywhere else what in fact we are up against in the Soviet challenge to the influence of the Western nations.

Exchange, Not Give-Away.

In the under-developed countries the basic formula of the Soviet operation is not foreign aid but managed trading. They do not profess to be giving anything for nothing. They rather prefer, except in unusual cases, to make it clear that they are not giving away anything.

What they talk about is the exchange of their own manufactured goods for the agricultural products and raw materials of which the Latin Americans, the Asians and the Africans have surplus.

From Egypt they have taken cotton, of which there is a glut, in payment for arms and other manufactured goods. From Burma they are taking rice. From Cuba they are taking sugar, from the Argentine livestock, and so on and so on.

Reds Build Self-Respect. The fact that their dealings almost always appear as two-way transactions has enormous political value. Congress may dislike giving aid. But the best and proudest nations hate to be the recipients of aid.

The Soviet formula is for them ever so much more self-respecting. It means, moreover, that they do not have to deal with nursemaids and chaperons in the form of missions and visiting Congressmen who come to inspect and supervise the use they make of our bounty.

To cap the climax, the Soviet operating formula does not do what Senator Knowland would have us do—namely, to demand the signature to a military alliance as the price of receiving foreign aid.

In fact, the Soviets make hay by proclaiming that they are not demanding just what Senator

E. POWER BIGGS IN ORGAN RECITAL

Program Judiciously Chosen for Capabilities of Concordia Instrument.

By CHARLES MENEES
Followers of organ music have had a week to remember—Carl Weinrich, Leo Sowerby and E. Power Biggs in that order. Biggs, making his first visit here in three years, gave a recital last night under the sponsorship of the Concordia Seminary Lyceum Committee. The Concordia chapel was filled to capacity.

Biggs once more demonstrated why he is ranked among today's leading concert organists. With little practice by his standards, he played the chapel baroque organ with no apparent difficulties. His program was judiciously selected to suit the tonal capabilities of this type of organ in which the pipes are all in view instead of being hidden as they are in older-type organs. Many of the main floor audience, unable to see Biggs at the small console located at the front edge of the balcony, gazed intently at the exposed pipes on the west wall as they listened. This organ was installed several years ago; there is only one other organ of its type in St. Louis.

The program represented composers from the sixteenth century to Schumann, Cesar Franck and the late French musician Jehan Alain. In between were Handel (Concerto No. 2), Sweelinck, C. L. Daquin, J. S. Bach and Mozart. With the exception of the Bach Fantasia and Fugue in G Minor, all selections were easily within the sound capacities of this type of organ which is low pressure in reed style and flute stops and is bright, sparkling and prompt in speech. A more powerful impact is required to provide the utmost excitement from this Bach work. But for light and gay pieces, like the Daquin "Three Noels With Variations" and the Mozart "Adagio for Glass Harmonica" the sounds were ideal.

Biggs' playing had its customary accuracy. There was always a transparent clarification of polyphony and a constant nobility of conception. Rhythms were always steady, registrations sensitive. Encores were by the early English composers Purcell and Byrd. After the recital Biggs described this organ as "one of the memorables of this type in America." He intimated he would enjoy performing on it for recordings.

DR. ALPHONSE McMAHON GETS NEW HOSPITAL POST

Dr. Alphonsus McMahon, St. John's Hospital chief of staff and a member of the institution's council, has been appointed chief of the department of internal medicine at the hospital, it was announced today by Sister Mary Brendan R.S.M., administrator. The appointment was made by the administrative board of St. Louis University School of Medicine.

Dr. McMahon, associate professor of internal medicine at the medical school, succeeds Dr. Charles Hugh Neilson, who recently resigned the post. Dr. Neilson, a former president of the St. Louis Medical Society, joined the university's medical teaching staff in 1904 and was named head of the hospital's internal medicine department in 1924.

Last Monday Dr. McMahon was invested with knighthood in the Sovereign Order of Malta for his service to the Catholic Church.

ST. LOUIS WOMAN MARKS HER 100TH BIRTHDAY TODAY

Mrs. Frances Kraus marked her 100th birthday today in the company of her three daughters, who visited her for the occasion at St. Louis Chronic Hospital, 5800 Arsenal street, where Mrs. Kraus has been a patient for more than a year. Mrs. Kraus, who is confined to her bed, was born in Austria and came to St. Louis in 1884 with her husband and four children. Three more children were born here. Her husband, a house painter and plasterer, died 50 years ago. Until she broke an arm in an accident 10 years ago, Mrs. Kraus was active, helping keep house for some of her children. She has 19 living descendants, including two great-grandchildren. Her daughters are Mrs. William Dehas, 4273 Farlin avenue, Mrs. Harry Krueger, 5406 North Fourteenth street, and Mrs. Mary Brunk, 2323 North Florissant avenue.

DRESSMAKER TO QUEEN SHOWS 'THE TUMMY LINE'

LONDON, Jan. 20 (AP)—Norman Hartnell, dressmaker to Queen Elizabeth II, opened his spring fashion show yesterday with "the tummy line." It features draperies gathered at the front and sides. One short evening dress in lime green satin carried a lemon rose to further accentuate the "tummy" (fashion talk for stomach) and had two more roses concealed in the bust. Hartnell is making the Queen's dresses for her royal tour of Nigeria, beginning this month. His most-used color is turquoise.

NEED FOR 'URBAN RENEWAL' CITED

Economist Predicts Further Drop in Downtown Retail Trade.

The central business district's share of the retail market in metropolitan areas will probably continue to decline in the years ahead because of the accelerated expansion of population, industry and shopping centers in the suburbs, Ira D. Anderson, associate dean of the Northwestern University School of Commerce, said here yesterday.

Speaking at a luncheon of the St. Louis chapter of the American Marketing Association at the Mark Twain Hotel, Anderson said one of the most favorable factors about the future of the downtown area is the growing recognition by merchants that the problem is not one of promoting customer traffic and prestige through advertising and parking arrangements.

He said the basic need is for "urban renewal" like rebuilding crowded slum areas in downtown sections. Decentralization of shopping areas, he said, has raised questions and problems at all levels of marketing. "For many manufacturers it has created the need to rethink their distribution methods and policies—number of retail outlets in which product needs to be sold and effect upon sales organizations," Anderson said.

"For the larger retailer in the central business district, a basic decision must be made as to additional investment in modernization and improvement of downtown stores versus the establishment of branches in established suburban areas or the taking of leadership in development of new outlying shopping centers."

Anderson, national president of the American Marketing Association, said the wide selection of merchandise available in the concentrated central business district, however, will continue to attract a tremendous number of shoppers. Aggregate sales in the district probably will remain relatively static, he said.

"A matter of even more current concern is the potential over-expansion of suburban centers in relation to population growth," Anderson declared. "This condition could result, temporarily at least, in exceedingly strong competition and inadequate volume relative to the heavy investment requirements. One thing is quite certain: The outlying retail market is about to experience an extensive readjustment upon the completion of additional shopping centers. The older, established centers, located in congested areas with limited parking facilities, will lose considerable ground to their modern and spacious rivals."

He also helped lay the cornerstone for an addition to facilities of the Clayton Elks Club, 900 South Hanley road, Clayton. He was guest of honor at a dinner last night at Elks Lodge No. 9, 3619 Lindell boulevard.

CALIFORNIA GAINS MOST IN POPULATION

Leads Nation With Increase of Nearly 2 1/2 Million Since 1950.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20 (AP)—The Census Bureau said today California is outstripping all other states by a wide margin in population growth.

The state was credited with a gain of nearly 2,500,000 persons between the 1950 census and mid-1955 to give it an estimated population last July 1 of 13,032,000. New York's estimated 16,124,000 was the only one to top it.

New York and Ohio were the only other states to show increases of over a million persons in the five and one-quarter years following the April 1950 census.

However, the Census Bureau said, Nevada's 40 per cent gain in this period made it the fastest growing state percentage-wise. Arizona was second with a 31 per cent increase, Florida third with almost 25 per cent, California fourth with 23 per cent and Delaware fifth with a gain of 22 per cent.

Missouri's population gained 4.4 per cent while Illinois was up 7.4. Missouri's population as of last July 1 was estimated at 4,128,000.

The bureau estimated that six states lost population between 1950 and 1955. These were Arkansas, with a decline of 121,000; Mississippi, down 69,000; Oklahoma, 66,000; Alabama, 29,000; Maine, 9,000; and West Virginia, 4,000.

At mid-1955, the bureau put the nation's continental population at about 164,300,000. That excludes service men abroad. Pennsylvania ranked third in total population with 11,159,000 in mid-1955. Illinois was fourth with 9,361,000 and Ohio fifth with 8,966,000.

Despite its fast growth, Nevada remained smallest with 225,000. Next smallest were Wyoming with 306,000 and Vermont with 378,000.

50 UNKNOWN U.S. DEAD IN KOREA BEING RETURNED

YOKOSUKA, Japan, Jan. 20 (AP)—The first 50 of 852 unknown United States dead in the Korean war were placed aboard ship today for Pusan-bowl Cemetery, Honolulu. Who they are, "God, alone, knows," said Lt. Gen. Charles D. Palmer, Army Far East deputy commander. He spoke at a ceremony as the caskets were loaded aboard the cruiser Manchester.

LATE SELL-OFF DROPS STOCKS THIRD DAY

Market Had Rallied in Early Period for Substantial Gains.

NEW YORK, Jan. 20 (AP)—Persistent late selling in the stock market today forced it down in its third straight decline.

Although all sections of the market were involved in the sell-off, losses seldom were pronounced. At the outside in key areas they went from 1 to around 2 points. Most plus signs were modest.

The market was higher by a narrow margin for a good part of the day, but it gradually declined until the late afternoon when a flurry of selling set it back sharply.

There was no new development to account for the market's sell-off. It was regarded as another weak session in the general decline that has been under way since the first of the year.

Dow-Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was 199 points at 4:40 p.m. The industrial index lost 2.4 points, rails 4.1 point and utilities 2.0 point.

Associated Press average of 60 stocks closed down 1.2 points at 4:40 p.m. The industrial index lost 2.4 points, rails 4.1 point and utilities 2.0 point.

There were 1197 issues added against 1221 yesterday, there were 712 losses, 239 gains and 246 unchanged.

Business came to 2,430,000 shares as compared with 2,000,000 shares traded yesterday.

Steels were in the front of the decline today, and almost all other major divisions were lower. The motors resisted fairly well with General Motors unchanged and Chrysler only slightly lower.

Over the counter was weaker, it closed yesterday at 57.14 and 67.74 offered, and today it hit a high of 67.74 before subsiding to 65.66 in the late afternoon. The stock as first issued Monday at a price of 64.

Ford stock, in over-counter market, was quoted 65.44 bid and 66 asked at 3:30 p.m.

Some oils were sharply lower, especially Texas Co. whose stock closed yesterday at 124.75, hit a high today of 126.75 before the announcement and then slipped back for a loss from the previous close of between 4 and 5 points when the general selling began in the market.

New Haven Railroad stock as off around 2 points as directors of the Texas Co. proposed a two for one split of the company's common stock.

Among stocks losing ground were U.S. Steel, Republic, RCA, U. P. of New York, Central, and U.S. of New York.

Panhandle Oil had a flurry of activity following news that directors plan to sell a large block of the company stock to Belgium's Profina.

Foremost Dairies lost around point without much selling pressure.

U.S. TREASURY BONDS SHOW PRICE EASINESS

NEW YORK, Jan. 20 (AP)—The bond market had a mixed trend in late dealings today with minor fractions. Trading was quiet.

Paoria & Eastern 4s backed down more than two points at 72 1/2.

Higher prices were paid for Grace Co. 3 1/2s and Detroit Edison 3 1/2s.

In forenoon trade the held relative steady with good support from convertibles.

United States Treasury obligations eased in the over-the-counter market. Both intermediates and long-range securities gave up 1-3/2 to 2-3/2.

Dealers said some of the selling stemmed from investors' need for cash to pay for the Illinois toll road revenue bonds.

A $415,000,000 issue is to be issued Monday.

Australian dollar liens increased while German issues were mixed in a quiet foreign list.

Rails generally were firm. Missouri Pacific 4s added 1/4.

THINKING ON BUSINESS TREND CHANGING?

By Sam Dawson
NEW YORK, Jan. 20 (AP).

EASING OF FEDERAL RESTRAINT on mortgage credit—and a spirited drive to reverse the tight money policy aimed at discouraging installment buying—has business men wondering today if Washington is changing its thinking on the state of the economy.

Sam Dawson

A few months ago the big bogey in the Administration's mind was the fear that inflation might threaten again—in other words, that the business boom might get going too fast.

This week's action—and talk—have business men wondering if Washington is now more worried about the chance that business may be at or past the peak.

There are suspicions that the Federal Reserve Board is shifting from its policy of active restraint on credit to a milder form called just restraint. The board, many thought, would hike its interest rates again at the start of the year. It hasn't. And New York bankers say the money supply may get a little easier now.

THE TWO SPOTS IN THE ECONOMY WHERE a downturn is now apparent are: Auto production and sales, and home building. The Veterans Administration and the Federal Housing Administration have taken note of the drop in home building and canceled part of the restraints on credit they ordered last July. The agencies again will permit 30-year mortgages instead of a 25-year limit, as decreed last summer. They eased up on the reins just when builders gathered in the capital to predict a 7 per cent cut-back in home building because of tight money. On the auto front, Harlow H. Curtice, president of General Motors, has protested against the credit curbs imposed by Federal Reserve policy. He blames the tight credit situation as a chief cause for the prospects that the auto industry won't sell as many cars this year.

BUSINESS MEN DON'T DISCOUNT THE ROLES played by housing and auto production in boosting industrial output to its high level. About one fourth of the steel production has been going into cars. And nearly a million workers contribute to the making of the nation's cars and parts. Some of them already have been laid off. Home building has been the other big "extra" that has been boosting business in general to its present high level. But applications for federal mortgage financing have dropped sharply in recent weeks. Since it takes some time for these applications to result in actual starting of new homes, the builders foresee a slump coming in the spring. And to forestall this may be why the 30-year mortgages were reinstated.

The FHA also is asking Congress to liberalize the terms under which the federal agency insures loans for home repairs and improvements. The government men think this sort of spending could increase this year to 14 billion dollars, a 25 per cent gain over last year—and a new prop to the economy, if any should be needed.

THINKING ALONG THIS LINE IS FAR FROM unanimous, however. Fears of a reaction from the great expansion of consumer credit in the last year or so are still widespread in the banking fraternity. Allan Sproul, president of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, urges restoring to the reserve board the right to control such credit. J. P. Morgan stockholders are told here by bank officials that "consumer and mortgage debt has reached a level at which caution is suggested."

SHIPPING PLANES TO ENGINES IS PLANNED BY NAVY

The remaining 29 Navy Demon Jet fighter planes, which were modified for more powerful engines by the McDonnell Aircraft Corp., after 21 others were limited to ground training service, will be shipped to an unannounced destination by barge within the next two months, the Post-Dispatch was told today.

Installation of engines here has been delayed, due to shortages, and the Navy is reported to be planning to make the installation elsewhere.

Sixteen of the planes are tentatively scheduled to be shipped next week, eight Monday and eight Tuesday. A Navy installation near Phoenix, Ariz., was mentioned as the possible engine installation site. Part of the trip would be overland.

The 21 grounded Demons were shipped by barge last month to Memphis, Tenn., and Pensacola, Fla. The planes would not fly properly with their original J-40 engines and were not suited for the more powerful J-71 power-plant.

CITY-COUNTY CO-ORDINATION GROUP PUTS OUT PAMPHLET

An information pamphlet setting forth the history, purpose and methods of the Citizens Committee for City-County Co-ordination, Inc., is being distributed to organizations throughout St. Louis and St. Louis county, it was announced today. Sufficient signatures have been obtained on petitions to require the calling of a board of freeholders to draft a plan of city-county co-ordination under one of four methods authorized by the Missouri Constitution, the pamphlet says. The petitions have not been filed with the city and county election boards, however, because of the need for research into city-county problems before freeholders are named. This board will have only one year in which to draft a plan after its appointment.

Among possible benefits of co-ordination are more efficient planning for the metropolitan area, more economical government through elimination of duplication of service, better mass transit, more effective police protection, uniform traffic laws, comprehensive fire protection and health and welfare co-ordination, the pamphlet says.

Huge Crevasse Blocks Team On Antarctic Trail-Marking Trip

Break Is 40 Miles Long, 95 Feet Deep—Navy Party Attempting to Cover 600 Miles.

ABOARD U.S.S. WYANDOT, Off Ross Island, Antarctica, Jan. 20—An enormous crevasse in Ross shelf ice has temporarily stopped a Navy party attempting to make the longest journey by mechanized surface vehicles in the history of Antarctic exploration.

Only three days after leaving Little America V on a 600-mile trail-marking trip to the projected site of a United States outpost in Marie Byrd land, the seven-man group found the route blocked by a crevasse 40 miles long and 95 feet deep. There was no report on the width of the crevasse, which is about 75 miles east of Little America V.

The group, using three tracked vehicles, sent a message that it planned to backtrack five miles, then head north around the crevasse and resume the journey.

The trail party departed on the trip over hazardous terrain last Saturday and discovered the chasm Monday. Word that progress had been stalled did not reach this Navy cargo ship until yesterday. So far a Little America-based Otter airplane has twice flown to the trail party to lend reconnaissance support.

The group is led by Comdr. Jack Bursey of Grand Rapids, Mich., who had reconnoitered the proposed route from a Neptune plane less than a week ago. Bursey's job is to lay out a safe route that can be followed next October by a tractor train carrying 550 tons of equipment for the construction of a scientific outpost at the Byrd station. Twenty-five men are expected to winter at the site. It is one of perhaps eight stations the United States is building in support of Operation Deepfreeze.

Chosen "Outstanding Trainee." Pvt. James F. Conway, 5030 Ruskin avenue, has been chosen "outstanding trainee of the day" at the Armed Replacement Training Center at Fort Knox, Ky., it was announced today. He was selected on the basis of military bearing, initiative and devotion to duty.

freeze, the country's Antarctic program in the International Geophysical Year 1957-58.

Meanwhile, construction of prefabricated buildings was proceeding at United States wintering bases at Little America V in the Kainan bay area and at Hut Point on Ross island, 400 miles to the west. Three ice-breakers have been engaged in a cargo shuttle from this ship to Hut Point through a 30-mile channel cut in thick bay ice. The cargo has been transported the last six miles to the base by sled.

Wednesday the Wyandot had to get out of the way of an iceberg, about 100 feet long and up to 40 feet high, that was drifting close to the ship. An attempt was made by a 23-ton landing craft to deflect the mass of ice, but the little vessel looked like a fly trying to fight an elephant. The ship finally backed away and the iceberg missed hitting the bow by about 25 feet.

Over the weekend, drifting ice floes pinched the hull of the tanker Nespelen, tied to the McMurdo-sound ice, causing it to lose 107,000 gallons of aviation gasoline.

Chilean Ship Anchors Off Disputed Antarctic Island. SANTIAGO, Chile, Jan. 20 (UP)—The Chilean frigate General Baquedano anchored Wednesday off disputed Peter I island in the Antarctic, where this country plans to establish a weather station, it was announced today.

A small landing party carried ashore a plaque supporting Chile's claim to the island. Peter I, in Franklin D. Roosevelt sea, is claimed by both Chile and Norway. Members of the Baquedano's landing party are the first human beings known to have set foot on the island in 26 years.

Passamaquoddy Bill Passed. WASHINGTON, Jan. 20 (AP)—The Senate today passed by voice vote, and sent to the White House, a bill authorizing a $3,000,000 study of whether the proposed Passamaquoddy tidal power project between Maine and Canada is economically sound.

MIDDLE-SIZED FIRMS HERE URGED TO RESIST MERGERS

St. Louis' "depression-resistant strength" will be endangered unless middle-sized concerns here can meet the challenge of big business and resist pressure toward merger, W. R. Persons, president of Emerson Electric Manufacturing Co., said last night.

Persons addressed the fifty-sixth annual dinner meeting of the St. Louis branch, National Metal Trades Association, at the Coronado Hotel.

"If St. Louis becomes the center of a few corporations, or if its manufacturing plants become branch operations," he said, "our community will risk its traditional depression-resistant strength. Our community certainly might also lose much of its charm and, inevitably, would lose the spirit of individualism that permeates its climate and that is the very fiber of its present strength and character."

It is essential that St. Louisans be made aware of their own stake in industrial competition, Persons said, adding that the metropolitan press here, through failure to report business and industrial news thoroughly, was partly to blame for the "ignorance and apathy" of the public.

FURNITURE STORING SUIT AGAINST 6 FIRMS DROPPED

A suit brought by the Household Goods Storage Warehousemen of Greater St. Louis against six firms alleged to have stored furniture without licenses was dismissed yesterday by Circuit Judge John K. Regan.

Robert W. Kroening, attorney for the association, said charges were dropped because the firms either have obtained licenses or agreed not to store home furnishings. He said similar charges against six other firms would be dismissed today.

AUTOPSY TO BE PERFORMED IN CRASH VICTIM'S DEATH

An autopsy will be performed in the death of Edward Jones, who died at St. Mary's Hospital, East St. Louis, yesterday. He was injured in an automobile accident Jan. 6 at Sixth street and Illinois avenue.

Jones, 48 years old, and his wife, 530 South Clinton street, Collinsville, both suffered chest injuries when their automobile collided with a fire truck. Fireman Enos Kinney of Engine Co.

2, driver of the truck, told police he was signaled through the intersection by a man standing in the street. He said the truck was on the way to a minor fire.

When the fire engine approached the intersection, the Jones automobile moved across, Kinney told police. Mrs. Jones was thrown from the car and the machine was pushed against a utility pole. Dr. C. C. Kane, coroner, said the autopsy would be performed to determine whether the injuries were serious enough to cause Jones' death.

Health Hazards From Nuclear Tests Insignificant, Expert Says

AEC Commissioner Libby Based Conclusions on 'Present Rates' of Blasts — Cites Protective Measures.

By RICHARD DUDMAN
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—World-wide health hazards from nuclear weapons tests, at present rates, are insignificant, Atomic Energy Commissioner Willard F. Libby said last night.

Dr. Libby, a chemist who has specialized in radioactive elements, reported findings of the AEC's "Project Sunshine" in a lecture at Northwestern University, in Evanston, Ill. His text was released here.

Local fallout of radioactive particles constitutes "a very real hazard" within a few hundred miles of the explosion of a surface explosion of one of the big nuclear weapons, he said, but every effort is made to "protect against misadventure."

The main part of the fallout is spread through the upper atmosphere, he went on. The part that reaches only the troposphere takes weeks to reach the earth's surface, and the part that reaches the stratosphere stays up an average of 10 years, resulting in world-wide distribution.

Studies throughout the world have led the AEC to conclude, Dr. Libby said, that "these local precautions should be entirely adequate and the world-wide health hazards from the present rate of testing are insignificant."

Stresses Strontium.

In discussing possible health hazards, Dr. Libby gave most of his attention to radioactive strontium, strontium 90, an element that can cause bone cancer. Four or five per cent of all splitting atoms produce this isotope.

It is believed with good reason that radiation is likely to be the most important of the radioactivities produced," he said.

With a single sentence, Dr. Libby disposed of possible genetic damage, the effect of radio-tion on coming generations, a subject of heated controversy among biologists and geneticists. He said:

"It is well to note that since radiation is assimilated in the bones it constitutes essentially no genetic hazard, because its radiations do not reach the reproductive organs."

It would take 11,000 megatons of nuclear explosion to cause the radioisotopes in the human beings to the "maximum permissible concentration," Dr. Libby said. One megaton means the equivalent of the explosion of 1,000,000 tons of TNT.

This is "very far in excess of the total energy released to date," he said.

The largest bomb detonated so far, the Bikini explosion of March 1, 1954, is said to have been 15 to 22 megatons, but United States bombers reportedly now can carry a 50-megaton bomb.

Standard Set by Committee.

The maximum permissible concentration is recommended by the National Committee on Radiation Protection for AEC Workers—one microcurie for a "standard man" whose body contains 1000 grams of calcium.

"On the basis of experiments with animals, statistically observable increases in the number of bone tumors should not be expected to appear at less than 10 times this level," Dr. Libby said. "As we go above this figure the chance for bone tumors occurring increases rapidly so that you like to avoid cancer with 10 to 40 times that figure is acceptable."

He said "Project Sunshine" involved the study of soil samples from all over the world, snow samples from the Antarctic, and direct fallout collected on gummed papers, milk, cheese, alfalfa, animal meat and bone and human bodies.

DEMOCRATS BOXED IN NEATLY BY NEW HUMPHREY BUDGET

issue without demanding increased defense expenditures. And here again the Democrats are impeded by the charge of course, the president's reputation as a military man.

Finally, if the boom continues to along, next summer Secretary Humphrey can take a second look at the economic future. He can then announce proudly that, on second thought, a balanced budget, debt reduction, and a nice tax cut will all be possible by the presidential election. All this is enough to suggest why a good many Democrats darkly suspect that the cautious assumptions on which the Humphrey budget is based deserve as much from political tacticians as economic conservation.

BEARS SEEK NINTH STRAIGHT WIN, NATIONAL RANKING

MEMPHIS STARS ARE EX-PUXICO CHAMPIONS

By Harold Tuthill

Tonight could be jackpot night for a Washington University basketball team which started by answering some easy questions and worked its way up to where it will meet the nationally-ranked Memphis State College squad and one of the better opponents on the Bears' schedule this winter. Game time in the Bruin Field House will be 8:15.

The plateau Washington has reached with its 10-2 mark is one which makes accessible a spot among the first 20 colleges in the nation provided it beats Memphis State, placed fifteenth in this week's Associated Press poll. Should Washington post its ninth straight victory, thereby tying a school record of most games won in succession in one season, it would hand the Tennessee school its second consecutive setback and its third in 14 games so far. That feat by the Bears might be enough for them to displace the Tigers from Memphis in the A.P. poll.

Does Washington have a chance? Yes, if the team continues its brilliant performance which conquered such teams as South Dakota, Canisius, Idaho, Cornell, Valparaiso, Utah State, Beloit and Loyola of Chicago and lost on two occasions by the slenderest of margins. The Bears bowed to Texas Western, 62-60, and to Illinois, 75-74, and look where the Illinois are today—at the top of the Big Ten.

Casten Hurts a Kneec. There's just one fly in the Bruin ointment. Bob Casten, who has shared guard duty with Bud Cristall and Art Borchers, probably won't be able to play because of a pulled ligament in his knee. With him in there Blair Gullion's athletes held the opposition to 57.8 points a game, to be the seventh best defensive team in the nation. Without him the Bears will have to rely on Cristall, Borchers and 10 Stan Smith to check the high-scoring Memphis State Tigers whose offense averaged was 80.8 through games of Jan. 16. That was good for the No. 3 position in the U.S.

Memphis State is eighth in field goal accuracy at 43.5 percent and twelfth in free throw percentage, 73.9.

Puxico, Mo., products have put Dr. Eugene Lambert's Tigers high in national circles just as they made a state prep champion out of Arnold Ryan's Indians in 1951 and 1952. Puxico won the State Class B title with a 40-0 record in '51 as the team scored 357 points, an average of 89.9, which approximates the performance of the Puxico boys at Memphis.

High on Scoring List. In that 1951 season Win Wilfong scored 939 points. Forrest Arnold 588 and Elmore Fortner 404. The following year, with Forrest Arnold and Grady Smith, now at St. Louis U., Puxico had a 39-2 record.

Now Wilfong, who played for Missouri and gained Big Seven Conference honors before entering the Army, and the blond Arnold are high among the national scorers. Arnold was rated twelfth with Wilfong twenty-first according to the most recent N.C.A.B. release. Since then, however, Wilfong has passed Arnold and his average of 24.2. Through 12 games Arnold had scored 290 points, Wilfong 286 and Fortner 173.

Wilfong, Forrest Arnold and Fortner will start for Memphis along with Orby Arnold, Forrest's 6-6 brother and either Ken Caldwell or James Hockaday, like Orby Arnold, a 6-6 freshman.

Baron Leads With 266. Washington's offense will be taken care of by Forwards Jim Barton and Bill Gullion and Centers Jim Paul and Les Medley, plus the certain help from Cristall, Borchers and Smith. Barton leads with 266 points, followed by Cristall 156, Borchers 137, Paul 84, Bill Gullion 66 and Bob Casten 60. Medley now has 20 and Smith 18.

The demand for tickets has been brisk. Remaining reserved seats and about 2000 general admission tickets will go on sale at the Field House at 7 o'clock tonight.

DeMenis Play Landofts In Mid-City Feature

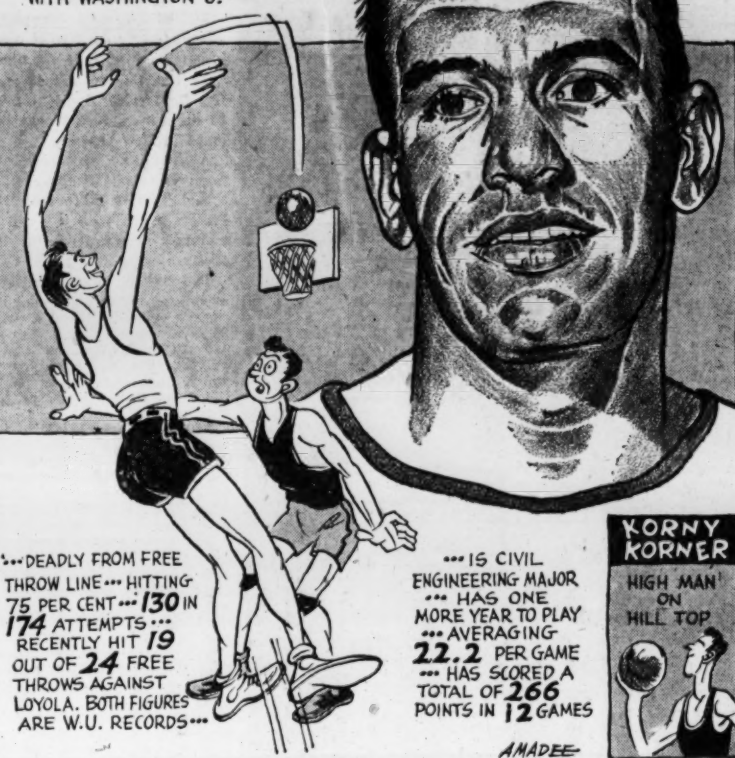

The league-leading DeMenis (4 and 0) will play the Landofts (3 and 1) in the top game of the Mid-City girls' basketball program tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock at Salvation Army gymnasium. The Rock Alumnae (1 and 3) and Jefferson Camera (4 and 0) will meet at 1:30.

The DeMenis defeated the Landofts in their last league meeting, 29 to 23, but Landofts reversed the decision in the consolation final of the Christmas tournament.

Buds Must Master Different Alley Surface in Detroit: Shellac Instead of Lacquer

By John J. Archibald
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff

EN ROUTE TO DETROIT, Jan. 20.—Conversation aboard the Budweiser bowling team's special railroad car sounded like a paint salesman's convention as the highest scoring team in the country headed for the home of the defending national champions, Detroit's Strohs, today. The peculiarities of lacquer and shellac were the topics, and the differences could be a matter of winning or losing bowling's world series.

Crest Lanes, where the final 12 games of the team championships will be held tomorrow and Sunday, will present a different type of alley surface from the kind the Budweisers are accustomed to because the establishment uses shellac for a finish. Most alleys in St. Louis, including the Buds' home lanes, have a lacquer surface. Adapting themselves to the different conditions quickly enough to stay close to the Strohs will be the St. Louisans' problem.

Because the Budweisers beat the Detroit club by 965 pins in St. Louis last weekend the Buds will have time to learn. Total pins for the 24 games will determine the title, so the St. Louisans only have to avoid being similarly swamped. Naturally, any time they can win a game from the Strohs, it will make it that much easier.

The schedule for the games will be the same as in St. Louis, except that they will start an hour earlier for St. Louisans because of a difference in time zones. Three-game blocks will therefore be bowled at 1 p.m. and 7 p.m., St. Louis time, both tomorrow and Sunday.

In Better Physical Shape. While some of the now famous ailments that the Buds have are semi-permanent, the pinsters should be in a little better physical condition than last week. Ray Bluth's right arm, which was hurt in an automatic pinsetter a week ago Friday, is feeling nearly normal. Dick Weber's thumb, over which he still wears a glove, can hardly be said to be a handicap anymore, considering the scores Dick has rolled recently.

As long as Don Carter gets regular injections in his left knee it does not bother him. Pat Patterson seems to be able to bowl smoothly despite his hernia condition, and Billy Welu keeps his throwing arm frozen with novocaine from elbow to shoulder so it won't hurt so much. The Buds are fine, says team captain Whitey Harris.

Getting back to Topic No. 1, the Buds really don't expect great difficulty in scoring on shellac alleys. They practiced at Bowl-Mor Lanes in St. Louis during the past week, where shellac is used, and among their accomplishments was a 700 series by Patterson and a 379 series by Weber.

"We've had several good totals on shellac alleys," said Harris. "In Waterloo, Ia., we went over 2400 in an exhibition match and in the city tournament last week."

Don Johnson to Toronto. BALTIMORE, Jan. 20 (UP)—The Baltimore Orioles have sold right-hander Don Johnson to the Toronto Maple Leafs of the International League for an undisclosed sum.

Miami Baseball Club and City Reach Agreement on Stadium

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 20 (AP)—City Commissioners and owners of the new Miami International League baseball club yesterday reached agreement on leasing Miami Stadium for 10 years.

The commission scheduled a special meeting for next Thursday to pass on a resolution giving City Manager E. A. Evans authority to sign a formal contract with Sid Salomon Jr., and Elliott Stein, owners of the club recently transferred from Syracuse.

Salomon and Bill Veck, baseball figure who has been working on the deal, shook hands with the four city commissioners who attended the meeting after they'd gone over

Maryland Takes Away License Of Boxing Club

BALTIMORE, Md., Jan. 20 (UP)—The Maryland State Athletic Commission today revoked the license of the Arena Sports Club, the organization which had agreed to take over the Friday night television fights after New York Boxing Commission chairman Julius Helfand outlawed the Managers' Guild there.

Chairman J. Marshall Boone announced the action had been taken upon receipt of information supplied the New York State Athletic Commission and the Baltimore police department.

Helfand had charged that promoters Benny Trotta and Angelo Munafa of the Arena Sports Club were "known criminals and tools of Frankie Carbo."

Boone said all state athletic commissions and the National Boxing Association would be notified of the action by mail.

After Helfand outlawed the New York Guild, Tex Sullivan and Willie Gluzenberg, promoters at St. Nicholas Arena in New York City arranged to have their programs transferred to Baltimore. They now face charges of conspiring with known criminals for the action.

Gov. Theodore McKeldin of Maryland ordered an investigation by the Maryland Commission as to why fights unwanted in New York were being staged in his state. The commission then stopped the boxing matches which then were rescheduled for St. Nick's.

Hauser Return To Lineup Aids Concordia Five

By Harold Flachsbar

An improved collegiate performance by Joe Hauser, one of the newest "regulars" on the Concordia Seminary squad, has given the team a big January lift. Coach Pete Peterson looks for even higher scoring sorties by the former Lutheran High star as he works more frequently with Dave Ludwig, Harold East & Co.

Hauser will take a classy 59 per cent field goal shooting average into tonight's game with Central Missouri State College of Warrensburg. Play is scheduled to start at 8:30 at the Concordia field house after a 6:30 preliminary between Harris Teachers and the Preacher Jayvee squad.

A blond freshman set-shot artist, Hauser got off to a bad start this season when he was hospitalized for three weeks with pneumonia. Joe worked his way into the lineup as a reserve gradually—frequently too weak to do much running—but since the Christmas vacation has appeared to be his old self.

At Lutheran High the 6-foot-2 marksman—a good especially from the outside—set quite a few scoring marks and he had several high totals the past two years at St. John's Junior College, Winfield, Kan., a Concordia prep school.

In the Preachers' two most recent games Hauser popped in 31 points—18 against Central College of Fayette (eight field goals in 10 tries) and 13 against Shurtleff. Not especially known as a hard-driving runner or fast mover—sometimes he looks even lackadaisical on the court—Hauser, because of his illness last fall, has not been pushed too hard by Coach Peterson.

"But if he can consistently hit those long ones from the outside, we'll let him get by with a little less running," said Pete. "We have a few other players who can really fly, as you have seen."

Concordia will be seeking its seventh victory compared to four reverses and its fifth in its most recent six starts. The visiting Mules will be trying to improve a 3-7 mark. They, too, have been going better in recent play after dropping their first five. Coach Earl Keth's men have won three of their last five, including decisions over Southwest State of Springfield.

Russian Skater Betters Record
DAVOS, Switzerland, Jan. 20 (AP)—Jurij Michailov, Russian speedster, set a 1500-meter world's skating record of 2:09.1 on the fast Davos track today. His time beat the old record of 2:09.8 set a year ago at Lake Alma Ata in Russia by his teammate Eugenij Grishin.

Michailov, as a result of his record time, swept into first place early in the 1500 competition of the Swiss international speed skating competition—a major preview to the 1956 winter Olympics starting next week. He led the Russian team in Olympic qualifying trials at Moscow several weeks ago with a 2:18 in the 1500.

Record 65 for Souchak in the Caliente Open

TIJUANA, Mexico, Jan. 20 (INS)—Mike Souchak of Grossinger, N. Y., took the first round lead in the Caliente Open Golf Tournament by shooting a sizzling seven under par 65.

The 28-year-old pro said his putter behaved and helped him to shoot the record-shattering round. The previous course record was 66, held by Wallace Bost, home pro, on the long 7207-yard course.

Trailing two strokes behind Souchak were Ralph Blomquist of Glendale, Calif.; Frank Stranahan, of Toledo, O., and Rod Fushett, of Spokane, Wash. Tony Holguin of Midlothian, Ill., and Tim Holland, an amateur of Miami, Fla., shot rounds of 68 each.

Souchak's seven under par establishes him as a favorite to win the $12,500 tournament.

Saddler Still Is Regarded as Bad Boy.

SANDY SADDLER, featherweight champion of the world, resents bitterly when he is accused of being a "dirty" fighter. He thinks it unfair when the fans boo him when he is introduced in the ring. And he blames Willie Pep for the reputation he has gained.

An examination of his record, however, does not bear out this alibi.

When he defeated Gabriel (Flash) Floride of the Philippines in a title defense at San Francisco the other night, Saddler seemed, from a television view, to be up to his old tricks.

He butted, heeled and wrapped his arm around the little Filipino's neck while he hit Floride with his free hand.

It is not known here, naturally, whether the severe cut in Floride's eye was caused by Saddler's head or by a blow from his gloved fist. But you can have your suspicions.

The three officials had Saddler ahead for 12 rounds, before the fight was stopped in the thirteenth, but apparently they did not subtract points very diligently for his foul tactics.

To this writer the score was reversed from that of the three officials who voted 67-63 for Saddler. This score card showed it 67 for Floride and 63 for Saddler and it is admitted that, through the early rounds, Saddler was penalized many points for actions which could easily have called for his disqualification.

True, a referee today is in a very unenviable position. What with the tremendous television cost to the sponsors of the show and the many millions of viewers throughout the country, it is very difficult for a referee to stop a bout, particularly one involving a championship of the world, in whatever division, and toss one of the principals out on his ear.

This is going to have to be done one of these days, however, regardless of the roars from the advertising agency or the sponsor.

It was reported that the switchboard in the Cow Palace in San Francisco was flooded with calls after the bout with protests from viewers as to Saddler's tactics and what he was allowed to do in the ring. The Post-Dispatch telephones rang a number of times with the same complaint the next day.

That is hopeless, of course, but some action should be taken.

And the best place to hit an offending boxer is in the pocket book, the same as with everyone else. If the referee feels that he cannot, in deference to the sponsor, throw a boxer out of the ring, he should recommend some monetary penalty for a participant who offends as frequently as Saddler did the other night and which he does almost every time he goes to the post.

Saddler's reputation was built through many fights. Not just one.

St. Louis Saw Him.

Little Phil Terranova fought Sandy and beat him in 10 rounds at Madison in 1946 and Phil said later he never had such an experience.

"The guy tried to do everything—bunting, heeling, running the laces of his gloves over my face, holding and hitting," Terranova said.

And then Saddler fought Charley Riley here Nov. 1, 1950.

That's not a very long time ago but there are a number of things worth recalling about that night at The Arena.

Harry Kessler refereed the bout and ruled it a draw because he subtracted so many points from Saddler's score because of his foul tactics. The two judges saw it for Saddler.

Riley gave the champion a scare, although it was not a title bout, because Charley bored into Saddler and threw everything he had at Sandy, having the champion in distress more than once.

At the finish, though, Saddler was ruled the winner and Charley was badly battered about the face.

It was a television show (with the St. Louis area blacked out) and drew 7253 fans who paid $17,923.25 to sit in.

In addition to their shares of the gate receipts each fighter was paid $1000 from television receipts.

Now performers before the camera receive a share of the TV money, plus their shares of the gate receipts which are, of course, practically nil now.

Saddler's four bouts with Willie Pep were the outstanding examples of rules-disregarding fights. Willie suffered a severe suspension after one of them in New York; Saddler was penalized, too.

Pep was, of course, a past master at the art of rule-violation in boxing and maybe he taught Saddler a few tricks, for surely Saddler today is the greatest of them all.

Boxing is a rough game. There is not too much attention paid to the niceties but such actions can be carried much too far.

It is all very well for one boxer to strike another a low blow, then stand back and apologize because the protective equipment in use today minimizes such violations, but there is no protection against heeling, bunting, holding and hitting except what the referee affords.

And it appears that in the Three Clubs Ready to Take Holdout Robinson From Dodgers

Star Balks
At $7000

NEW YORK, Jan. 20 (UP)—

The Brooklyn Dodgers are trying to get Jackie Robinson to hold still for a $7000 salary slice, but if they are unsuccessful, the Chicago White Sox, among other clubs, have indicated they'll be glad to take him off their hands.

Robinson huddled an hour with Brooklyn vice president Buzzy Bavasi yesterday but failed to come to terms. The Dodgers then said that they and the 36-year-old Robby "are not too far apart." But that's the same thing they said two weeks ago.

There have been repeated questions as to whether Robinson would play ball again this year and to all those questions he has replied, "that depends on the contract I get." He received an estimated $40,000 last year.

Brooklyn, well fixed at third base with Ransom Jackson, who was obtained from the Cubs and also loaded with seven left field candidates, is not exactly in dire need of Robinson, despite his .314 lifetime batting average.

Tried to Get Him in '55.

An official of the White Sox has admitted they tried to get Robinson late last year but Brooklyn could not get him out of the National League on waivers. Cincinnati and Pittsburgh reportedly also are interested in Robinson even though the 256 average he compiled last season was his worst in the majors.

Robinson is anxious to get in his tenth year in the big leagues and the Dodgers claim they are eager to have him with them. The veteran infielder-outfielder concedes he'll take a cut, but he insists "not too big a one."

Elsewhere around the major league orbit, the Cubs announced they now have a total of 24 players under contract with the signing of First Baseman Frank Kellert, right-hand rookie Shortstop Ritchie Myers. Kellert batted .325 in 39 games for Brooklyn last season and came to the Cubs in a winter deal. Tremel had a record of three victories and no defeats after the Cubs brought him up from Shreveport of the Texas League last July 22. Myers batted .256 with Sacramento in the Pacific Coast League.

Catchers Sherman Lollar and Carl Sawatski, utility outfielder Ron Northey and Pitcher Bill Fischer, signed with the White Sox, giving them a total of 18 players under contract. Lollar, the only White Sox regular among the four signees, batted .278 last season.

Bauer in $25,000 Class.

Hank Bauer, the Yankee outfielder, who turned down his first contract, accepted a raise yesterday that brought him into the $25,000 category. Bauer batted .278 last season, driving in 53 runs and hitting 20 homers. In the world series, he batted .429 even though he played only part time because of a pulled leg muscle.

Pitchers Glenn Cox and Gus Keriazakos and infielder Gerry Schepinsky signed with Kansas City. Cox is a Dodger chatter who won 11 games and lost five at Montreal last season; Keriazakos was 11-2 with Savannah and 3-5 with Columbus, while Schepinsky batted .297 at Savannah and .217 in 22 games with the Athletics when he was brought up to fill in for injured Joe DeMaestri near the end of the season.

The Cincinnati Redlegs announced they have more than half of the 36 players on the roster for the coming season had signed contracts. Most recent to sign were Pitcher Art Fowler and Infielder Rocky Bridges of the 1955 Redlegs, along with rookie hurlers John Oldham and Pat Scanlebury. That put 19 in the fold.

Lightweight Bout Tops
Fenton Amateur Card

Bob Lynn of the Bangert A. C. and Silvan Hamlin, Jefferson Barracks, lightweights, are to box the main event of an amateur boxing program at Fenton American Legion Hall Tuesday night which will comprise a dozen bouts.

The card:

Bob Lynn, Bangert A. C. vs. Silvan Hamlin, Jefferson Barracks A. C., lightweights.

Harry Terry, Bangert A. C. vs. Jerry Turner, Lincoln A. C., light welterweights.

Wally Wallace, Fenton A. C. vs. Lester Rowan, Mulvihill, light heavyweights.

Jack McCracken, South Broadway A. C. vs. Tatus Mack, Mulvihill, middleweights.

Billy Chab, Fenton A. C. vs. Jerry Turner, Lincoln A. C., welterweights.

Richard Munzinger, Fenton A. C. vs. Bob McEldine, Lincoln A. C., welterweights.

20th All-Stars, Jefferson Barracks A. C. vs. Bernard Barton, Cherokee, lightweights.

Don Kna, Fenton A. C. vs. Nat Smart, Auto Workers A. C., bantamweights.

Merly Souder, Bangert A. C. vs. Harold Mungliger, Fenton A. C., flyweights.

Jimmy De Fries, Auto Workers A. C. vs. Richard Burton, Fenton A. C., flyweights.

Joe Kna, Fenton A. C. vs. Robert Karpman, Cherokee, flyweights.

Larry Brian, Fenton A. C. vs. Joe Thomas, South Broadway A. C., flyweights.

case of boxers like Saddler the officials will have to do something positive.

Ray Flores, an official with a good reputation, handled the bout in San Francisco and he was criticized severely by fans here for his failure to penalize Saddler. Also he was criticized because he stopped the match twice to have the doctor examine Elorde's cut eye before he finally succeeded in ending it.

As to the latter, it appeared that was the thing to do. His taking the responsibility and he acted wisely, it seemed, in calling for the examinations.

He should have been more diligent in his control of Saddler's rules violations.

University City
And Brentwood
In Top Match

The school that Mapewood regards as its best friend in the Suburban League, Brentwood, could do the Leafs another big favor tonight. In the past two seasons, Brentwood pulled up two victories against the schools that were giving Mapewood the most difficulty and these surprises enabled Mapewood to win the Suburban title both times.

University City, which has been battering every Suburban team in its path so far, will be Brentwood's foe tonight on the U. City court. The Indians walloped Mapewood in a Normandy tournament final and have a 3-0 league record, which includes triumphs over Kirkwood, Clayton and Normandy. Over-all, University City has a 10-1 record.

Mapewood is out in front with 4-0, while St. Charles has the same 3-0 mark at U. City. Brentwood has just a 2-2 league record, but a 9-4 season total.

Last Tuesday Brentwood fought Mapewood all the way before losing, 67-62.

Two seasons ago Brentwood did Mapewood its first big favor by beating Ritenour, which was setting the pace at that time, and the Leafs went on to win the title by a margin of just one game over Ritenour.

Last season it was Webster Groves that upset Brentwood in the midst of a fine campaign and Mapewood scooped up the pennant again.

Ladue will be Mapewood's guest tonight. St. Charles will be at Ritenour.

In other Suburban matches, Webster Groves will go to U. City, Wellington will play at Normandy, and Kirkwood will be host to Ferguson.

A Knickerbocker official said the protest stemmed from an incident that occurred with about four minutes to play in the game, at which time the Royals held a large lead.

Basis of the protest, which was forwarded to League President Maurice Podoloff within the required 24-hour period following the game, was a claim that the timekeeper of the game was not provided with the proper equipment—a horn or a whistle—to halt play when necessary.

A Knickerbocker official said the protest stemmed from an incident that occurred with about four minutes to play in the game, at which time the Royals held a large lead.

The New York Knickerbockers announced last night they are officially protesting their 108-103 loss to the Rochester Royals in a National Basketball Association game at Rochester, N.Y., last night.

Basis of the protest, which was forwarded to League President Maurice Podoloff within the required 24-hour period following the game, was a claim that the timekeeper of the game was not provided with the proper equipment—a horn or a whistle—to halt play when necessary.

Radzienda Defends N.B.A.
After Helfand Charges It With 'Sheer Hypocrisy'

NEW YORK, Jan. 20 (AP)—Julius Helfand has thrown down the gauntlet to the National Boxing Association.

The chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission blasted the N.B.A. last night for a resolution by its executive committee that would permit a boxer to sign for a fight himself when his manager is under suspension. Speaking at the annual dinner of the Boxing Writers Association, Helfand termed the resolution "sheer hypocrisy."

"You know," he said turning toward Lou Radzienda, president of the N.B.A., "that after a fight the fighter will go back to his hotel and whack up the purse with his suspended manager."

Retort by N.B.A. Head.

Radzienda, a member of the Illinois State Athletic Commission who had praised Helfand's campaign against the undesirable in the sport just before Helfand rose to speak, said later:

"We believe the fighter comes before the manager. Just because his manager is under suspension or doesn't have a license can't be no reason to penalize a fighter. He has made a living and should be granted that right."

"What he does with the money is no concern of ours. Under our resolution a suspended manager or one without a license can't come running to a commission for help if the fighter refuses to live up to his personal contract."

"Why should we deprive a top-ranking contender from a title shot because of his manager? That's what a fighter dreams about."

Helfand mentioned the welterweight title bout between Champion Carmen Basilio and Blinky Palermo of Philadelphia, is not licensed in New York or Illinois.

"I was very anxious to have the fight in Syracuse (Basilio's home town)," Helfand said. "But not at the cost of licensing Palermo or letting Saxton sign for himself."

Pleased by Other Moves.

Helfand said he was flattered by two other resolutions adopted by the N.B.A. executive committee which pledged support to his "cleanup" of the sport. But he added these were "completely nullified" by the resolution approving a fighter signing for himself. "The committee might as well have met," he asserted.

The resolutions by the executive committee will be voted on by the full N.B.A. membership at its annual convention in August in Havana and Miami. New York State is not a member of the N.B.A.

Before the dinner Helfand granted a five-day delay for a hearing on charges against Tex Sullivan and Willie Gilzenberg, promoters of the Monday night TV-fights at St. Nicholas Arena. They have denied charges of "conspiring with persons convicted of crime, bookmakers, gamblers and persons of similar pursuit."

The hearing is an outgrowth of Helfand's nine-month investigation of the Boxing Managers' Guild of New York which he termed "monopolistic." He ordered its members to resign by Jan. 16 or have their licenses revoked. Virtually all did.

Basilio received the Edward J. O'Neil plaque as the 1955 "fighter of the year." Bob Murphy, unbeaten Boston welterweight, was crowned "rookie of the year" and Harry Mendel,

Pettit Scores
25 Points but Hawks Go Down

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

BOSTON, Jan. 20.—The plane-weary St. Louis Hawks were here today for an evening tussle with the Celtics and magical Bob Cousy after dropping a 90-83 decision to Fort Wayne last night in New Orleans.

Pettit made 19 of them in a stirring first half performance which saw the Hawks leave the floor with a 48-47 advantage.

Although Bob could manage but two third period free throws, the Hawks stayed on top throughout the quarter until a last second shot by Fort Wayne's Odie Spears tied it at 67-all.

The clubs battled neck-and-neck down the stretch but, with 3:46 left and the score knotted at 78-all, Fort Wayne aces Mel Hutchins and George Yardley went on a six-point spree to seal St. Louis' doom.

Pettit made his first second half field goal—a jump shot from the corner—with 4:45 left in the game. Hutchins hounded him effectively near the basket, forcing him to the outside.

Hutchins and Yardley both contributed 18 points to the Pistons cause—a figure matched by Hawk forward Jack Coleman whose long shooting kept St. Louis alive early in the final period. St. Louis's Bob Harrison dropped in three of his four goals from 45-feet.

After tonight's game with Boston, the Hawks move to Saratoga Springs, N.Y. for a scrap with the New York Knicks.

Handball Meet Final

Earl Baker and Marlowe Phillips will play Stan London and Al Goldstein in the class A doubles final of the M.C.A. handball tourney tomorrow.

In the semifinals, Baker and Phillips won from Jack Briscoe and Jack Williams, 17-21, 21-19, while London and Goldstein upset second seeded Harold and Earl Srenco, 18-21, 21-19, 21-14.

Billikens Rank Tenth on Offense; Bears Seventh on Defense

Illinois Has 90.5 Average

NEW YORK, Jan. 20 (AP)—Eastern college basketball teams go for high scoring, while in the West the stress is on defense, figures of the N.C.A.A. Service Bureau disclosed.

Through games of Jan. 17, Morehead State of Kentucky topped the nation in point getting for major teams, hitting at an average of 96.5 points in 14 contests.

San Francisco, the country's No. 1 team, headed the defensive list by allowing an average of 52 points in 13 games. The Dons were defensive leaders last season, allowing 52.1 points in 29 games.

St. Louis U., located on the west bank of the Mississippi, is the only "Western" club in the top 20 offensive teams. St. Louis is ranked tenth, with 96.8 points per contest. Washington U. of St. Louis was seventh in defense.

Dayton, holding its opponents to an average of 59 points, and Duquesne, limiting the opposition to 59.2, rank ninth and tenth on defense. They are the only Eastern outfits among the top 13 on defense.

Oklahoma A.M. is second on offense, permitting 53.1 points, while Marshall (W. Va.) is second on offense, with a 91-point average.

George Washington is tops in field goal percentage, hitting at a 48.8 rate, and North Carolina State leads in free throws with .780 per cent.

The top 10 on offense (based on games of Jan. 17):

Tenley Certain She'll Be Fit For Olympics
CORTINA D'AMPEZZO, Jan. 20 (AP)—Tenley Albright hopes to be back "on ice" tomorrow with help of her physician-father who is rushing here by air from Boston.
By the time her name is called Jan. 30 to perform school figures in the Winter Olympic games, Tenley expects to be completely recovered from a deep wound suffered yesterday when she fell and gashed her right leg with her skate blade. The cut did not require stitches and Dr. Giuseppe Casparini said there appeared to be no muscular or bone damage. He said she would be laid up four days and then may be able to skate with her foot in an elastic bandage.
The pretty 20-year-old Radcliffe College junior lay in bed today "to keep the blood from rushing down my leg."
"My father telephoned from Boston last night and said he is on the way," she said. "He is a doctor and he told me over the phone he would have me on the ice by tomorrow."
"It may not be quite that soon though. Anyway I expect to be fine by the time skating events in the Olympics begin."
Surrounding the two-times world figure skating champion this morning was a group of television and newspaper photographers, her mother, skating coach Maribel Vinson, officials from the American team for the Olympic Games and bell boys who brought in numerous messages.

29 High School Basket Players Will Graduate

It won't be long before basketball in the Public High League becomes a matter of subtraction because the names of 29 boys will be stricken from rosters after the final games of the first semester, Jan. 28.

Hardest hit will be Southwest which started the season with six eighth termers. They include two of the Steers' best scorers—Charles Rieder and Dave Heiland—and four others, some of whom were dropped earlier. They are Derrill Heiland, Joe Mowry, Al Nelson and Dennis Stoukal.

Summer will be reduced by four, including three starters, Al Abram, Claude Blackmore and Joe Rycraw. Barrett Halcomb is the other eighth term on the Bulldog squad.

Beaumont, the 1955 champion, loses Don Costello and Leo De Vere, while Hadley Tech, now coached by J. L. Hutton, will have to get along without Bill Harper, high average player, Rich Heitman and Nathan Kyle. Cleveland, another contender, will miss Norman Weber, used mostly as a reserve. Vashon will lose two, Arthur Smith and Lloyd Mickens.

McKinley graduates include Jerry Moore and Fred Walton, versatile athletes, who played football and baseball, too, and Don Mitchell.

Soldan Loses Four.
Soldan will have to carry on without four on the original list—Dewey Allen, Irv Chinsky, John Fitzgerald and Jake Leventhal—and three will depart from Washington Tech—Fred Dixon, Morris Matherson and Robert Williams.

Roosevelt loses 6-7 Charles Marlen and Central, the league football champion which is having tough going in basketball, will retain its original strength.

So, in most cases the eighth-termers will have two more games to play before ending their prep careers. Hadley Tech, leading the league with a 5-0 mark and 16-1 over-all, will oppose Summer, 4-0 and 12-1, in tomorrow's 7-30 game of a twin bill which matches Vashon and Central in the 9 o'clock contest.

Next Friday Hadley meets Beaumont in the feature of a tripleheader and on Jan. 28 Summer will play Vashon in an important game.
Beaumont opposes Cleveland at 8 tonight in the middle game of three at Hadley Tech. Washington Tech plays Roosevelt at 6:30 and Soldan meets Southwest at 9:30.

Mercy Faces McBride.
Mercy and McBride will break their 4-0 tie for the lead in the Catholic Athletic Conference with an engagement at Mercy. Other games are De Andreis at St. Mary's and Laboure at Du Bourg.

Country Day Triumphs.
John Burroughs, the A.B.C. League leader, will take its 2-0 mark to Western Military Academy where the Alton school has high-scoring Otto Bean and a 1-1 record. Burroughs may have to play without John Ross, injured regular.

Country Day yesterday upped its A.B.C. record to 2-1 with a 70-57 victory over Principia Academy. Jack Skilling, with 23 points, paced the Rams of Don Webb. Jaul Johansen contributed 15 and Jay Soest and Ted Garner another 12 apiece to the Codaco cause.

Mike Laughlin, with 16 points, and Paul Grimes and Tom Buttner, with 13 each, were high for Coach Jack Purzell's Panther squad. Principia, which led after the first quarter, 19-13, wilted under the second period attack of 25 points by Country Day.

In the third quarter Principia crept up to 47-51 but goals by Johansen and Skilling widened the gap to 55-47 and Country Day was not serious, threatened there as Principia went down to its third league defeat.

Across the river, East St. Louis, 2-3 in the Southwestern Conference, will go to Alton, 4-1 in the league. The Redbirds need a victory to tie Edwardsville and Collinsville which share first place at 5-1.

Akins Kavoes Cook in Fourth

DALLAS, Jan. 20 (AP)—Virgil Atkins, 150, of St. Louis, drove a terrific left hook to the stomach of Clarence Cook, 150, Bastrop, La., to register a knockout after 29 seconds of the fourth round in the scheduled 10-round main event of a boxing card last night.

A shivering crowd of 692 paying customers paid $1,187.50 despite some of the worst weather of the season to see the sixth-ranked welterweight score an impressive knockout.
Atkins started Cook on the road to defeat in the third round when he went under, then over, Cook's fine left and scored heavily to the midsection and then to the jaw. Cook took two rights to the jaw and was in trouble at the bell.

Al Jones, 150, St. Louis, knocked out Lupe Gutierrez, 160, San Antonio, Tex., in 1:45 of the third round with a left hook to the ribs.

Atkins is scheduled to box Mel Barker, of Austin, Tex., at the Almad Temple, E. St. Louis in a 10-round bout next Thursday night.

Harbert's 139 Shows Way in Colombia Golf

CALI, Colombia, Jan. 20 (UP)—Chick Harbert of Northville, Mich., posted a three-under-par 139 for 36 holes yesterday to take the lead after the second round of the twelfth annual Colombian Open golf championship.

Bob Tooki of Livingston, N. J., was second with 141 while Chandler Harper of Portsmouth, Va., and Argentine Raul Posse were tied for third place with 142. They were followed by George Bayer of Miami, Fla., and Art Wall, of Pocomo Manor, Pa., 143; Roberto de Vicenzo and Antonio Cerda, both of Argentina, 144.

The amateur division was headed by Colombian Enrique Samper, 156, followed by Bernard Riviere of the United States and Mexico's Enrique Sterling with 159.

BIG DIPPER

Officials of the Hanna Coal Co. standing in dipper of their company's new power shovel, which is believed to be the largest in the world. The shovel is a 2750-ton machine, towering 160 feet in the air, and the dipper will hold 90 tons of earth. Unveiled to the public yesterday at Cadiz, O., where it will be used in strip mining operations, the big shovel provided an unexpected thrill when controls failed and the dipper crashed to the ground close to ceremonial group.

GROUND FOR REPAIRS

Mack Franse, director of the zoo at Knoxville, Tenn., holding ailing bald eagle which was found grounded near Spring City, Tenn. Because the big birds are protected by federal statute, permission had to be obtained from the Fish and Wildlife Service before it could be captured. The zoo was given permission to keep the bird if Franse can diagnose its ailment and bring it back to health.

MANHUNT FOR MURDERER

Under the watchful eyes and guns of two Evansville (Ind.) detectives, Patrolman Elmer Brackett moves to halt truck at roadblock thrown up near Evansville yesterday following the escape of Leslie Irvin from jail at Princeton, Ind. Irvin, convicted in the murder of an Evansville man and believed to have killed five others in a spree of violence last year, was being held at Princeton pending removal to death cell at Indiana State Penitentiary. Search for him continued today, some of it centered in the St. Louis area.

The Pro Attender Problem on TV

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.

JUST about the world's worst and most persistent nuisance is the professional attender of television shows. Every emcee with an audience show has long known this and the public is rapidly finding it out.

JOHN CROSBY

The professional attender originated back in the days of radio, when he was nuisance enough. He'd trot around to every quiz and audience participation show and by wildly uninhibited tricks—he has a million of them—get in front of the microphone partly to win prizes—many of them had no other income—partly just to show off.

Because in radio he was invisible, the professional attender could get away with murder. To, say Groucho Marx, he'd represent himself as a fireman with 11 children (and name the 11 imaginary children); to Art Linkletter, he'd be a steamfitter who liked bird-watching. Unabashedly the pros would change their names, their professions, their birthplaces, their ages.

But while this was possible in radio, it isn't in television where the home viewer has sharp eyes and quickly notes that the guy who had 11 children on one show is a bachelor on another one.

BUT WHILE SPOTTING the professional quiz trotter is fairly simple, eliminating him isn't at all easy. The pros are highly organized and have an incredible grapevine. An emcee could slip a load of watches into New York at dead of night by submarine; the next morning, the pros would be first in line at his show, fully aware that watches were to be given away that day.

Jack Paar, whose loathing of the professional attender perhaps exceeds that of every other emcee in the business, tells of deciding one morning to give some hose away on that day's show. By show time, 1 p.m., the audience was jammed with pros. "I didn't tell anyone except a couple of stagehands," says Paar. "I can't even hold up an object like this pencil I got for Christmas. Somebody will yell: 'I need that. My boy's got polio and he wants to be a writer.'"

THE PROS HAVE ELIMINATED lots of things Paar liked to do on his show. For instance, he liked to scatter 10 pairs of theater tickets through the house, attaching them under the seats. Midway through the show he'd tell the people to look under their seats. The camera would pick up the delighted faces of the lucky ones. Immediately the grapevine got busy. The pros were soon first in line and they'd run up and down the rows, searching under the seats for theater tickets. That ended that.

Another bit, now gone, was his scavenger hunt. Paar would name some fairly unusual object—a four-leaf clover, a driver's license from California, a piece of linoleum, a letter signed "Love, Mom." If a woman just happened to have it in her handbag, Paar would call her up on stage and give her a watch. It created some amusing by-play such as the woman who admitted to having a pair of dice in her handbag but had some difficulty explaining what they were doing there. Soon, though, the pros started attending with shopping bags crammed with weird objects, hoping one of them would be the right one. One old pro did happen to have the right object—but it took her six minutes to find it.

PAAR IS SO DISILLUSIONED he hardly ever gives away anything any more. At the entrance of his CBS theater on Broadway are two signs, both slightly bitter: "Professional television contestants, jackpot-seekers and undisciplined exhibitionists! The Jack Paar show offers no canned goods, cash or Cadillac. All you are guaranteed is tax-free entertainment." The other one says in part: "You will be exposed to professional TV entertainers at room temperature for 30 minutes. There is neither a fee nor a reward for enjoying them."

Paar thinks the pros have had their day. Producers now have scouts out looking for "real" people as opposed to the phonies. You have to hunt pretty hard but they can be found.

Left-Handedness

By Dr. Paul Popenoe

LEFT-HANDEDNESS is one of the common family traits that is still imperfectly understood. It is commoner among boys than girls in the normal population. But among the feeble-minded (where it is unusually frequent), there seem to be more left-handed girls than left-handed boys. Epilepsy seems also to be associated with left-handedness more frequently than one would expect—although no one can say why.

Is it inherited? That is the question Mrs. de B. presents. "My husband and I are both left-handed," she says, "and some people tell us all of our children will therefore be left-handed. Is that a fact?"

ABOUT ALL that can be said, Mrs. de B., is that most of them are likely to be. There are many different forms of left-handedness, and they produce such confusion that some students have seriously doubted whether heredity has anything to do with this peculiarity. In the latest issue of the "American Journal of Human Genetics," however, the Swedish psychologist Arne Trankell reviews three American studies that have been made with great care, and he concludes that no one can really doubt the presence of an inherited tendency, which is very common in the population.

If a child is born left-handed should he be shifted over to the right hand, for convenience? It is often said that this may produce speech defects and even mental disturbance. Some students have ridiculed this idea, however, asserting that stuttering and other difficulties are not the result of the change, but of the unfortunate way in which parents produce it, by scolding, ridicule, tying the left hand in order to make the child use the right, and so on.

I BELIEVE this is an extreme view. If I had a left-handed child (and in fact, one of my four sons is left-handed), I would certainly not try to shift him over. I think there is plenty of evidence that the results may be harmful. Yes, Mrs. de B., most of your children will probably be left-handed, especially if they are boys. But they'll have plenty of company. Don't pay any attention to it.

Cold Shoulder for Marilyn Monroe

Executives Say They Put Low Premium on Personal Charm for Secretaries

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK, Jan. 20 (AP). COULD Marilyn Monroe walk into the average American business office and land a job as a secretary?

No, sirree, mister, she couldn't—not if you take the word of the nation's business men themselves (and I, for one, am not sure that I do).

A survey of leading executives on what they look for in a secretary, made by Carl Ray, research vice president of the Underwood Corp., placed personal charm way down on the list of desirable attributes. As a matter of fact, it ranked seventh.

Forty-six per cent of the bosses indicated they wanted initiative more than anything else in a secretary," Ray said. Why don't they place a higher premium on glamour in hiring a secretary?

Ray conceded the executives were ruled partly by their fears—fear of what their wife would say, fear that a too-pretty secretary would distract the other office hired hands, but added: "On a more positive basis, however, it's worth noting that secretaries today have to be executive assistants rather than just a plain old-fashioned secretary."

What bosses really want is somebody who can mind the store while they're gone."

The sampling showed opinion was divided on the question of whether single or married women make the best secretaries.

"Twenty-four per cent of the bosses stated a preference for single girls, 20 per cent preferred married secretaries, and the rest expressed no choice," Ray said.

ONE executive wrote: "The married woman is not concerned with whimsy and dating. She does a better job." Another philosophized thusly: "It's really not important. If a girl is single today, she'll get married eventually anyway."

After Initiative, the employers rated secretarial virtues in this order: the ability to type quickly and accurately, the ability to file and find information speedily, a winning telephone manner, punctuality and personal neatness.

Many older secretaries have complained it is difficult for them to land a new job after 40, and almost impossible after 50. The poll showed considerable justification for their complaint.

NONE of the business men came out for bobby-soxers as secretaries. But 48 per cent said they preferred to hire a secretary "somewhere between 20 and 40 years old." Another 27 per cent stipulated she had to be between the ages of 30 and 40.

The magic age for a secretary today therefore would seem to be 30.

"Right now I consider the ideal age to be between 25 and 35," wrote a New York sales executive. "But if I were 80 I might say the ideal age would be 60, or—he added as an afterthought—"maybe 20!"

What are the pet peeves of executives against their "favorite girl Friday?"

The chief sins of secretaries, the poll showed, are these: some take too many coffee breaks, place too many personal phone calls at the office, take part in office gossip, or simply indulge in too much plain old feminine yakky yak.

But the biggest trouble with secretaries was voiced by an unhappy Los Angeles business man, who said:

"They quit."

None of the executives, of course, took a lie detector test or a truth serum. Therefore I rather doubt that if Marilyn Monroe showed up in any of their offices looking for a job she would be turned away empty-handed.

The tired business man isn't that tired.

New Ideas For Using Cranberries

By Edith M. Barber

THE cranberry has come into its own as a fruit in recent years. For so long, perhaps because of its tart flavor, noticeably even when combined with plenty of sugar, it was considered only a relish, although an important one.

Sometimes we use it in raw form combined with orange juice and rind and sugar, and call it a relish. For the same purpose we may add diced pineapple and with the aid of a lemon-flavored gelatin, mold the mixture.

There are also a number of desserts to which the cranberry adds its individual flavor and also its lovely red color. One of my favorites is a tapioca pudding which, when topped with whipped cream, is as good to eat as it looks to the eye.

A cranberry product known as a juice cocktail has made a place for itself in bottled form. This is merely the cranberry juice sweetened and diluted with water, and can be used as a first course without any addition. Often we mix it with orange and lemon juice and sometimes all pineapple juice. A dash of Angostura bitters adds zest.

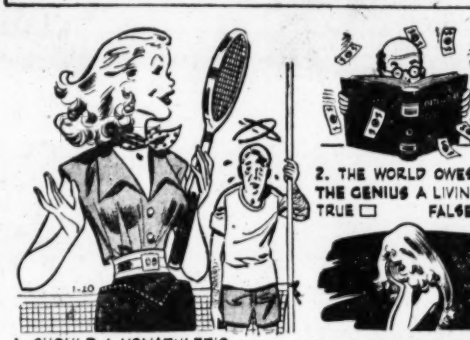

Teen-agers are particularly fond of a punch made by combining orange or lemon ice or vanilla ice cream with the cranberry cocktail. The natural bright color makes it appealing.

Cranberry Tapioca. Two cups cranberries. One-half cup water. One and one-fourth cups quick-cooking tapioca. One-half teaspoon salt. Three and one-half cups water. Cook cranberries in the one-half cup water in covered saucepan until skins burst, about six minutes, and remove from heat. Stir in sugar. Add tapioca and salt to water and cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until tapioca is clear, about three minutes. Stir in cranberries and chill. Serve with whipped cream. Yield: six servings.

Jellied Cranberry Relish. One large orange. Two cups raw cranberries. One cup diced pineapple. One-half cup sugar. Two tablespoons lemon juice. One three-ounce package lemon-flavored gelatin. Peel orange. Put with pulp and cranberries through a food chopper. Combine with pineapple, sugar and lemon juice. Prepare gelatin according to directions on package. Chill until syrupy. Fold in cranberry mixture. Pour into a one and one-half quart mold. Chill until firm. Yield: eight to 10 servings.

Let's Explore Your Mind

1. SHOULD A NONATHLETIC YOUNG MAN CHOOSE AN ATHLETIC GIRL FOR HIS WIFE? YES ☐ NO ☐

Answer to Question 1. IF AN athletic girl takes a shine to some anemic, non-athletic young man, she will probably choose him, and he will not be athletic enough to escape. The prospect for happiness would not be the best, because of differences in interests, energy, temperament.

Answer to Question 2. True. Nothing would pay the world bigger cash dividends than to seek the brightest children, give them the best education possible and start them on the road indicated by their strongest aptitudes. Ninety-nine per cent would not only make their own living, but they would enrich the world with inventions, art and new forms of wealth, that genius alone can create.

Answer to Question 3. There are reasons, but not good ones. The chief one is the old-time belief that mental disease meant being possessed by devils and evil spirits; also the belief that mental disease could never be cured. Beyond that is the fear people have of "losing their minds." If they did, they would not know it.

Answer to Question 4. In his extremely he will have to ask friends for the loan of their pens. They will not conceal their shock at getting such a request. The more courteous of them will grant it while looking anxious and distressed.

The less considerate friends will frankly comment on the unreasonableness of the request. They will want to know why a person has not got his own pen. They will see no good reason why he should have forgotten it. They will remark that he ought to check all his necessary tools for the day before leaving home.

They will make it very apparent that the borrower is being put under direct obligation. He can come to but one conclusion, which is, that they will get even shortly by asking some favor of his far more costly than the loan of a fountain pen.

When a man is without a fountain pen he will find it is cheaper in the long run to go out and buy one. If he can't do that, he can at least plead sickness and go home for the rest of the day.

Secrets of Charm Hurried Perfection

IT'S understandable that a busy life makes it necessary to dress hurriedly sometimes, but it's never forgivable to look as if you did. How can you turn yourself out in handbox perfection when time works against you?

Top authorities on this subject are fashion models, who may quick-change half a dozen times in one fashion show. Here are some of their dressing tips:

Always ready are correct underpinnings for each costume. A foundation garment that's right for one dress may not be right for another or for a suit, so there must be several.

All slips have been carefully fitted to show no underlying ripple in the finished effect, and there are light ones always for light dresses, dark ones for dark, and special petticoats. Kinds and colors of fresh stockings, shoes, gloves, jewelry and all other accessories are varied so each type of costume is perfectly complemented. And every item is right where the model can put her hands on it instantly.

Lightning changes behind the scenes wouldn't be possible if everything to be worn from the skin out weren't in perfect condition and set for the next trip down the fashion runway.

But that's not all there is to it. There's a certain model way of checking every detail before entering on cue. At the last minute, she runs quick fingers over fastenings, sets her neckline in the right place, squares her shoulder seams, makes as sure the hemline of a jacket is as even as the hem of a skirt or a stocking seam.

This is all done in a flash because the model has made it a habit, and so can you. Practice when you're not in a hurry, and the check-up soon becomes automatic and a wonderful build-up to the poise that makes you feel and look smartly dressed.

YOU CAN DRESS HURRIEDLY—BUT PERFECTLY.

Macabre Drollerie

I'M not sure that everyone will appreciate Alfred Hitchcock's whimsical joke, "THE TROUBLE WITH HARRY," which opens at the PAGEANT THEATER tonight, but I think those who dig it will find it a sheer delight.

Director Hitchcock, whose pixelish and mordant treatment of the morbid in his comments on his TV program has been refreshingly diverting, comes here with a gently screwball satire on the suspense melodrama of which he himself has been the outstanding perpetrator and master.

It is a droll shaggy-dog story, told with unhurried relish and dry succulence in which everyone violates all recognized rules for characters in murder mysteries. In the first place, it is laid in the pastoral serenity of Indian summer in Vermont, with the gorgeous trees, lush meadows and trim frame houses (enchantedly photographed in Vista-Vison) belying violence.

A retired sea captain, Edmund Gwenn, finds the body of Harry on a woody hillside and thinks he has shot Harry instead of the rabbit he aimed at. Efforts to hide the body are hampered by the fact everyone in the neighborhood seems to be strolling on the hillside that day, but all take the corpse quite calmly, even off-handedly, including Harry's widow (Shirley MacLaine). A carefree young artist (John Forsythe), who immediately falls in love with the comely young widow (reciprocated), and the sea captain have their changes of mind about disposing of Harry, planting him in the woods and then digging him up no less than four times in one day, and with all the good people of the countryside, including Mildred Natwick as a spinster and Mildred Dunno as a storekeeper, casually conspiring to frustrate justice, as represented by the local part-time deputy sheriff (Royal Dano). Harry, they reason, is just a nuisance in his present condition.

The grave and straight-faced innocence of all this, with the cast throwing its lines away with lazy indifference, makes the sly little whimsies peep out unexpectedly for chuckles rather than guffaws. "Harry" is a collector's item of slightly mad but charming nonsense.

Pallid Courtesan

In "DIANE," at LOEW'S STATE, the story of Diane de Poitiers, mistress of King Henry II of France and power behind the throne for the 12 years of Henry's reign ending in 1559, M-G-M merely nods towards historical facts most of the time, "...not presented as a precise account" ... is the way the press book casually expresses it. But in Diane, the producers had a brilliant, sophisticated and subtle historical character for a sound basis. They took a story by famous John Erskine and had the novelist Christopher Isherwood fashion it into a screen play. They created huge settings and gorgeous costumes. They drafted half the better character actors in Hollywood. And then they cast Lana Turner as Diane. ...

Miss Turner still is superbly molded and looks fine in a low-cut gown. But she cannot even play Lana Turner convincingly. Her acting range is about as wide as the scale of a tom-tom beat (eyes widen for sincerity, lips part for passion, stand very erect and throw the head back for hauteur). So "Diane" is a dud, both as a character and movie. The pomp grows into pomposity, the intrigue becomes boring, Isherwood's play falls into tedium.

In contrast to Miss Turner's vapid posturing, Marisa Pavan as Catherine de Medici, wife of Henry, offers a darkly passionate and vital performance. As Henry, Roger Moore manages to grow a beard in his later scenes to help disguise the fact his facial mobility is limited to an expression of petulance. The character actors are mostly competent—Pedro Armendariz as King Francis I, Henry Daniell as a venomous Medici plotter, Torin Thatcher as the Count de Breze, Diane's husband, Sean McClory as Count Montgomery, whose lance accidentally killed Henry in a jousting tournament. But Cedric Hardwicke has a hard time not looking ludicrous in a soothsayer's getup.

Although Moore sometimes seems young enough to be Miss Turner's son, an interesting facet is otherwise sedulously sidestepped—that Henry, who was only 14 when he was married to Catherine, actually was 20 years younger than his mistress, Diane, and she was 60 when he met his untimely death.

Faint Echoes of 'High Noon'

Probably "AT GUNPOINT," at the FOX, would have made more impression as an off-beat Western, if you weren't reminded so much of "High Noon." The protagonist, Fred MacMurray, is waiting for the bandit gang of four to come murder him in revenge for killing their leader in a bank holdup, and all the townspeople, after having made a big hero of Fred, now desert him in terror and leave him to face his fate alone. Except this goes even further. Instead of Gary Cooper's strong, grim marshal, Fred is just a humble storekeeper who had never fired a pistol before and had fool's luck in killing the bandit, so Fred is just as scared as everyone else. It's all right, I suppose, to cast a jaundiced eye on the movie legend that almost every man in the old West was a hard character, but this goes to the opposite extreme—has everyone in the town (a Texas town, too) helplessly quaking in his boots at the approach of the badmen. Fred and the story both have a certain homey, likable quality, and the CinemaScope production is good, but the suspense never achieves the tautness nor the atmosphere and the deadliness of "High Noon," so it rates as a minor effort.

Jane and Rock Together Again

There have been movies before where teen-age children had rebelled over the remarriage of a widowed parent, but I don't think any of them contained the agonies, all strictly synthetic, that poor Jane Wyman suffers in "ALL THAT HEAVEN ALLOWS," at the ST. LOUIS.

She is a wealthy widow in a small town in New England who falls in love with her gardener. Don't be alarmed—this is emphatically not another "Lady Chatterley's Lover." For he isn't really a gardener, he owns a nursery and tree-pruning business and is going into the wholesale tree raising business. And he lives a simple, clean life, he hates pretense, and he's a dab at restoring an old mill into the quaintest, coziest home this side of Huse and Garden. And besides, he's Rock Hudson. If he and the widow have an affair, it is hinted at most discreetly. He wants Jane to marry him, and she wants to marry him. But they can't. She's older than he is, the children don't like it, her friends don't like it. Her friends sneer at him over their cocktails. That gardener fellow? And, my, the gossip. It takes a bad accident and a Vigil By The Bedside to straighten things out.

Personally I can't think that "nice people" would all be as boorish as this has them, or well-brought up children would be quite as stupidly stuffy. But I suppose that's beside the point. The point is, it makes another glossy, soap-operash, wistful romantic vehicle for Jane and Rock to follow "The Magnificent Obsession." What it chiefly lacks is a sense of humor—otherwise it might smile at itself just a bit.

For he isn't really a gardener, he owns a nursery and tree-pruning business and is going into the wholesale tree raising business. And he lives a simple, clean life, he hates pretense, and he's a dab at restoring an old mill into the quaintest, coziest home this side of Huse and Garden. And besides, he's Rock Hudson. If he and the widow have an affair, it is hinted at most discreetly. He wants Jane to marry him, and she wants to marry him. But they can't. She's older than he is, the children don't like it, her friends don't like it. Her friends sneer at him over their cocktails. That gardener fellow? And, my, the gossip. It takes a bad accident and a Vigil By The Bedside to straighten things out.

Personally I can't think that "nice people" would all be as boorish as this has them, or well-brought up children would be quite as stupidly stuffy. But I suppose that's beside the point. The point is, it makes another glossy, soap-operash, wistful romantic vehicle for Jane and Rock to follow "The Magnificent Obsession." What it chiefly lacks is a sense of humor—otherwise it might smile at itself just a bit.

She Wants to 'Outlaw Hunger in U.S.'

St. Louis Congresswoman Leonor Sullivan Pressing Bill for Food Stamp Plan to Aid the Needy

By Virginia Irwin

A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.

MRS. LEONOR SULLIVAN, the first and only woman ever elected to the United States Congress from Missouri, is as stubborn as the famed mule of her native state when it comes to fighting for legislation in which she is particularly interested.

One of Mrs. Sullivan's most persistent battles ever since she arrived on Capitol Hill in January 1953 to begin her first term as the representative from Missouri's Third Congressional District, has been over the passage of her bill "to outlaw hunger in the United States." The bill provides for a stamp plan under which the nation's billions of dollars in surplus foods could be drawn upon to feed needy Americans.

Recently former President Harry S. Truman criticized President Eisenhower's program to reduce price-depressing farm surpluses by paying American farmers to withdraw millions of acres of land from production, and suggested, among other things, that our country use the surpluses to improve the diet of the underprivileged here at home. This is what Representative Sullivan has been advocating in a bill she introduced first in the Eighty-third Congress and in revised form in the House again last session.

"My bill to get some of our surplus food into the stomachs of hungry people would authorize the Secretary of Agriculture to distribute a portion—I would estimate that portion to be about one billion dollars a year—of our surplus food stocks to our country's needy families under a stamp plan," the lady legislator from St. Louis explained in her office on Capitol Hill. "This bill is no over-all solution for surpluses accumulating under the price-support program and it doesn't pretend to be. But it is an attempt to put part of this tremendous food surplus to humane use and to get some of it—a small portion of it—to kids who aren't getting enough milk, eggs and meat, and to families who just simply aren't getting enough to eat."

Now attempting to get the chairman of the House Agriculture Committee to bring her food stamp bill out of committee, Mrs. Sullivan believes that the bill will, if passed, not only channel food to those in need, but also be of great aid to the farmer in thus helping to reduce the price-depressing surpluses.

VARIOUS departments of Government, Mrs. Sullivan says, have been cool to her stamp plan because no Government department wants the cost of distribution of the surplus food included in its budget. Testifying before the House Agriculture Committee she said: "Millions of Americans who need this surplus food are not getting any of it. I want to see some of them get some of it on a planned, intelligent, smoothly-run, regularly-operating program of the Government." And she added that the committee "may feel as the Department of Agriculture seems to feel, that the problem of feeding hungry people in the United States should not be mixed up with the price support program."

Mrs. Sullivan believes that the stamp plan's economic effect on this country would more than offset the cost of her program for distributing surplus food to America's needy. Families on relief, while receiving surplus eggs, milk, products and other foods of which this nation has too much, she says, would have the dollars represented by these foods to buy other family needs and thus benefit their local merchants.

"The food stamp plan is aimed primarily at persons and families on relief, on public assistance, or in need of such assistance but ineligible because of legal technicalities," Mrs. Sullivan said. "Figures show that more than three-fourths of all the people on the welfare lists are small children and old folks over 70. Surplus food would give them food which they are now not able to have because even the maximum amount of relief they now receive doesn't permit them to buy the right foods for an adequate diet."

Mrs. Sullivan suggests that standards of eligibility for receiving food from our surplus stocks be determined by the Secretaries of Agriculture, Labor and Health, Education and Welfare. She would provide these "blessings of surplus food" not only to people on welfare rolls but the needy whose unemployment compensation has terminated or who are on a waiting period to get unemployment compensation. It would also apply to those who are not eligible for unemployment compensation and have no way of procuring the necessary food for themselves and their families except through private charities.

Mrs. Sullivan emphasizes that a key provision of her bill provides that surplus food allotments made under her stamp plan would be in addition to—and not in place of—any public assistance grants recipients might already be getting. She also emphasizes that the bill would in no way interfere with programs now in operation, such as school lunches, foreign aid, assistance to hospitals, and other successful plans already under way.

"THINK what it would mean to folks who are now going hungry to find themselves in possession each week of a few stamps calling for, say, a pound of butter, a certain amount of dry eggs or whatever," Mrs. Sullivan said. "I think this food stamp plan might bring not only new hope but new strength and new health to millions of needy Americans."

A dynamic woman, "say past 40," Leonor Sullivan, now in her second term in Congress, is getting ready to run for a third term. Completely absorbed in her work, she calls her job "wonderful and now my whole life."

THE widow of John B. Sullivan, who was serving his fourth term in the House at the time of his death in January 1951, Mrs. Sullivan was born and reared in St. Louis, the daughter of the late Frederick W. Kretzer and the late Nora Jostrand Kretzer. Educated in public and private schools in St. Louis, she attended Washington University at night, taking special training in vocational psychology. She taught business arithmetic and accounting and then served as director of the St. Louis Business Training School prior to her marriage in 1941.

In Washington Mrs. Sullivan worked in her husband's office and campaigned at his side during his Congressional career. Immediately following her husband's death she served briefly as administrative assistant to Representative Irving of Missouri. In 1952, she won the Democratic nomination for Congress in St. Louis' Third District over seven other candidates and in the general election in November defeated Claude I. Bakewell, the Republican Congressman, who had succeeded her husband the previous year.

Because of her interest in housing legislation, and particularly in the advancement of urban redevelopment and slum clearance, Mrs. Sullivan was selected by the House Democratic leadership in 1955 for a seat on the House Committee on Banking and Currency, which handles all housing legislation. In addition, she is one of the senior ranking Democratic members on the House Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries.

MOST of the bills introduced by Congresswoman Sullivan have been directly related to the work of her own committees in the House or have dealt with the problems of her own St. Louis district. But she has also taken a leading part in a number of broad policy issues dealing particularly with the health and welfare of the individual citizen.

One of her most important bills which she introduced, in company with other members of Congress from St. Louis and Missouri's two Senators, was one to authorize a flood control program for the protection of St. Louis. The bill passed the House last July and Mrs. Sullivan is now working for appropriations necessary to get the project under way.

Since the beginning of her first term in Congress, she has favored more adequate appropriations for the Food and Drug Administration of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. She has also taken a crusading interest in the new housing law and was sponsor of an amendment to provide additional public housing for elderly persons. The amendment was lost in a last-minute conference committee compromise, but Mrs. Sullivan intends to fight for it again during the present session of Congress.

After her husband's death, Mrs. Sullivan shared a Washington apartment with another Congresswoman, Vera Buchanan (Dem.), Pennsylvania. Since Congresswoman Buchanan died last year, Mrs. Sullivan has lived alone. She cares little for strictly social life and most of her evenings are taken up with official functions.

"Being a Congresswoman is a type of work to which you have to give everything you have," she said. "Actually you have no such thing as a private life. There are responsibilities but there are also great rewards."

"I get my greatest satisfaction out of my job when I go back home to St. Louis and get around my district and hear the expressions of gratitude from people for the little things I may have been able to accomplish for them—things done through legislation to make their life a little easier."

Closest to Leonor Sullivan's heart on the list of things she wants to do is her bill for the stamp plan.

"It's time," says Mrs. Sullivan, "that the Department of Agriculture began to take a different attitude and treat the food surplus as a blessing that can be used to aid our needy, instead of just wanting to get rid of it as soon as possible, and preferably overnight, overseas, behind the Iron Curtain or some other handy place."

The following column is prepared by experts using the bridge system developed by the late Ely Culbertson:

SOUTH's bidding, plus his excellent technique in the play, earned quite a few points for his side even though the contract was only for a part-score.

North, dealer.

The bidding (rubber bridge):
North East South West
1♦ Pass 1NT Pass
Pass Dbl. Pass Pass Pass

The most notable feature of this auction was South's proper choice of one no-trump rather than one spade for his response. Some pseudo-scientific players make an invariable practice of showing a four-card major suit, no matter how anemic it is, but the long-range virtue of this notion has not been demonstrated.

This is not so say that the no-trump response is an absolute must on the South hand. With only six high-card points, South might elect to pass. But if he does bid, he is (to repeat) on sounder ground with one no-trump than with one spade.

West, understandably reluctant to lead the diamond suit bid by North, opened the three of spades. The queen was put up, and when East played the ace, South false-carded the five—he wanted East to think that the lead might be from a long suit. East returned the spade seven, and West forced the king with the jack. Declarer then cashed the spade nine and led a heart from the board, taking East's ten with the queen. South did not, however, cash the spade ten. Instead, he led a club and finessed against the queen. East ducked, but he couldn't throw declarer off the track. South led another heart, to the ace, and again refrained from cashing the good spade because he didn't want to lead a club from dummy. He led another club, soon set up dummy's fourth heart, and finally made two diamond tricks by leading low to his ten and ending play West. So South collected nine tricks and 530 points.

Skiing in East and West Attracts St. Louisans

By Marilee Chadeayne Martin

A WEEKEND of skiing at Stowe, Vt., will be enjoyed over Saturday and Sunday by two St. Louisans, Miss Patricia and Miss Mary Koehler Vollmer, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Karl Koehler Vollmer, 1 Mary Hill, Ladue. Miss Patricia

MISS MARY VOLLMER... PLANS SKI TRIP.

Vollmer, who makes her home in New York, will join her sister and a group of her classmates from Briarcliff Junior College, Briarcliff Manor, N.Y., who will journey to Stowe on a ski train. Miss Patricia Vollmer also spent last weekend skiing, at Mont Tremblant, Ont., with friends from New York.

Mrs. Vollmer and her youngest daughter, Miss Jane, will leave next Thursday for New York to visit Miss Patricia at her apartment.

While there Miss Mary, a debutante of this season, will join them on her between-semester holidays. Mrs. Vollmer and her youngest daughter expect to be away a week during Miss Jane's mid-year break from Mary Institute, where she is a junior. In New York and near-by areas they will look at schools Miss Jane is interested in attending after finishing her studies at Mary Institute next year.

The Vollmers moved to their Mary Hill home shortly before Christmas from 20 Upper Ladue road.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Hamilton Bunce (Gail Goessling) of Manhasset Village are in the East for several weeks. They will spend the weekdays in New York, where Mr. Bunce has business, and on weekends will visit various eastern ski resorts.

Miss Carpenter Plans Mid-February Wedding.

MISS ISOBEL SUTHERLAND CARPENTER and James Vance Howerton, whose engagement was announced last autumn, have selected Feb. 11 as the date for their wedding. The ceremony will take place at 4 o'clock in the afternoon at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James M. Carpenter, 9 Lindworth lane, Ladue. The Rev. Dr. W. Davidson McDowell of Ladue Chapel will officiate. Guests, members of the immediate families, will remain at the Carpenter home for a reception.

Miss Caroline Carpenter will serve as her sister's only attendant. Mr. Howerton, son of Mr. David B. Karraker, 411 West Adams avenue, Kirkwood, and the late Vance Howerton, has asked Paul Jaenicke to be his best man.

A list of pre-wedding parties for Miss Carpenter will be announced later.

Miss Saunders Married in New York.

PROMINENT among New York weddings this season was that yesterday of Miss Elizabeth Lunt Saunders, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hyde Saunders, 1185 Park avenue, New York, and Townsend Hornor, son of Mr. and Mrs. John West Hornor of New York and Osterville, Mass. The ceremony took place at All Souls Unitarian Church and was followed by a small reception at the Clubhouse of the New York Junior League.

The bride is a granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hyde Saunders of St. Louis, whose home was at 13 Crestwood drive, Clayton, and a great-niece of the late Dr. Edward Watts Saunders, noted pediatrician and founder of Bethesda Hospital. She is a niece of Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Saunders, 47 Fair Oaks, Ladue, and Dr. and Mrs. E. Watts Saunders of New York.

Honor attendants for the bride were her sisters, Mrs. Peter G. Goulondris (Katherine Saunders), who was married in October, and Miss Donna Saunders. Bridesmaids were Mrs. John G. Lee Jr., Mrs. Robert Koucky, Miss Merrielle Rice and Miss Lucille Roesler, all of New York; Miss Lucie Mayer of Bennington, Vt., and Miss Isabel Brewster of Glen Cove, L.I.

DeWitt Hornor served as best man for his brother, whose ushers included another brother, John W. Hornor Jr., Mr. Goulondris, Sidney Cullford, Arthur Halenbeck and Arthur Sesselberg of New York, and H. Thompson Woodland Jr. of Middleburg, Va.

The bride was graduated from the Masters School, Dobbs Ferry, N.Y., in 1950 and Smith College, with the class of 1954. She made her debut at the 1950 New York Junior League Ball. Mr. Hornor is an alumna of Harvard College, where he belonged to the D.U. Club and Hasty Pudding-Institute of 1970. He served with the Navy during World War II and is now associated with an investment banking firm in Boston.

Mid-Winter Dance at Woman's Club.

THE ST. LOUIS WOMAN'S CLUB will climax its winter social season with a dinner dance Saturday night, Jan. 28, the last before the Lenten season.

Drury College Panhellenic House Opened

TO house the sororities on the campus at Drury College, Springfield, Mo., the school administration has completed a new building, Panhellenic House, which was opened this week. Formal dedication, with a ceremony conducted by the Panhellenic Council, will take place early in February. The five sororities with chapters at Drury, Pi Beta Phi, Alpha Phi, Kappa Delta, Delta Delta Delta and Zeta Tau Alpha, held open house last Sunday afternoon, entertaining members of the college faculty, district and national officers, alumnae and their families. The new building, located near the center of the campus, is of one-story, ranch-type construction with two long wings. The suites were drawn by lot by the five sororities and each suite contains a very large living room, powder room, kitchen, storage rooms for card tables, supplies and sorority paraphernalia.

Alpha Omicron Pi alumnae will have their January meeting Monday evening at the home of Mrs. Jack Barcham, 602 East Essex avenue, Glendale. On the program will be a talk and demonstration of making of ceramics by Mrs. Edward Knott.

Mrs. Robert J. Crossen, chairman of the building projects committee of the St. Louis Y.W.C.A., formally accepted in a brief ceremony Thursday the snack bar which Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority presented to the County Branch of the "Y" in Clayton. Mrs. Richard D. Thomas, alumnae president of Kappa, represented the sorority. The equipment of the snack bar is used to serve light refreshments at social functions for teenage groups.

Delta Gamma Mothers' Club of Washington University will meet for luncheon Monday at the home of Mrs. R. F. Stis, 7401 Woodland Way, Normandy. Assistant hostesses will be Mrs. John A. Nordman and Mrs. J. D. Kalemaris. The national president of the Girls' Friendly Society, Mrs. Harold Woodward, will address the meeting. The annual luncheon and card party of the club will be given Feb. 13 at the De Soto Hotel.

Sigma Nu Mothers' Club will meet Thursday at 12:30 p.m. at the home of Mrs. William Moeller, 5845 Nottingham avenue. On the hostess committee for the luncheon are Mrs. Lester W. Penn, Mrs. Irwin C. Utz and Mrs. A. H. Wunderlich.

Annual Luncheon. THE TWENTIETH CENTURY ART CLUB will have its annual luncheon Monday in the Crystal room of Missouri Athletic Club. The theme for the luncheon, scheduled for 12:30 p.m., will be "Ye Merry Old England." Decorations and the program will be in keeping with the theme. After luncheon Mrs. Clark Cox, club president, and Mrs. William Bocott will give two scenes from "A School for Scandal," and there will be a musical program with Miss Nancy Stoffregen playing flute selections and a trio of singers presenting English songs.

My Day

A Delightful Time With Democrats

By Eleanor Roosevelt

NEW YORK.

I MUST tell you about my final day of my recent western trip so that the record will be complete. This was in Dallas, where I went to speak for the Americans for Democratic Action Roosevelt dinner.

It was a beautiful day and since Miss Maureen Corr, my secretary, had gone on through to New York from San Antonio, I was delighted to be greeted by a charming young man whom I had met at my son's ranch last summer and who took lunch with me.

Later in the afternoon I met with some Democratic women's groups and then went to the Press Club for a conference. It always seems strange to find myself in an environment where everybody announces that he is a Democrat. Even though there may be differences among them, they are all Democrats. In Dutchess county, New York, my neighbors, for the most part, are Republicans.

THE DINNER in the evening was a huge affair, with 1500 people attending.

I thought this dinner was very dramatically arranged. At one point my husband's voice was heard spreading throughout the very large hall and as they played records of different speeches by him, someone would come to the podium and tie in his speech with something that was happening today.

If all the people present at the dinner joined the Dallas ADA, they must have gained a great number of members, and I hope they also received some subscriptions.

WHEN THE DINNER came to a close I was driven to the airport and made my plane for New York very comfortably. Good weather was with us and we landed exactly on time. I did not have time, however, to really take in the amount of mail that waited on my desk.

That same morning on arriving in New York I caught the 10 o'clock train to Philadelphia and this gave me a chance to catch a little extra sleep before arriving there.

I went in for a few minutes to a meeting of the women's group of the American Jewish Congress and then proceeded to the Franklin Institute where Mayor Richardson Dilworth presented me with the City of Philadelphia Franklin medal. This award was made at a lunch in the beautiful rotunda where Benjamin Franklin's statue looked down on us all.

Sir Winston Churchill, the other recipient of the medal, has just received his in London in the house where Franklin lived when he went to Philadelphia on his various missions. It is a beautiful medal and I will, of course, give it at once to the Library at Hyde Park.

I was also given a publication, called "Mr. Franklin," which was just put out by the Yale University Press as part of its project to publish all of Benjamin Franklin's correspondence. This small volume is just a few selected letters showing his humor, his kindness, his ability to be sharp when necessary, and his great versatility. I read it all the way back on the train to New York and enjoyed it immensely.

Martha Carr's

Today's column is devoted to teen-agers who are invited to submit their problems to Martha Carr.

Dear Martha:

CAN you please help me? I am very much in love with a boy and vice versa. But he is living with his step-father and if his stepfather sees him so much as look at a girl he isn't allowed to leave the house for a whole week.

I see him at church sometimes and when his father isn't looking we sneak off and talk. We go to different schools so we only get to see each other about once each month. Please tell me, Martha, how can we get together? We are really very much in love.

ONE IN LOVE.

You don't state your age but if you are still in your early teens, don't make the mistake of insisting on seeing each other against his step-father's wishes. I realize you're crazy about him, although I doubt that you're really in love, but even so, what joy can you get out of sneaking around and knowing he will be in trouble if he is caught? The more you do that, the less his stepfather will want him to be with you. It's hard, I know, but until you are older and can make your own decisions regardless of what others say, don't be guilty of seeing someone on the sly.

Dear Martha:

YOU MAY THINK this is silly but I have a small puppy and I like it very much. So do the people across the street. Every time I want to find the dog, it's always across the street and when I go over there, they have already fed it. When the dog is in their yard and I want to play with it, it won't come, so I have to leave it there. My mother says this has to stop but she won't tell them because she wants to be friends. What should I do? Tie up the dog or forget about it?

PUPPY TROUBLE.

I don't think it's silly at all. It's a very serious question. I really think your mother should ask the neighbors not to feed the dog as it is on a certain diet and schedule and to feed it at other times may make it ill. Isn't there any way you can keep the puppy at home? Maybe a long chain on the clothesline would give it the freedom it needs and still keep it from running across the street. You have the right to feed your own dog.

Dear Martha:

I WOULD LIKE TO ASK a boy to my school prom but do not know just how to do it. Also, what would I be expected to pay for? He has graduated from school already.

WONDERING.

If it is the custom for girls to invite boys, then you can merely write him a note or telephone an invitation. You would pay for the tickets in that case, but he would provide the transportation and the refreshments after the dance unless you joined other couples at someone's home. If girls do not usually invite boys, then I don't think it would be a good idea. It's no fun to miss a prom, but don't embarrass yourself by going against custom.

What to Wear

By Louise Trescott

MOST of us learn the hard way—about shopping for clothes. A common pitfall is the insidious excitement of the dressing room. We see dress after dress dropped over our shoulders and we lose our sense of values. We often emerge with something we never meant to buy. Soon sober reflection destroys initial elation. Mrs. T. puts it this way: "I am one of the women who has been swayed too hurriedly and too often by my own poor judgment—with the result that I have a hodge-podge in my closet. My clothing fund is limited but I do know the value of a planned wardrobe. I am a housewife and need few dressy clothes—just a few good things. "My big problem is trying to decide between navy or black as my basic color. I like navy but do have two black dresses and black accessories I can't discard. What can I do? I am 35 with medium brown hair, somewhat grayed, with light skin, sprinkled with freckles. I am five-foot-three, 118 pounds and a little too hippy. Please list a few pieces for spring, color and types, and I'll try not to swerve."

SINCE YOU HAVE these black pieces you wish to continue to use, it seems sensible to forget trying to establish navy as your basic. How about using gray instead? I'm quite sure a cool bluish gray is becoming to you. This would combine well with your present blacks and would also team well with navy, when and if you decide to establish navy as your basic.

Furthering this idea, I suggest these pieces for spring: A full-length coat in gray, gently full with plain flowing lines, the fabric rather smooth in finish. A semi-classic suit in fine gray tweed, sparsely flecked with powder blue. A basic street dress in navy of very thin wool or silken crepe. Accessorize these things mostly in navy with touches of white and your best pastels, probably blue, pink and violet, and their many variants.

THUS YOU BEGIN a wardrobe that will go with navy as its basic later. At the same time your new gray coat will go well with your present black dresses and accessories. Accent these black costumes with white and same pastels, as above.

I hope I have simplified your dilemma. Have the will power to cling to the above suggestions and you will soon have your wardrobe under control.

The Question Box

By Josephine Lowman

QUESTION: "I am almost 15 years old and have the problem of very narrow hips. I am ashamed of them. I wear full skirts but all of my friends wear narrow ones. What can I do to increase my hips without losing weight?"

Answer: When you say, "without losing weight," it makes me wonder if you are underweight. If you are, of course, a gain will help the hips. Also, do this exercise. Stand facing the wall. Place both hands on the wall. Swing the left leg back as far as you can. Bring it back to place. Swing the right leg back and then bring it down to place. Continue, alternating left and right.

Only the slim girl looks really well in full skirts. I bet a lot of your friends would like to be able to wear them.

Film Gossip From Hollywood

By Sheila Graham

HOLLYWOOD.

RITA HAYWORTH's lawsuit with Columbia may not be decided for another two months, so Rita and her devoted swain, Raymond Hakim, have taken off for Paris.

Lou Costello will enter his prize-winning 2-year-old, Bazooka, for a big purse at Santa Anita track this season. Bazooka won $50,000 for Lou the last time out. Lou's next picture with Bud Abbott has the off-beat title, "Dance With Me, Henry." . . . All the movie heroes are scrambling to play Debussy in the movie version of Pierre La Mure's upcoming book, "Clair de Lune." Jose Ferrer's Toulouse Lautrec, if you remember, was from La Mure's best seller, "Moulin Rouge."

THERE IS no love lost among the young English stars in Hollywood—including Joan Collins, Victoria Shaw and Dana Wynter. . . . Come to think of it, Anita Ekberg has received more publicity for the fewest pictures since Jane Russell marked time with "The Outlaw." . . . All of Jimmy Van Heusen's close pals have promised to attend the song-writer's piano bar opening at the Desert Inn in Palm Springs. And they'll make quite a chorus—Bing Crosby, Frank Sinatra, Doris Day, Nat King Cole and Eddie and Debbie Fisher.

Mickey Rooney has been signed by Universal International's Vice President Ed Muhl to replace Donald O'Connor in the "Francis" series. Negotiations were opened with the Mick several weeks ago and the deal was completed last Friday. The first of the new series with Rooney will be "Francis in the Haunted House," and production gets under way early in the spring.

Phyllis. He'll get the green light after the preview of "Inherit the Wind."

Pier Angeli called to talk of her role as Mrs. Rocky Graziano in Metro's movie of the fighter, "Somebody Up There Likes Me." "They made the girl an Italian, and it's good for me," said Pier. Scotland yard still has no clues on who robbed Pier and her husband, Vic Damone, of around $20,000 in jewels and clothing from their London apartment. "They came back twice to get the mink coat Vic gave me for Christmas but I wouldn't let it out of my sight," Pier reported. The robbery ruined the holidays for them, Vic told me. He isn't complaining, but I wish Metro would put Vic in a musical that would do something for his fine singing voice.

The Little Woman

Advice for the New Woman of the Year

By Clarissa Start

MRS. THOMAS M. SAYMAN has been named Woman of the Year by the Women's Chamber of Commerce and the choice is an excellent one. The Woman of the Year award is presented annually to a woman who has made a civic contribution on a volunteer basis. Mrs. Sayman, or Gridiron Archangel Luella, who was sponsored by Mrs. George P. Johannes, certainly qualifies on that basis for this or any year.

Having been the proud recipient of the W.O.Y. Award last year, I feel it only proper to pass on a few hints to my successor as to what she might expect. In my naive last year, I assumed it would be an honor presented one night, noted briefly in the press the next day, and then forgotten. How wrong I was. To be Woman of the Year means exactly that; your honor and your responsibility is of a year's duration.

THE DAY AFTER what was referred to in our family as the coronation ball, the phone rang and rang. A large number of callers were men who would say, "I am the program chairman of our club and we are having our annual ladies' night and who would be a more appropriate speaker than the Woman of the Year?" Who indeed?

Women's organizations have the same idea. Also junior clubs, chairmen of high school quill and scroll banquets, and teachers in charge of career conferences. You will find, Mrs. Sayman, that when these groups aim their sights at a sitting duck, you will be the first target to come into view.

During the year I made 37 speeches; at the beginning of the year I was terrified at the sound of my own voice and at the end of the year, just sick of it. There was a speech to 1000 student nurses at a convention, to a garden tea for the Y.W.C.A., a 7 a.m. talk to the Credit Women's Bosses Day breakfast, an August luncheon for the China-Burma-India veterans' auxiliary, talks to the Homer Phillips hospital board, the Career Women's Club at Second Presbyterian Church, to Washington U.'s School of Social Work, the Aeronautical Chart Women's Club, to a wonderfully receptive audience of 75 blind women at the National Council of Jewish Women's Christmas party for them, and many, many others. Including the Women's Chamber of Commerce.

STILL WITH ME, Mrs. Sayman? I was interviewed by Louise Munsch Dopping on radio, made cheesecake with Wil-

Teen-Age Guys, Dolls Problems

By Elinor Williams

THERE are always problems from guys and dolls in the teen mail. This girl wants her date to "go steady."

"I have been going with a boy for quite a while and I want him to ask me to go steady. What should I do in that case?"

Answer—The best way to put the "steady" dating idea into his head is to do it indirectly without mentioning it, so he'll think it's his idea. Let him know that he's your very special date by always inviting him when there's a party or a girl's shindig or a "ladies choice" dance.

HE'LL KNOW that you prefer him if you suggest a house date now and then . . . this tells him that you like to be with him even when there are no big date plans . . . that you'd rather be at home with him than out with somebody else. Getting an invitation from you and spending a Friday night at home occasionally puts your dating on a more "steady" basis than when you just say "yes" to his invitations. You could also mention casually that a couple you both know are going steady now . . . if he's shy, this will give him a good chance to ask you.

"IS IT ALL RIGHT for a girl to telephone a boy?"

Answer—It's better for a girl not to telephone a boy just to chat. It embarrasses some boys, their parents don't like it and it makes a girl look so dateless that she's chasing him. Of course it's OK to telephone a boy when you have a real reason for the call . . . such as asking him for the English assignment or inviting him to a party or a dance. Occasionally.

Social Problems Answers

By Emily Post

I AM presently dating a girl who feels that it is proper for a boy to say good-night in the hall and leave, after which she then unlocks her door and enters her apartment. I feel it is rather awkward to leave the girl standing in the hall, and am of the opinion that she (or perhaps I) should unlock the door, say good-night in the doorway and close the door as soon as I start to leave. I would appreciate your advice on this matter.

DEAR MRS. POST: My wife died two months ago. No one can ever take her place, but I am very lonely and long for companionship of the right kind. Can you tell me what is the conventional length of time that should elapse before a widower can show attention to another woman without causing comment.

Answer: Six months.

DEAR MRS. POST: What is one supposed to say to a man and his wife receiving at their golden wedding anniversary? I mean when the guest doesn't know either one very well, but is a friend of a member of the family?

Answer: All best wishes.

It's an Idea

Where do you keep the garbage pail? Why not hang it on the cabinet door under the sink? Simply add a wire hook which automatically opens the lid as shown.

Memo to a BLONDE

By Rob Eden

CHAPTER TWENTY-FIVE

THE magnificence of the Pennsylvania country was thrilling to Jan. The wooded hillsides rose in spectacular tiers after tiers of multi-hued greenery, fading into the azure sky far in the distance.

The grass beneath the trees was lush, and wild flowers were everywhere.

The truck began to heat up, and Casey was concerned about it.

"Have to stop and fix the fan belt," he told Jan. "Been having trouble with it. It's too loose."

When Casey cut out the engine and stopped the truck, the cry of birds was the only sound that broke the stillness of the woods. Jan climbed down from the cab and clambered over a pile of rocks to reach a colorful patch of wild flowers. She picked violets, buttercups and jacked-in-the-pulpits while Casey tinkered with the truck.

Jan had almost forgotten her experience in the abandoned shed when he called to her. She left the bed of flowers reluctantly, taking with her a huge bouquet of blossoms.

"I haven't picked wild flowers since I was in grammar school," she told Casey.

He started the engine and they continued on their way. In a short time they dropped down between hills, emerging in a valley where they found their first paved road. It was a secondary highway, only two lanes wide, but was welcome to Jan.

She had been bouncing on the hard cushion of the seat, every jolt reminding her of her night on a cold floor with no covering over her.

Now they saw farm houses in the distance, and plowed fields.

"There's a gas station. Stop and see if they have a telephone," Jan called.

"All right," the boy replied. "I'll get water in my radiator. I'll have to make a collect call," Jan told him. "And I haven't any change to call the operator. Can you lend me a dime?"

"I'll see," he said.

He fished into his jeans pocket and brought out a coin. "Here you are."

Jan went into the telephone booth, dropped the dime and rang the operator. "This is Jan Smith," she told her. "I want to put through a collect call to my father in New York."

She gave the apartment phone number. "Stay on the line," the operator told Jan. "The connection was made at once. Jan could hear the telephone ringing, but no one answered. She couldn't imagine her father had gone to work when he would be so worried about her."

"There is no answer," the operator said. "Shall I ring them again in 20 minutes?"

"Never mind," Jan said sadly, and hung up.

She picked the dime out of the return slot and went out to the truck.

"Thanks for the dime," she said to Casey. "I couldn't get my call through. Dad isn't home."

"We can try further up the line," the boy said.

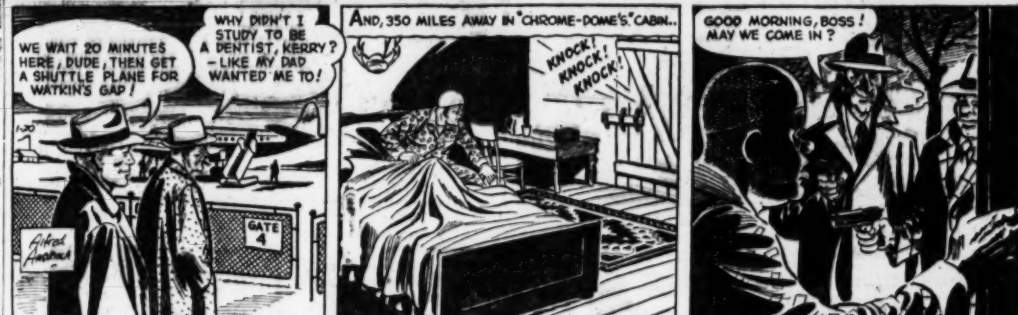

During the next few miles they passed several small hamlets. Jan looked at the gas indicator. It registered almost empty. "What about your gas?" she asked fearfully.

"Gee! I forgot all about that. Got so excited about seeing New York," Casey told her. "We'll have to get some."

"Casey, I must tell you something. Those fine friends of mine cleaned me out. Took every cent I had. I'm broke. I can get money in New York, but I haven't got a red cent now."

Casey laughed. "You know something? That time I loaned you won't buy much gas. And that's my roll. Honest. It is. We aren't going far, are we?"

"I'll have to make a collect call," Jan told him. "And I

"We must do something," Jan said. "And very soon. We'll be out of gas. Where could I pawn my watch? That's all I have that would bring anything."

"Gee, I don't know. We can try at the next town."

The next town was only a village with a few stores, but the gas was almost gone. So Jan had Casey stop in front of a jewelry shop which was actually only a counter in the front of the general store.

Jan went inside and Casey stayed in the truck. There were no customers. The clerk, an elderly man who was sacking sugar when Jan entered, wiped off his hands and came up to her.

"Are you the jeweler?" Jan asked.

"Yeh. Can't fix watches, though," he added as Jan took off her wrist watch.

"Perhaps you can do me a favor. This is a fine watch; worth I should say $50. I need $10 to get home. I'll send for the watch and give you an extra $5 if you'll help me out."

The man looked at her curiously. "Don't know much about watches. Young fellow that handles the jewelry's up in the city today."

Jan showed him her identification. "Take my name and address," she begged. "You'll be repaid, because this watch has sentimental value to me. And I need the $10. I had an accident."

He hesitated.

"Please," she said.

She saw him weaken. "You look like an honest girl," he said slowly. "I guess I got $10 in the till."

He went to the rear of the store and Jan heard a bell ring as the old-fashioned money drawer slid from under the counter. "Yeh. Here it is. You don't need to leave the watch, miss. I'll trust you."

"No, I want you to keep the watch," Jan insisted.

"Rather not," he replied. "Rather just lend you the money. Might have some explainin' to do to my wife; he

Polish Beef Soup

Ingredients: One can (10 3/4 ounces) condensed onion soup, one can (16 ounces) cut beets, one medium-sized carrot, two tablespoons light brown sugar, one tablespoon elder vinegar, one and one-fourth teaspoons salt, pepper, dried crushed thyme, two cloves garlic crushed, one whole clove, one bay leaf.

Method: Put onion soup into two quart (or larger) saucepans; using soup can as measure, add three cans water; add liquid from beets. Dice beets and add. Pare carrot; grate medium-fine (there should be one-half cup lightly packed) and add with brown sugar, vinegar, salt, pepper to taste, a couple of pinches of thyme and garlic. Simmer about one-half hour; about five minutes before soup has simmered this time add whole clove and bay leaf. Remove bay leaf before serving. Makes six to seven cups.

Nice for a snack: Start by washing and coring a red-skinned apple. Cut the apple into 1/4-inch rounds and dip in pineapple or orange juice. Make sandwiches of two apple rounds and one round of cheddar cheese. Serve with salted nuts and good hot coffee.
